EFENDERS STRIKE HARD NEAR PEIPING

ynamite Rail Bridge to South and Engage Invaders in Day-Long Battle to South — Attack on Chochow.

the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, May 1 (Sunday).— furious battle for possession of walled town of Tancheng, in utheastern Shantung, 20 miles rth of the Lunghai railway, eatened today supply lines of the panese advance guard, which is ported to be only five miles from railway.

Tancheng, which is from 10 to 20 les behind the spearhead of the panese offensive, on the eastern d of the 30-mile Lunghai front, s captured by the Chinese in a rprise attack Friday night but s quickly recaptured within 12 urs by a reinforced Japanese assault.

Chinese headquarters admitted loss but said reinforcements re being rushed in for another empt to take the city and Macheng, a village just to the west Tancheng, was expected to be scene of a major engagement.

Invading Forces Endangered.

The Chinese drive on Tancheng langers particularly the Japae forces at Nanlakow, 15 miles uthwest of that town and five les north of the Lunghai, which the objective of the invading my. Other Japanese forces are ound Pihsien, about 20 miles thwest of Tancheng.

It is at the eastern end of the nt that the Japanese have made ir greatest threat. Despite their unding in the Taierhchwang sec to the west, the invaders have n unable to break through the nese defenses in 15 days of bit fighting.

The Chinese are entrenched ongly along the Grand Canal m the Tientsin-Pukow railway Taierhchwang, cutting off any ect advance from the north on chow, junction of the Tientsinkow and Lunghai railways.

Chen and Chang as Advisers.

Meanwhile, reports from Canton d two of China's outstanding litary leaders, in retirement since 36 because of revolts against the vernment, had been named mems of the National Defense Council. These leaders are Marshal ng Hsueh-liang, whose Shensi my seized Generalissimo Chiang shek at Sian in 1936, and Gen Chi-teng, who led the Kwangrebellion. Both Marshal Chang Gen. Chen were strongly antipanese before the outbreak of present conflict. It was largely ause of their dissatisfaction with Government's failure to take firm stand against Japan that y revolted.

inese Dynamite Long Bridge in Fighting West of Peiping.

the Associated Press.

PEIPING, April 30.—Chinese ndarmes returning to Peiping m the south today reported that nese guerrillas had dynamited quarter-mile Peiping-Hankow lway bridge over the Liuli Riv 30 miles south of here.

The railway has been used by panese to move troops and sups to the western portion of the ral Chinese front, about 300 south of Peiping. It is the direct link between Peiping Japanese forces in Southern eh Province.

emolition of the bridge was said have coincided with a Chinese k on Chochow, walled town 40 south of Peiping. The Chi estimated the railway had been red for at least four days.

estruction of the bridge kept nese from sending reinforcets to Chochow. Fighting at Chow was said to have continued y yesterday and to have shift the east today, with Japanese by aircraft. Five truckloads Japanese troops were sent south Peiping, and three truckloads Japanese wounded arrived here night.

Japanese army spokesman said se troops yesterday were

Nazis Put on a Salzburg Book-Burning Festival

15,000 Watch Works of Ludwig, Dolfuss, Baum And Zweig Tossed on Pyre in Gaily Lighted Square.

By the Associated Press.

SALZBURG, Austria, April 30.—Fifteen thousand persons watched the public burning tonight of Jewish books and others offensive to Nazis which were published during the administration of ex-Chancellor Schuschnigg.

The ceremony began at 8 p. m., when a schoolboy threw Schuschnigg's book, "Three Times Austria," on a gasoline-soaked pyre at gaily illuminated Residenz Square.

Next came books on the assassinated Chancellor, Dolfuss, and his followers, then propaganda books, and works by Jewish authors.

The proceedings were conducted under the auspices of the National Socialist Teachers' Association, which previously had made an appeal to the public to deliver all "objectionable literature forced upon the people by the Schuschnigg government."

The request read: "We don't want to search homes, but we appeal to your sense of decency." It added that "books by Emil Ludwig, Stefan Zweig, Vicki Baum," and "clerical Monarchist literature" must "disappear from German homes."

The burning was largely symbolic, however, for only one copy of 2000 different books were consigned to the flames while the rest, said to consist of more than 30,000 volumes collected from the university and other libraries, are to be burned later.

MISSOURI CONVICT FOUND; HID FOR 3 DAYS IN PRISON

Frank Starr Discovered in Shirt Factory; Only Food Had Been a Bit of Candy.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 30.—Frank Starr, the State Penitentiary's phantom convict, was found tonight hiding in packing cases at the prison shirt factory after dodging guards for three days.

George Roberts, a guard captain, discovered Starr, who told Warden J. M. Sanders he had had nothing to eat since his disappearance except a bit of candy taken from the prison commissary after he fled the infirmary Thursday morning.

Starr, 30 years old, is serving a 20-year term for robbery from Cole County.

ROBBER TAKES $163 IN HOLDUP OF STORE

Intimidates President, Cashier and Two Customers at 2816 Chippewa St.

The Hess & Dickman Furniture Co. store, 2816 Chippewa street, was held up and robbed of $163 at 8 o'clock last night by a well-dressed, smooth-spoken young man wearing horn-rimmed spectacles.

The robber, about 30 years old and clad in a brown suit and gray hat, walked up to O. W. Dickman, president of the firm, who was standing in the middle of the store conversing with two customers. The robber drew a revolver and warned the three to remain where they were and keep quiet.

Then he stepped to the rear and ordered the cashier, Miss Dorothy Hanssen, 5328 Itaska street, to hand over contents of the cash drawer, adding: "I don't want any checks." She gave him the money, representing week-end receipts and he ran out the front door. Dickman said an automobile pulled away a moment later.

ALTON DAM TO BE PUT INTO OPERATION THIS MORNING

Gates to Be Closed on $8,880,000 Job to Block Off Water for Mississippi River Lake.

The Alton dam, construction of which began in 1934, will be put into operation this afternoon, when 33 electrical switches will be thrown, lowering three 80-foot roller gates and thirty 40-foot hinged gates into their positions across the Mississippi River. The operation, which will take two or three hours, will be viewed by Alton residents and visitors from the higher section of the city, overlooking the $8,880,000 dam and locks.

When the complete barrier has been interposed, a rise of the stream will begin, and in time—weeks or months according to the volume of water from the upper Mississippi in the meantime—Alton Lake will be formed. This lake will be the farthest south in a series of 26 navigation pools which are being built between St. Louis and St. Paul, Minn. The surface of the lake, when filled, will be 30 feet above the present arbitrary 21-foot flood mark on the Alton Weather Bureau gauge.

A formal dedication of the dam, this summer, with Secretary of War Woodring as chief speaker, is being planned.

JAPAN TO UNITE DUMMY GOVERNMENTS IN CHINA

Invaders Disclose Intention to Consolidate Rule of Peiping and Nanking Area.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, May 1.—(Sunday)—Japan has completed arrangements for the amalgamation of the two puppet governments it has established in conquered Chinese territory.

Japanese military authorities here disclosed today that a merger of the Peiping provisional government and the Nanking reformed Government, as they are called, is imminent.

Premier Wang Keh Min of the Peiping Government after a secret conference with the Japanese here, proceeded by Japanese airplane to Tokio.

POPE AT CASTEL GANDOLFO

Leaves for Fifth Season at Summer Home.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, April 30.—Pope Pius left the Vatican today to spend his fifth summer at Castel Gandolfo on the shares of Lake Albano. The Pope and his party drove 17 miles to his summer palace. Five automobiles carried the party.

The Pope thus will be away from Rome when Adolf Hitler arrives May 3 to visit Mussolini, and avoid a situation which some held would have obliged the Pope to receive Hitler.

MAYOR PROPOSES OCCUPATIONAL TAX ON NON-RESIDENTS

Says $10,000,000 a Year Might Be Raised by Payroll Levy to Offset City's Declining Revenue.

EXPRESSES OPINION IT WOULD BE LEGAL

Points Out Thousands Employed Downtown Use Streets and Services but Live Elsewhere.

An occupational tax on non-residents employed in St. Louis, to help meet the city's need for additional revenue, will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen soon, Mayor Dickmann announced yesterday.

Pointing out to City Hall reporters that revenue for general purposes had declined by about $4,000,000 annually in recent years, he advocated the new tax, in the nature of a payroll levy, from which residents of the city would be exempted. It would apply to residents of St. Louis County, the East Side and elsewhere, who commute to the city for their work by the thousands, especially from the county suburbs.

The Mayor said he did not know what rate of tax would be proposed, or how many non-residents would be affected, but asserted that as much as $10,000,000 a year might be raised in this way. He said the total payroll of St. Louis workers was $268,000,000 a year.

If one-quarter of the payroll, as estimated by the Mayor, was earned by non-residents, a tax rate of about 15 per cent would be required to produce $10,000,000 in taxes, while if a smaller proportion of the payroll was drawn by non-residents, the rate would have to be larger to give the same yield.

Mayor Dickmann expressed the opinion that the occupational tax would be legal. He said it had been under consideration for about two weeks and that he had discussed it with President William L. Mason of the Board of Aldermen, a lawyer; City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman, and some "St. Louisans living in the county." The latter group, whose names and number he did not mention, approved the idea, he added.

Committee to Consider It.

A citizens' committee, which the Mayor will appoint this week to look into the city's financial condition and supervise an audit of accounts, will be asked also to consider the occupational tax.

The Mayor said non-resident workers had the benefit of streets, street lights and police and fire protection in the city and, therefore, could hardly complain about the tax. He also mentioned the benefit they received from the Express Highway (which was built by the State) and the proposed highway on the old Rock Island right-of-way, an ordinance for which died in the last aldermanic session.

The city formerly collected $23,000,000 a year for general purposes, but now was fortunate to obtain $19,000,000, the Mayor continued. Additional money could not be obtained from real estate taxation, he said, mentioning the tendency to raze old buildings to save taxes. No one, he declared, should object to city taxes here, inasmuch as the per capita cost of local government was the lowest of any American city with more than 500,000 population. As to the needs of the city, he said, operation of the new Homer G. Phillips Hospitals, for Negroes, had increased expenses by $500,000 and the Malcolm A. Bliss Psychopathic Hospital, now under construction, would add another $200,000.

Question of Legality.

Charles J. Dolan, tax attorney for the city in previous administrations, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, in response to inquiry yesterday, that he knew of no precedent for the proposed occupational tax. He expressed doubt as to its legality, on the ground that it would discriminate against non-residents. While individuals residing elsewhere were not directly subject to the city's jurisdiction, he went on, evidently the proposal was to place the tax on a thing of value within the city —the payroll. He called attention to the general rule of law that taxation must be uniform and to the difficulty of taxing the income from fees of professional men, as contrasted with a tax on payrolls.

Mayor Dickmann's announcement was made after he commented on the speedy passage of the annual budget ordinance, with the remark that the Aldermen soon would have new revenue legislation to consider. The ordinance, appropriating a total of $31,773,268, introduced last Tuesday, was passed unanimously by the Aldermen yesterday.

JERSEY POLICE ESCORT TROMAS OUT OF TOWN

Socialist Leader Seized on Arrival in 'Hitler-Hague Fiefdom' for May Day Eve Speech.

'NOT ARRESTED BUT KIDNAPED,' HE SAYS

He Returns to Get Wife After Being Put on Ferry and Charges Officer Struck Her.

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 30. —Norman Thomas, national chairman of the Socialist party, returned to Journal Square tonight, where he had been seized earlier in the evening by police when he attempted to make a speech, and charged he had been "kidnaped by officials."

"I was not arrested but kidnaped by officials, some in uniform and some not," Thomas said in a statement. "I was forcibly put on a ferry boat for New York, as were others not even guilty of the offense of coming to Jersey City to make a speech. I have every intention of taking whatever legal action is possible against Mayor Frank Hague and his grand Fascist administration."

A crowd of 300 milled about a local newspaper office where Thomas made his statement and shouted loudly, "We want Thomas. We want Thomas."

Thomas left the building with his wife and his brother, Dr. Evenn Thomas, and police escorted them to a Hudson tube station. Police guarded all entrances to the station until the Thomas group had boarded a train.

Thomas charged "an officer hit my wife in the jaw while I was being removed from my automobile."

Removed From His Car.

Thomas, who had been removed from his automobile as he attempted to address a May Day eve meeting, said his only reason for returning was "to find out what happened to my wife, and other American citizens in Hitler-Hague fiefdom." His wife and brother had visited headquarters earlier to inquire of Police Chief Harry J. Walsh as to his whereabouts.

A crowd of about 1000 persons was in Journal Square when Thomas drove up in an open car early tonight with two other men. Police pulled him from the automobile and pushed their way through the crowds to a large police sedan.

The crowd had started to assemble at 7 o'clock to hear the advertised speech by Thomas. About 50 policemen mingled with the crowd, ordering it "to keep moving, keep moving." When Thomas arrived on the scene and his car came to a stop, police quickly surrounded it. As he attempted to speak they opened the doors of the car and hurried him away.

Taken in Police Cars.

George Slaff of New York, council for the Workers' Defense League, said at police headquarters at least five other men were taken away in police cars. A man who identified himself as Martin Bernstein of New York was removed by police when he attempted to pass copies of the "Socialist Call" to the crowd.

Daniel J. Casey, Commissioner of Public Safety, informed Thomas yesterday in a letter: "In accordance with the laws of our State, any attempt to hold a public meeting without having first obtained permission from the public authorities constitutes such act a public nuisance and will be dealt with accordingly."

In a letter to Mayor Frank Hague, Thomas replied, "I informed you of my intention to speak at this meeting. That intention is unchanged."

Thomas Says He Has Complained to J. Edgar Hoover.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Norman Thomas, national Socialist leader, said tonight he had communicated with J. Edgar Hoover in Washington to learn if his ejection from Jersey City, N. J., constituted a violation of the Federal kidnap law.

"I have just started to fight," Thomas said. "I have written to J. Edgar Hoover to learn if a violation of the Federal kidnap act has occurred. I intend to obtain the best legal advice available and bring suit against Mayor Hague and the City of Jersey City. And I am writing to President Roosevelt and every member of the Democratic National Committee to inquire what kind of a vice-chairman that committee has."

Thomas blamed Mayor Hague, vice-chairman of the Democratic Committee, for his being prevented from speaking in Jersey City.

12 IN KANSAS CITY FRAUDS GO TO PRISON

Eight Begin Terms, Four on Way; U. S. Supreme Court Denied Vote Cases Review.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30.—Twelve vote fraud defendants, the first to carry their pleas to the United States Supreme Court, surrendered today and eight of them immediately began serving sentences for their parts in the election frauds of 1936.

The remaining four were en route to the El Reno (Ok.) Federal reformatory. It was expected they would stop tonight in Oklahoma City, completing their 400-mile automobile journey tomorrow.

The United States Supreme Court denied the defendants' pleas for review Feb. 28.

The following began their terms at Leavenworth: John H. Drummond, two years; Edson M. Walker, two years; John A. Luteran, three years; Frank H. Adams, three years; John T. Little, two years; George Neeper, three years; and Frank P. Ditsch Jr., three years.

Leo B. Roach, former city policeman, began six months in the Platte County Jail.

The four en route to El Reno are: Lorne E. Wells, two years; Joe R. Wells Jr., a year and a day; Gilbert Stevens, three years, and Forest C. Holman, a year and a day.

All are from the Twelfth Ward. The Wells are not related.

M. C. TAYLOR REPRESENTS U. S. ON REFUGEES' COMMITTEE

New Yorker's Selection Announced From White House as He Sails for Europe.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—President Roosevelt has an American representative on the International Committee for Refugees, Myron C. Taylor, who sailed today for Europe. Taylor maintains homes in New York and in Florence, Italy. Twenty-nine nations and four British dominions have accepted Secretary of State Hull's invitation to take part in the committee's work of aiding refugees primarily through private funds. The committee will hold its first meeting probably in June.

Members of the American committee were announced from the White House today as:

James G. McDonald, acting chairman, editorial writer of the New York Times and former high commissioner for refugees from Germany; the Rev. Samuel Cavert, New York, member of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of America; Joseph P. Chamberlin, New York; Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel of the Catholic Archdiocese of New Orleans; Louis Kennedy, president of the National Council of Catholic men; Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York; Barnard Baruch, New York financier; Paul Baerwald, New York banker; James M. Speers, vice-president of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions; Hamilton Fish Armstrong, writer, New York, and Basil Harris.

PLANE WITH KING ZOG'S GUESTS IS MISSING

19 Aboard Craft Carrying Them to Rome After Wedding.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 30.—A passenger plane bound from Tirana, Albania, to Rome, was believed today to have crashed near Formia, Italy.

The Ala Littoria Airline office neither confirmed nor denied that the plane had crashed, but a reliable source said it was certain that disaster had overtaken the craft.

The airline spokesman said there was "nothing to say before tomorrow morning."

One report, reaching Rome from Tirana, said the plane carried passengers returning to Italy from the wedding of King Zog and Queen Geraldine of Albania.

The plane, carrying 19 persons, left Brindisi in southern Italy this morning after an uneventful flight across the Adriatic Sea.

It had been due in Rome this afternoon.

Air line officers said they were not sure of the fate of the passengers and crew.

Reserve Corps Private at Chicago Grabs Edge of Cockpit, Hangs on Until Ship Lands.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Frank H. Krebs rode an airplane astride the fuselage today. As Lieut. Lewis J. Connors of the Army Air Corps took off from the Municipal Airport with James K. Hutton for St. Louis, Krebs, a Reserve Corps private, jumped on a wing of the plane to have Hutton sign routine papers releasing the Army from responsibility.

Connors, looking another direction, got the control tower's "go" signal and sent the plane roaring down the runway. Too late to jump, Krebs slid to the fuselage, grasping the edge of the rear cockpit.

The air traffic control man sighted Krebs and radioed Connors. As the plane landed a few minutes later, Krebs slid to the ground and gasped:

"No cowboy ever rode a bronc harder."

ROOSEVELT BARS RESERVE OFFICERS IN C C C CAMPS

Regular Army Can Provide Supervision at Less Expense, He Writes Ohio Senator.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Senator Bulkley (Dem.), Ohio, received a letter from President Roosevelt today denying Bulkley's request that officers of the organized reserve corps be reinstated in command of C C C districts.

The President's letter said the War Department had advised the director of the Civilian Conservation Corps it could furnish a sufficient number of regular army officers of field grade rank to carry on the necessary supervisory work.

"Reserve officers of field grade rank are not called to active duty because of the expense," Roosevelt wrote.

LOYAL ARMY FIGHTS OFF REBEL ATTACK IN CATALONIA

BARCELONA RAIDED BY PLANES AGAIN

Temporary Capital Bombed by Franco's Pilots, Taking Advantage of First Clear Weather in That City in Many Days.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, April 30. — Spanish Government troops, knee-deep in muddy trenches, fought under torrential rain today to repel an insurgent surprise attack in the Balaguer region, 14 miles northeast of Lerida in Catalonia.

The Government said that although the insurgents "spared neither men nor armaments" they were beaten back by machine-gun fire and then forced to lose ground by two successive Government counterattacks.

Reinforcements were rushed to Government positions in the Aran Valley, near the French border, in the expectation that the insurgents would renew their attack there as soon as the weather cleared.

Scattered exchanges of rifle fire were reported along the coastal lines, but there were no important changes in positions because of the heavy rains.

30 Killed, 50 Hurt in Rebel Air Raid on Barcelona.

By the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, April 30. — The first sunshine in days brought two deadly insurgent air raids today on Government Spain's capital. More than 30 persons were killed, more than 50 wounded.

The 3785-ton American freighter Oregon and 12 British vessels were spattered with spray kicked up by insurgent bombs, but none of the ships was damaged.

Meanwhile, three men were condemned to death for desertion. Two brothers who formerly owned a big hardware store were sentenced to a work camp and fined for selling knives and roofing at exhorbitant prices after their store was collectivized.

Lloyd Usinger, 32 years old, of Arcadia, Cal., a seaman aboard the Oregon, was released from jail on the promise of the freighter's captain not to bring Usinger to Spain again.

Police charged Usinger with trying to incite members of international brigades to desert, insulting an officer and with being an enemy of the Republic.

Usinger was arrested two days ago in a cafe when he refused to show his papers to police.

British Freighter Attacked by Planes Off Catalonian Coast.

PERPIGNAN, France, April 30. —The British freighter Surreybrook was attacked by six planes off the Catalonian coast today but escaped the bombing undamaged.

OLD-AGE PENSION ROLL IN MISSOURI GROWS AGAIN

Rises 77 to 72,394 in May; Average Payments Exceed $16 for First Time.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 30.—The State old-age pension rolls turned upward today after four months of decreases.

George I. Haworth, State Social Security Administrator, announced checks had been mailed to 72,394 persons for May, 77 more than received them last month.

The average payment exceeded $16 for the first time, reaching $16.07. Total payments were $1,163,037 as compared with $1,122,851 in April, when the average was $15.53. Ten months ago the average was $12.70. Cass County had the highest average for May, $19.17, and Pemiscot County the lowest, $12.25. The total payments and number of recipients included St. Louis City, $161,462, 8476; St. Louis County, $23,799.

There were 780 deaths in the month but new applicants accepted more than offset the removals and deaths. In St. Louis alone, 109 persons were transferred from direct relief to old-age assistance.

HEARING DRAWS TOWARD CLOSE

J. P. Morgan, Bernard E. Smith and Harry Durning, New Dealer, to Give Testimony.

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—When the Securities and Exchange Commission hearing in the case of "Richard Whitney & Co. et al." reconvenes Tuesday morning in New York, it is expected that one of the witnesses in addition to J. P. Morgan, will be Harry Durning, collector of the port of New York, the only New Dealer officeholder to emerge thus far in the picture.

Durning was appointed to his current position April 21, 1933, by President Roosevelt, and was reappointed July 1, 1937. According to information obtained at the S E C offices here, he is or was a member of the Wall Street brokerage firm of Moore & Schley. One of the partners, Kenneth B. Schley, testified that on May 15, 1935, he made a partnership loan to Richard Whitney, for three months, of $128,800 worth of stock; that, in spite of repeated demands, the broker failed to return the securities, and that they were caught in the Whitney crash.

Schley named Durning as one of the partners who was eloquent in "dunning" Whitney for the restitution of the stock, and indicated that the Collector of the Port had good reason, as early as last November, to suspect that Richard Whitney & Co. was bankrupt. He is to be questioned particularly on this final point.

Hearing Is Near End.

With his testimony and that of J. P. Morgan and Bernard E. Smith, one of the brokers who distinguished himself by refusing to lend money to Whitney during the last days of his career, the S E C will virtually complete the record of evidence on which it will base a detailed summary and finding in the Whitney case, to be made public on an indefinite future date.

The keystone of this record is a voluminous report, bristling with thousands of figures, which was compiled by the auditing staff of the S E C regional office in New York, after seven weeks of arduous exploration in the jungle of Richard Whitney's affairs. Their schedules are thought to form the most definitive map of that region which is likely to become available for some time to come. Incidentally, the conclusions differ in important particulars from the report submitted by accountants of District Attorney Dewey's office to Judge Owen W. Bohan of General Sessions for his guidance in sentencing Whitney.

According to Dewey's statement, Richard Whitney & Co., with a net deficit of working capital amounting to $950,000, was "hopelessly insolvent" on June 30, 1931, when the latest partnership agreement was signed; and failed on last March 8 with firm liabilities and unpaid personal loans of Richard Whitney totaling $6,338,500. The broker's earliest misuse of customer securities, according to this authority, occurred June 6, 1932, and consisted of an "over night" hypothecation of Sheldon Estate properties.

S E C Finding Different.

The S E C accountants, on the contrary found that Richard Whitney & Co., on June 30, 1931, was solvent by $393,804; that the combined deficit in Whitney's personal and firm obligations on March 8, 1938, was $5,662,343; and that his unlawful use of customer securities was under way certainly in 1926 and probably in 1925.

On April 3, 1935, the auditors report, Whitney appears for the first time to have got into his own hands 205 stock certificates of the Corporation Trust of New York and 43 stock certificates of the Corporation Trust of New Jersey. They were part of a trust fund set up under the will of his father-in-law, George R. Sheldon. Whitney and the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., were co-trustees. On June 9 of that year, it was found that Whitney wrongfully transferred these securities to a special loan account of his own. At about the same time, he borrowed $300,000 from the Chase National Bank. The accountants were unable to prove or disprove that the two transactions were related, it was testified, because the Chase Bank's records for 1925 are no longer in existence.

But it was shown that on March 5, 1926, when he was a Governor of the New York Stock Exchange, Whitney pledged some of these securities at the Mechanics and Metals National Bank in support of a $100,000 loan. During May, 1929, Whitney became vice-president of the Exchange. A month later, on June 18, the Sheldon Securities were found to be in the possession of Kidder, Peabody & Co., presumably as backing for a loan to the broker.

"Service to the Public."

On May 12, 1930, Whitney for the first time was elected president of the Stock Exchange, and in his inaugural address proclaimed: "We cannot afford to overlook the all-important duty of service to the public; this is the eternal prerequisite of all financial markets, of all species of business." Just six days earlier, on May 6, the S E C audit shows, the broker committed his first embezzlement of securities from the New York Yacht Club, of which he was treeasurer.

He pledged them unlawfully to secure a loan of $145,000 from the Harriman National Bank. From that date until July 31, 1931, the record discloses, these securities were 11 times in and out of loans at the Harriman bank and the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co. His final hypothecation of the property, on Jan. 26 of this year, led to one of two charges of grand larceny to which he pleaded guilty, and for which he was sentenced to Sing Sing. The Harriman Bank failed in 1933, resulting in the trial, conviction and Federal imprisonment of its president, Joseph Wright Harriman.

A Professor of Borrowing.

This audit, reinforced by testimony in the case, indicates that Richard Whitney was probably the greatest professor of the art and mystery of borrowing money to flourish recently in Wall Street. One of the schedules reveals that since 1930 he obtained loans in cash—to say nothing of his borrowings on securities—totaling $17,605,000. Of this he repaid $13,804,000. It appears, therefore, that by making a career of borrowing, by mere dint of incessantly kiting large loans from Bank to bank and from creditor to creditor, he was $3,936,000 ahead of the game when he failed.

This "profit' was almost exactly balanced by investments which he, the Street's foremost expert on stocks and bonds, poured into wildcat schemes—$1,600,000 lost in his applejack trust, the Distilled Liquors Corporation; $1,500,000 in the Florida Insecticide Co., and the Florida Humus Co., dealing in fertilizers; and other hundreds of thousands squandered in seeking to market a patent dish washing machine, or invested in many stock issues of the sort known as "cats and dogs."

His Way With Great Banks.

To the four things which Solomon found too wonderful for him, might be added the way of Richard Whitney with great New York banks. During the last two years, Whitney himself testified, he formed the habit of obtaining $100,000 at a time on his mere note from the Marine Midland Trust Co., despite a general rule in the financial district that banks shall not make unsecured loans to brokers. In all, he borrowed $2,225,000 from this bank. His last unsecured loan of $100,000 from the Marine Midland went down in the crash.

When securities were exacted, he proved a master of the science of obtaining substantial loans on worthless collateral. The record states that between May 19, 1937, and Jan. 10, 1938, he was able to borrow a total of $435,000 from four large New York banks on stock in the Alpha Co. and an earlier Florida Humus Co., both of which were defunct and the stock of which was listed in current reference books as "without value."

These institutions were the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co., which lent him $50,000 May 19, 1937, on Florida Humus stock; the Marine Midland Trust Co., which advanced $75,000 June 1, 1937, on Florida Humus stock; the National City Bank, which on similar security lent him $75,000, June 10, 1937; the Continental Bank & Trust Co., which advanced $100,000 Dec. 20, 1931, on Alpha Co. stock; and the Public National Bank and Trust Co., which on Dec. 31, 1937, and Jan. 10, 1938, made him two loans of $80,000 and $55,000 respectively, also secured by Alpha stock. These loans, as it happens, were all repaid.

$485,064 Ahead—on Paper.

It was when the banks required ersponsible security that Whitney enjoyed what is probably a professional borrower's most thrilling triumph—that of obtaining sums in excess of the collateral's worth. When Richard Whitney & Co. failed, it was indebted to four banks and three brokerage houses for a total of $1,472,500, supported by collateral with a liquidating value of only $987,437, which left the broker with a "profit" on these transactions amounting to $485,063. In fact only one bank, the Corn Exchange, held on March 8 securities of greater value than its two loans of $100,000 and $45,000. The collateral deposited by Whitney was rated at $194,000.

The Chemical Bank & Trust Co. was caught with a loan of $200,000 and collateral of $131,250—a loss of $68,750. The Manufacturers Trust Co. suffered a deficit of $125,000 on a loan of that amount, since the worth of its collateral is described as "unknown." The National City Bank is stated to have lost $21,750 on a loan of $225,000. Through deficiency of collateral, the New York Trust Co. lost $167,563 on three loans totaling $617,500. Among brokerage firms, Callaway, Fish & Co. is declared to have been left with a collateral deficiency of $68,000 on a loan of $200,000; E. F. Hutton & Co., $14,500 on an advance of $53,000; and E. A. Pierce & Co., $24,000 on a loan of $52,000. Four of the loans were made during January, February and March of this year.

From 13 Different Banks.

The list of Whitney's cash borrowings since 1930 shows that he obtained $11,350,000 during that period from 13 different banks, of which $840,000 remained unpaid last March. The banks and the totals in each case are: Chase National Bank, $1,425,000; Chemical Bank, $650,000; Corn Exchange Bank, $600,000; Bankers Trust Co., $150,000; Fulton Trust Co., $250,000; Guaranty Trust Co., $200,000; Manufacturers Trust Co., $1,000,000; Marine Midland, $2,225,000; National City Bank, $1,175,000; New York Trust Co., $1,775,000; Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., $50,000; Continental Bank & Trust Co., $300,000; and the Public National, $1,550,000.

Remaining unpaid at the crash, according to the S E C audit, was $125,000 owed to the Manufacturers' Trust; $100,000 to the Marine Midland, $135,000 to the New York Trust Co., and $480,000 to the Public National.

Much greater sufferers from the broker's operations were Stock Exchange member firms or partners in member firms, who lent him during the last eight years a total of $5,705,000, of which $2,609,000 was repaid and $3,096,000 remained outstanding when Richard Whitney & Co. became bankrupt. This included total loans from J. P. Morgan & Co., of $80,000 with $474,000 outstanding; and $1,782,000 advanced by George Whitney to his brother since 1930, none of which has been paid.

Creditors under this heading who lost all or part of their money, with the total sums lent to Whitney during the period and the amounts unpaid, are as follows: Abraham & Co., $310,000, loss $15,000; George H. Bull, $150,000, loss $145,000; Alexander B. Gale, $100,000, all of which is unpaid; Hayden, Stone & Co., $150,000, all unpaid; E. F. Hutton & Co., $53,000, unpaid; John W. Prentiss, $25,000, unpaid; Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., $100,000, all unpaid, and E. A. Pierce & Co.*, $125,000 unpaid out of total loans of $402,000. The firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn counsel to the Stock Exchange, lent Whitney $25,000 and lost it; so did one of its principal partners, Roland L. Redmond. Two of Whitney's most distinguished creditors were Marshall Field and Harold S. Vanderbilt. Each lent him $50,000 in cash or securities, and both got their property back.

In borrowing money, it appears, Whitney operated with equal freedom, as occasion demanded, in any one of four categories—personal secured or unsecured loans, and firm secured or unsecured loans. Customer securities and cash in his custody were pledged with impartial freedom, whether with or without authorization from the owners. The S E C accountants were unable to trace his borrowings of securities over a period of years, and had to be content with the schedule existing at the time of his failure. This consisted of $435,734 unlawfully pledged, and $375,424 used with the consent of the proprietors, or a total of $811,158.

The audit brought out that the roles of George Whitney and Thomas W. Lamont in rescuing Richard Whitney from his embezzlement of properties belonging to the Gratuity Fund of the Stock Exchange were concealed, in the books of Richard Whitney & Co., by entering the sum involved, $1,082,000 under the heading of two loans from J. P. Morgan & Co.

GOV. LA FOLLETTE TAKES NEW PARTY IDEA TO IOWA

Tells Cedar Rapids Audience "Covered Wagon Relief" Is No Longer Possible.

By the Associated Press.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., April 30.—Governor Phil La Follette of Wisconsin, founder of America's newest third party movement, explained here tonight his theory of opening the flood-gates of production as the nation's best defense against dictatorship.

The Governor spoke here before an interstate rally of 1000 persons. He previously had received assurance from the Iowa Farmer-Labor Party leaders that they would "go along" with his party.

Harold L. Peterson of Wilmar, Minn., secretary of the Farmer-Labor Association of Minnesota, said the Association's central committee would meet May 21 at St. Paul to decide whether to join the Progressive movement.

The Governor declared the graph line of production of goods has been falling all over the world since 1918. "That is why democracy has been falling and dictatorship rising," he commented.

He offered the three-day old National Progressive Party as a vehicle for the American people to junk methods which he said seek to cure the nation's ills by "producing less."

Feeding the Nation.

Gov. La Follette rapped the share-the-wealth principle by saying "it clearly needs no argument that the idea isn't an answer to the problem of feeding the nation if there isn't enough to go around.

"If they divided up the General Motors Company, each of you would get a brick," he continued. "All you could do with it would be to sit on it. The company has value only for what it can produce."

The Governor attacked the Hoover administration for lending money to "some of us, not all," through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "so that we could sit down and wait some more."

"They expected prosperity to come back by itself," he said. "They did not realize there never has been prosperity in terms of real wealth."

Government action is needed now, the Governor declared, to combat depressions because "covered wagon relief" which gave unemployed men free land no longer is possible.

"Most Progressive."

Howard Y. Williams of St. Paul, Minn., national organizer of the Farmer-Labor Party, limited his statements on the Progressive party to an expression of confidence in Governors Elmer Benson of Minnesota and La Follette as the "most progressive Governors in the United States."

Williams said, however, the Minnesota organization was "watching the La Follette movement. We feel it necessary to hold together all Progressive forces in the country, including dissatisfied New Dealers. Anything we can do to bring Progressives together is worthwhile."

Other Minnesotians at the rally included State Treasurer C. A. Halvorson.

"Wolf Children" of Shanghai; Orphans of War Beg, Steal and Die in Streets by Hundreds Number Estimated at More Than 2000—War Babies Are Problem, Too—Foreign Women Establish Nurseries.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, April 30.—"Wolf children," an outgrowth of Japan's war on China, are on the prowl in Shanghai now.

Singly, in pairs, and in packs of 15 or 20, they beg, scavenge the gutters, snatch and steal from small shopkeepers, ambush lone pedestrians and then claw each other for a penny.

They are the orphans made by months of war in and around the city.

The depredations of adult armed robbers, footpads and kidnapers here have paled beside the daring, ingenious and ferocious attacks of these youngsters. They hide in alleyways, in unused lofts and hallways, striking swiftly and then shifting to another part of the city. They are cunning in melting into crowds, pretending to be the children of strangers they hang onto in crowds.

Reports to police from different parts of the city in one day indicate they are more than 2000 of them.

One Every 10 Feet.

Hardly a district is without its "wolf children." To walk a block on Nanking road, Shanghai's busiest downtown thoroughfare, is to meet one every 10 feet begging for coppers. To ignore them is to have your clothes yanked and a foot try to trip you. They run beside rickshas, cluster at motor car doors, hurling abuse and sometimes refuse, and then melt like magic.

They crack showcases and steal the contents before the merchant knows what has happened. If foodstuffs are displayed on open counters across shop fronts, clerks are stationed on the sidewalks on guard.

Gaunt children, wizened by starvation, have ever been seen in the devastated Chapei area, where thousands of Chinese homes have been demolished by Japanese guns, looking for loot among the wreckage.

Schooled by hunger, and trained by fear in the desperate struggle to live, most of these "wolf children "have come to be suspicious of any show of friendliness and kindness. They fight and bite hospital attendants and health officers who try to take them to refugee camps and child hospitals.

Many of the smaller children were separated from their parents in the mad rush of millions to leave their burning, shell-riddled homes during the early months of the war. Too young to fend for themselves in the merciless competition of a doorwaya-nd-gutter existence, these children have died each day by the hundred.

Refuge homes and hospitals in the international settlement have gathered up scores of them, but for every one given a bed another waif has appeared to take its place on the vacated doorstep.

War Babies by Hundreds.

Paralleling this acute problem is that of the hundreds of war babies being born every night in refugee camps, in vacant lots and on sidewalks. Each morning shows a pitiful procession of the mothers, bearing their new-born babies, lining up at improvised clinics and hospitals. They beg for smallpox inoculation, milk and American codliver oil. If a crib or a basket can be found in any of the baby shelters in the settlement the mite is taken in. But many are refused for lack of room.

Groups of foreign women are busy making additional shelters for war babies. One group of American women have turned their clubrooms into nursery dormitories, and in addition are utilizing unused bedrooms in private homes and in schools, which they are fitting with cribs and cots. Nursing care is being supplied by volunteer service.

Many of these foreign women who are bathing war babies and making milk formulas for them come from homes with a staff of six or eight servants, and are the wives of prominent business and professional men in the international settlement. A few are giving their whole time to it.

JAPANESE SUPPLY LINES THREATENED IN LUNGHAI SECTOR

threatening railways both south and east of Peiping. He stated that Chinese attacked the Peiping-Tientsin Railway, which links the two chief cities of North China, yesterday and that a day-long battle resulted. The attack was 40 miles east of Peiping, near Langfang. Japanese sent reinforcements to the sector.

Chinese troops evacuated Peiping July 29, 1937, in the first month of the war. Within a few weeks Japanese gained control of the entire Peiping-Tientsin area, forcing Chinese to retreat to the south and west. Since that time the Peiping-Tientsin area and main railway lines in Hopeh Province have been in Japanese hands. The two Hopeh cities have been the bases for Japanese operations throughout North China.

Authorities described the Hopeh engagements as of "trivial military importance." The assault on Chochow, to the south, was by uniformed Chinese troops and was accompanied by an uprising of plain clothes soldiers within the walls of the city. Street fighting continued throughout the night but Japanese said their forces retained possession of the railway station.

Unconfirmed Chinese reports were that Japanese sent two troop trains north from Shihchiachuang, important Hopeh Province Railway point, to reinforce the Chochow garrison.

ROOSEVELT AT SEA ON FISHING VACATION

Aboard New Navy Cruiser; He May Go as Far as West Indies.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 30.—Away from the official tasks of Washington, President Roosevelt rode the calm seas of the South Atlantic aboard the cruiser Philadelphia today on a vacation that may take him to the West Indies.

Stocked with the latest newspapers and White House reports on reaction to his anti-monopoly message, the President boarded the new 10,000-ton cruiser at the navy yard at 8:45 a. m. and an hour later was headed southward. The Philadelphia, escorted by the new 1500-ton destroyer Fanning, eased down the channel past Fort Moultrie to the sea.

The President hopes to indulge in his favorite sport of game fishing in the general vicinity of the Virgin Islands either on the Atlantic or Caribbean side or both.

He is expected to disembark here next Saturday, but he shouted to reporters on the dock before he left he would let them know definitely by Thursday whether he would land here or some port farther north.

The President reached the North Charleston station at 8 a. m. by special train from Washington. Half an hour later he drove the three miles to the dock with Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina and Mayor Burnet R. Maybank of Charleston.

The first radio dispatch from the Philadelphia, received early tonight at the Charleston Navy Yard, said:

"Philadelphia headed southward at 22 knots. Clear and warm. Sea smooth. President stayed on deck until well out at sea. Spent day quietly. During afternoon started going through mass of official reports. Tomorrow President attends church services conducted by Chaplain Moore. Approximately 135 miles at sea from Charleston."

The message added that a section of the Navy Band under Lieutenant-Commander Charles Benter was making its first cruise with a President aboard.

W P A LABORER CAMPAIGNING FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

Lawrence Edward Smith Promises Fellow Workers He'll Change Things if They Put Him In.

OPPOSES HENNINGS FOR NOMINATION

Candidate Makes No Speeches, Has No Funds —Circulates Cards When Foreman Isn't Looking.

If Lawrence Edward Smith ever gets to Congress—and he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the seat now held by Thomas C. Hennings Jr.—things are going to be different on the W P A.

For one thing, there will be no more of this business of assigning a man to work in Carondelet, just because he lives 10 miles away in Baden. And W P A workers who spend carfare to report on a job won't be sent home just because the Weather Man predicts: "Cloudy, with possible showers in east portion."

Smith works for the W P A and his hope of being nominated and elected is based on the support promised him by fellow W P A workers, of whom there are about 26,000 in St. Louis. A former automobile worker, Smith, 36 years old, lives with his wife and two small children in a two-room, $8.50-a-month flat at 916 South Newstead avenue, in the shadow of the Laclede Gas Light Co.'s huge tanks.

How He Came to Run.

He was swinging a shovel in Forest Park yesterday when a Post-Dispatch reporter sought him out to learn how he came to be a candidate, and what he proposed to do now that he is in the race.

"Well, about three months ago, a group of us were working down at the duck pond at the Zoo," Smith said, "and we got to talking about why some workingman didn't run for Congress. Then we decided one of us ought to do it, and then it was a question of who it would be. They decided I was the one."

Smith's languid drawl, which has survived an 11-year absence from the Southeast Missouri floodway where he grew up, and his general easy-going demeaner suggest nothing of the aggressive rabble-rousing leader. He has, however, a better education than most of his fellow workers, having spent two years at Central College, Fayette, Mo., paying his way by working for the dean. He has been working for the W P A since Jan. 6 and was on relief for two months before that. For 10 years, until he was discharged a year ago—because, he says, of a disability acquired at work—he was employed in the Fisher body plant.

What He'd Do If Elected.

"If they do send me to Washington," he said, "it will be just like sending a workingman to the office to get things fixed up. I'll be working for them.

"We're not interested in big issues like foreign policy, the A. F. of L. and C I O and all that—we'll let those who are interested and know more about them take care of those things. What we do want is humane administration of the W P A and of relief."

In that connection Smith said his platform called for a W P A wage of $100 a month, with no deductions for time lost through no fault of the worker, and direct relief allowances of $50 a month to families of four persons. "These are the common necessities of life," he said. "We remain neutral on all other issues."

But, Smith, said two-thirds of the W P A workers' complaints could be adjusted without costing the Government any more money than it is now spending, by intelligent management of the funds available.

What were those complaints?

"Well, I'd hoped you'd find the answer in the letters you get — there must be a basketful of them—and you know nobody's going to take a chance of losing what he's got by writing a complaint for publication unless it's a pretty serious matter.

"In the first place, we don't get a chance to make up time we lose because of the weather. Often you spend carfare to report on the job and the foreman sends you home because it looks like there may be a little shower.

"Then they assign you to a job across town from where you live. I guess that's to pull the street car company out of the hole.

"And they don't assign you to jobs in your trade. They'll have a bookkeeper pushing a wheelbarrow and a wheelbarrow pusher keeping the books. And the amount of pay isn't enough. It's supposed to be $56 a month, but when you take out carfare and lost time it figures out about $8 a week for most of those I know. Sometimes we have to report on the job three days to get one day's work."

Foreman Arrives on Scene.

That was about all Smith could think of extemporaneously. It was a good thing, too, because about that time a red-headed foreman drove up and Smith thought it discreet to terminate the conversation for the time being. At that time he had discarded his shovel and was working on the rock pile, helping to construct a bridle path bridge over a drainage ditch beside Government drive, just south of the Art Museum.

The foreman spoke contemptuously of Smith's candidacy and let it be known that: "He'd better not let me see any of his cards around here." When it was suggested that even a W P A worker had a right to run for Congress, the foreman replied: "Yeah, but that's politics, and it don't go here."

"And besides," he added, "don't you know Barney and Tom Hennings are just like this?" He held up two fingers in the familiar gesture. "Why, these fellows wouldn't even be working here if it wasn't for Barney. He rides right by here every morning." The foreman was referring to Mayor Dickmann's matutinal canters on the Forest Park bridle path which the W P A men we reconstructing.

Smith had managed to slip one of his cards to the reporter. It bears his name, identifies him as a W P A worker, and relates that he is backed for the Democratic nomination in the Eleventh District by all W P A workers. The cards promise: "Real Jobs—Real Pay—Real Relief."

District in Center of City.

The Eleventh District includes much of the central part of the city. Along the riverfront it takes in part of the Fourth Ward, and all of the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth. In the second tier of wards west of the river the district runs west to Kingshighway, and, north of Forest Park, to DeBaliviere avenue taking in all of the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fifth wards, and parts of the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-second and Twenty-sixth.

Hennings, who has represented the district since 1934, will be a candidate for renomination. A lawyer, 35 years old, he was Assistant Circuit Attorney for five years before his election to Congress. His father is vice-president of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. Congressman Hennings, in the present session, is a member of the committee on foreign affairs.

Candidate Smith said he had made no speeches, attended no meetings, and was relying on wide distribution of his cards to promote his candidacy. The campaign without meetings, he explained was necessary because: "We haven't got any money, and even a dime carfare is important to us."

Filing Fee Contributed.

The $50 Smith paid to the State Treasurer so that he could file his declaration of candidacy with the Secretary of State, and so get his name on the ballot, came from nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars contributed by W P A workers, he said. He has no precinct organization, not even a central organization for the district. There is no treasury. Whenever one of his supporters acquires a little money from contributions he has some cards printed, and they are passed around. So far, 20,000 have been printed.

"Take these fellows here," Smith said, indicating the group of about 60 working on the bridle path. "Everyone of them has about 25 of my cards in his pockets. Next week we'll all be scattered on different jobs, and that's how the word is spread."

How many active workers did the candidate have in the ranks of the W P A? He thought about 4000 "active and semi-active." "You know how it is," he added, "you get a group of a dozen together and they are all enthusiastic, but when they are scattered, maybe six or eight of them will turn out to work for you."

The foreman, who had gone on his way, sent word back that he wanted to see Smith—privately. Candidate Smith, to the foreman, was just what the number on the button he wore on his shirt proclaimed him to be—No. 18,533 on the W P A rolls.

Hastily Smith set off over the hill to the appointed place. "I've got to go now," he said apologetically, "he sent for me, and after all, I've got to eat, if I never get elected."

Seen later at his home, Smith told the reporter the foreman was pretty indignant, and had taken him before the general superintendent of all W P A workers in the park. The superintendent, however, had merely cautioned him "in a nice way" against campaigning for election while on the job.

But if Smith ever gets to Congress—a red-headed W P A foreman had better watch his step.

JURY WEIGHS CASE OF THREE ACCUSED OF FRAUD AT ALTON

Mrs. Irene Kite and Co-defendants Deny Demanding $600 From Postal Clerk.

The case against Mrs. Irene Kite of Alton, slot machine smasher; her husband, Daniel, and William Williams, charged with conspiracy to defraud an Alton postal clerk of $600, went to a jury in Circuit Court at Edwardsville at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Late last night Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge ordered the jury locked up for the night and it was unlikely a verdict, if reached, would be reported before tomorrow morning.

The three defendants denied the charge from the witness stand, after the State closed its case, based principally on the testimony of a co-defendant, Earl Plumb, who had pleaded guilty, and of the postal clerk, William O. McLaughlin. The latter, 64 years old, testified Kite and Williams entered a hotel room in Alton, Jan. 7, where he was visiting with Plumb, and demanded money from him under threats. He said he paid $300, and agreed to pay a similar sum in June.

Mrs. Kite vehemently denied joining in the alleged conspiracy and disclosed that since December the Alton Law and Order League, an anti-gambling group, had paid her $50 a month as an investigator and that she received an additional $50 a month from a group of citizens interested in the league.

300 GALLONS OF ALCOHOL SEIZED; TWO MEN DETAINED

Truck Driver Attracted Attention of Detectives by Weaving Through Traffic.

About 300 gallons of alcohol in five-gallon tins were seized last night by city detectives who pursued and stopped an automobile which had attracted their attention by weaving through traffic on Page avenue near Grand boulevard.

The driver of the automobile, who gave his name as Frank Genovese, and his companion, who said he was Christopher Maniscalco, were booked to be held for Federal agents.

None of the tins bore Federal alcohol tax stamps, the detectives said. The tins were piled to the roof of the two-door sedan, and held in place by a thin partition back of the driver's seat. Several of the tins were opened by Detective-Sergeant William Greenspan and Detectives William Powell and James Ogden, who participated in the arrest.

Genovese, 25 years old, said he resided in the 1400 block of Blair avenue, and Maniscalco, 20, said he lived in the 3900 block of Evans avenue. Both refused to tell where they obtained the alcohol or their destination. The automobile bore Illinois license plates.

WRIT AGAINST PAYING $150,000 POKER LOSS

Englishman Accuses Brother of Fanny Brice of "Trick and Device."

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 30. — The game advanced to where there were $340,000 in checks and I. O. U.'s in the pot. It was stud poker, and three of the five players dropped out. When all bets were finished and the hole cards turned up, one player had two pairs, kings over jacks, and the other had three sevens.

Harry T. Clifton, member of a wealthy English family and a visitor here, told District Attorney Buron Fitts today, after obtaining a temporary court order halting payment on his checks for $150,000, that he held the two pairs. Lew Brice, former song and dance man and brother of Fanny Brice, the comedienne, held the three sevens, he said.

Clifton charged "trick and device, and misrepresentation," claiming Brice had represented himself as a wealthy man, capable of paying a similar loss, had the cards gone against him.

The other players, Clifton said in his statement, were Tommy Guinan, brother of the late Texas Guinan, Jack Reynolds and George Lewis.

He said that two years ago he had met Brice and Lewis, who represented himself as a millionaire, that he lost $10,000 to them in a poker game and thought nothing of it. A week ago, he said, he met Guinan, Lewis, Reynolds and Brice in Long Beach.

Clifton said the five played "dealer's choice," and he lost about $1000. Then came the big hand. He had kings back to back, Clifton said, and had bet $50,000 up to the last card. On the fifth card he got his second jack, while Brice had only a pair of sevens showing, so he bet another $100,000. Then Brice called, he related, and turned over the third seven.

Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson granted a restraining order against a Los Angeles bank, where payment was to have been made. The $50,000 check was on a New York bank and a $100,000 draft was on a London bank.

Brice said Clifton had appeared to be a good loser.

State Attorney-General U. S. Webb recently held in effect that draw poker was legal, provided there was no house "take," but held stud poker was specifically defined in the penal code as a game of chance and therefore illegal.

KIRKWOOD CHIEF OF POLICE DEMOTED BY CITY COUNCIL

Frank G. Weiss Appointed to Replace Earl Lewis, "for the Sake of Harmony."

Earl Lewis was demoted from his position as chief of the Kirkwood police department to the rank of patrolman yesterday by the City Council of Kirkwood. Mayor A. S. Kinyon said the change was made for the "sake of harmony." Lewis refused to comment.

In Lewis' place the council appointed Frank G. Weiss, Constable of Bonhomme Township. The chief's salary is $210 a month, while that of patrolman is $150 a month. There are now nine patrolmen in the department. One of them is George Schroeder, who was demoted from chief last year to make room for Lewis.

The council also appointed Frank Thompson to succeed Theodore Bopp as building commissioner, and appointed George Kummer to succeed Carl Buff as foreman of the Water Department.

ALDERMEN ABOLISH POSITION OF SPECIAL TAX ATTORNEY

Job of Assistant City Counselor at $4200 a Year Is Created in Law Department.

An ordinance making several changes in salaries and positions in the city Law Department was passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen yesterday. It abolished the $5000-a-year job as special tax attorney which was held by John G. Burkhardt, killed in an automobile accident recently.

A new place as Associate City Counselor was created, at $4200 a year. Counselor Edgar H. Wayman said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had an appointee in mind, but did not know whether this man would accept. The salary of Andrew Reis, assistant counselor, was increased from $2500 to $2700 a year and that of Francis Finley investigator, from $1800 to $2200.

The board, which has been in daily session since Tuesday to consider the annual budget and tax rate bills, adjourned to May 13.

Child in Kitchen Scalded.

Doris Mae, 16 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Andell, 2457A Kosciusko street, was seriously scalded yesterday afternoon when her mother, Mrs. Irene Andell, accidentally struck a basin of hot water against a chair in which the child was seated in the kitchen of their home.

GIFT TO WILLIAMSBURG ON EXHIBITION HERE

Painting of David Meade Jr. Given by Prof. Tyrrell Williams to Historic City.

The gift of an oil painting of David Meade Jr., member of an old Virginia family, to Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., was announced yesterday by Prof. Tyrrell Williams of Washington University, great-great-grandson of Meade.

The painting, thought to have been executed in about 1752 by Thomas Hudson, was given to Prof. Williams last November by an aunt, Mrs. Laura C. Williams of Washington. It will be on display for several days at the Francis D. Healy Art Gallery, 4526 Olive street, after which it will be shipped to the group directing restoration of the historic Virginia settlement.

TERMINAL R. R. TRACKS AND RIVERFRONT PARK

Elevated Line Is Major Problem in Planning of Memorial, Board Officer Says.

After an inspection of the riverfront site of the proposed Thomas Jefferson-National Expansion Memorial, Edmund H. Abrahams of Savannah, Ga., vice-president of the National Park Service Advisory Board, said yesterday he could not conceive of a satisfactory development of the memorial as long as the elevated tracks of the Terminal Railroad remain standing on the wharf.

"There are immense problems involved in this development, unlike those which have been faced anywhere else in public park plans, and one of the most conspicuous is what to do with the tracks," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

Abrahams, who was in St. Louis on his way to Santa Fe, N. M., where he will preside at a meeting of the board this week, expressed enthusiasm for the riverfront memorial proposal and said it was one in which the board, which has only advisory powers, was greatly interested.

Here with Abrahams, who is chairman of the Savannah Park and Tree Commission, were Harold C. Bryant, an assistant director of the park service, and Ronald Lee, acting head of the service's branch of historic sites and buildings, who also will attend the Santa Fe meeting.

"We have got hold of a whale of an idea in attempting to memorialize the national expansion of the United States," Bryant said. "That's why we're anxious to have the members of the Advisory Board see the setting and offer their advice in our planning."

John L. Nagle, superintendent of the memorial, also will be at Santa Fe to present the analysis which his staff has made of the factors of the expansion and their relative importance, soliciting the members' judgment of the interpretation.

Nagle added that the board's opinion also would be sought on several questions, such as the treatment of the Old Courthouse and the Old Cathedral in the general design. The park service has announced that the final plan would be decided in open competition of architects and engineers after a general scheme has been devised.

Two other members of the board, Col. Richard Lieber of Indianapolis, former director of Indiana State parks, and Mrs. Reau E. Folk, Nashville, Tenn., regent of the Ladies' Hermitage Association, were to be in the city today for first-hand information on the memorial on their way to Santa Fe.

The board is composed of 11 members appointed by the Secretary of the Interior under the Historic Sites and Buildings Act. A special three-man committee of the board visited here last fall to prepare a report for their colleagues.

ANIMAL CIRCUS AT ZOO TODAY IF WEATHER IS WARM ENOUGH

Chimpanzees, Elephants, Lions, Tigers and Leopards on Season's Schedule.

Providing the weather is warm, the three-ring circus at the Forest Park Zoo, including the chimpanzee, trained elephant, and lion, tiger and leopard acts, will begin today, with simultaneous shows at 11 a. m. and 2:30 and 4 p. m.

Director George P. Vierheller said the temperature must be at least 66 for the elephant and cat shows to be held and at least 72 for the young chimpanzees to perform.

The cats perform in the cage just west of the lion house, the three young elephants have had a new ring built for them in the hoofed animal inclosure just east of the lion house, and Jackie and his gang of chimpanzees are seen in their theater at the other end of the Zoo near the sea lion pool.

During the week the schedule for the shows is as follows: Jackie and the chimpanzees at 10:30 a. m. and 2:15 p. m.; cats at 11 a. m. and 3:15 p. m.; and elephants at 11:30 a. m. and 2:45 p. m.

Among the special attractions today will be the first public showing of the five lion cubs born last November and of the echidna, or spiny anteater from Australia, which arrived Friday.

'BLIND' CONVICT SEES, ADMITS 4-YEAR HOAX

Put in Cell With Real Blind Man, Prisoner Says 'You've Worn Me Out.'

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 30.—The story of a convict who faked blindness for four years at the State penitentiary before admitting his hoax was disclosed today by Warden J. M. Sanders.

James Creighton, 38 years old, serving a life term from Jasper County for the murder of Coyne Hatton at Webb City in 1931, attempted to puncture his eyes with a nail file in 1934. After hospital treatment and despite the contention of physicians that he could see, Creighton maintained until only recently that he could not see at all.

Twenty-seven months' confinement in a basement cell failed to shake Creighton's story, but he abandoned his pretense after prison officials had placed him in a cell with an actual blind man.

"You've worn me out," he confessed to Sanders, after spending a short period with Luther Allen, blind, and Allen's brother, Walter, who was placed in charge of the other two.

The warden said he thought Creighton just gave up after failure of his four years' effort to convince officials of his blindness. He thinks putting Creighton with Allen showed him how helpless a blind man really is and gave him the "creeps."

The Allens are serving terms of four and six years, respectively, for larceny from Howell County.

Creighton has been assigned to kitchen duty.

AL SMITH JR. TELLS JUDGE HE CANNOT PAY ALIMONY

Says His Only Assets Are $5 in Bank and Clothes on His Back.

ROME, N. Y., April 30. — Al Smith Jr., son of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, told Supreme Court Justice James T. Cross today that he was practically penniless and could not make alimony payments of $200 a month to Mrs. Bertha Gott Smith of Syracuse, who obtained a separation decree in 1937.

Furthermore, Smith declared, he owned his father $3856 borrowed to pay alimony and as assets he had only $5 in the bank and the clothes on his back.

The statements were made in a court appearance in which Smith was directed to show cause why he could not make alimony payments of $200 monthly or be held in contempt of court.

Justice Cross deferred decision until May 13.

BENJAMIN ALTHEIMER, EX-ST. LOUISAN, DIES

Retired Investment Banker Succumbs in New York—Burial Here.

Benjamin Altheimer, until his retirement 23 years ago, an investment banker in St. Louis, died of the infirmities of age yesterday in New York City, where he had resided since 1917. He was 88 years old.

During his residence here Mr. Altheimer was active in many charities. He was the founder of "Bundle day," when bundles of discarded clothing and other items were collected for distribution to the poor. This practice continued in St. Louis for many years after its inception in the winter of 1911-12, and spread to other cities.

When he retired he was president of Altheimer & Rawlings Investment Co., now Stifel, Nicolaus & Co. Herman C. Stifel and Louis J. Nicolaus had been associated with him in the business and his interest was acquired by Gerard S. Parsons. The firm then became the Stifel-Nicolaus-Parsons Investment Co.

Burial in St. Louis.

Funeral services will be held in New York Monday. The body will be sent to St. Louis for burial, probably Tuesday, in Mount Sinai Cemetery.

Mr. Altheimer's only close relative who survives is his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Weil of New York. His wife died 55 years ago.

Born in Germany, Mr. Altheimer came to the United States at the age of 18. For a few years he was associated with a brother in the general merchandise business at Fort Smith, Ark., then went to Memphis, Tenn., where he entered the wholesale grocery and cotton business. After several years abroad he returned and established himself in St. Louis.

He became a director of the Eisenstadt Manufacturing Co., owned by his wife's family, and in 1886 turned to the brokerage and investment banking business, specializing in railroad shares and bonds.

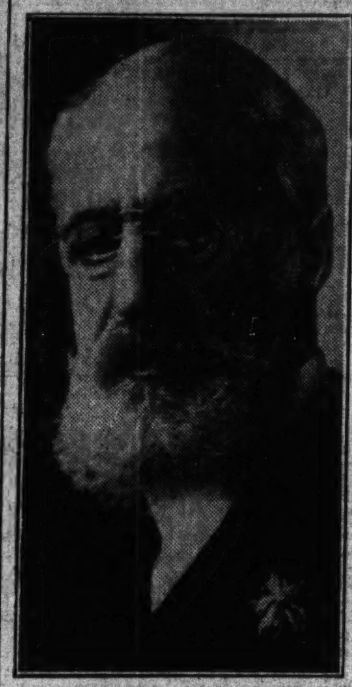
Established "Bundle Day."

In recognition of his efforts in furthering "Bundle day," Archbishop Glennon presented a loving vup to him several years before he left St. Louis. On that occasion the Archbishop referred to him as a "Napoleon of charity."

The idea for "Bundle day" came to him, Mr. Altheimer said, when he was accosted by a hungry, ill clad man when he was returning to his hotel one winter night after attending a $15-a-plate banquet. He fed the beggar, and gave him clothes, but was unable to sleep that night, he said because he kept thinking of the ragged stranger. The first "Bundle day" was held a week later.

Mr. Altheimer was also instrumental in promoting general public observance of Flag day, on June 14. He was at Fort Sam Houston in Texas on June 14, 1910, and saw the Army's flag ceremonies. They impressed him so greatly he induced schools and churches in St. Louis to join in celebrating the day the following year, and from St. Louis the observance spread elsewhere.

Dies in New York



BENJAMIN ALTHEIMER.

Advocated Charity Tax.

Years ago, in a newspaper interview, he advocated a charity tax, which might be considered a forerunner of the present social security taxes.

"Why shouldn't we have a tax to support those who deserve charitable aid?" he asked. "Everyone would share the burden and the tax scale could be arranged so that those who have most could be taxed in proportion."

He was one of the founders of Temple Israel in St. Louis, and a various times was treasurer of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives; trustee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations; director of the Cleveland Orphan Asylum; director of United Jewish Charities, the Provident Association, and the St. Louis Public Library.

THREAT TO AGAIN TIE UP FEDERAL WORK IN ST. LOUIS

Building Trades Unions Protest Against Use of W P A Men at Jefferson Barracks.

A second tieup of Government-financed construction in the St. Louis area, in protest against use of W P A workmen on jobs in the $600,000 building reconstruction program at Jefferson Barracks claimed by A. F. of L. building trades unions, was threatened by the Building Trades Council yesterday.

"We may have to stop all Government work again," John J. Church, secretary of the council, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. He said protests on the Jefferson Barracks situation had been sent to Harry L. Hopkins, W P A Administrator, and to Missouri members of Congress, pointing out that some of the 1700 W P A workers at the army post were doing plumbing, plastering and electrical installation, at 88 cents an hour, work for which union men get from $1.50 to $1.75 an hour.

A. F. of L. workmen recently struck on public work financed in part by P W A grants in the city, St. Louis County and St. Charles County over the St. Charles bridge labor dispute. They resumed work when the bridge job was stopped pending negotiations for a settlement, which was reached last week.

OKLAHOMA PLEADS IN VAIN FOR FEDERAL WELFARE FUNDS

Social Security Board Says State Board Must Comply With Law Before Being Reinstated.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30. — The Social Security Board rejected today a request by the Oklahoma Public Welfare Commission to be made eligible for Federal public assistance grants.

The board cut off the Oklahoma board from Federal funds on March 2 on the ground that it had failed to comply with the Social Security Act.

Chairman A. J. Altmeyer of the Social Security Board wired John Addleman, chairman of the Oklahoma commission, that "until the Oklahoma Welfare Commission has shown that appropriate action has been taken and has made a full and complete factual showing that the plans in their operation are now in substantial compliance with the provisions of the Social Security Act, the Social Securtiy Board is without power to make a grant."

MAN DIES WHO SAID HE WAS HURT IN FALL ON STREET CAR

Henry Choen's Version Was That Vehicle Stopped Suddenly When He Prepared to Get Off.

Henry Choen, 49-year-old bookkeeper, 3533 North Grand boulevard, died yesterday at Christian Hospital of injuries he said he suffered April 21 when he fell on a southbound Grand street car that stopped suddenly as it approached Olive street.

Police were told Choen was thrown against a seat in the car as he prepared to get off. When he reached home he called a physician, who directed his transfer to the hospital. There his injuries were diagnosed as a fractured right hip, injured lung and internal injuries.

Public Service Co. officials told police they had no record of such an accident.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30.—The Kansas City Bar Association voted today to support Judge James V. Billings of Kennett, indorsed by Tom Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic boss, for the State Supreme Court.

The association also voted to support Paul A. Buzard, likewise indorsed by Pendergast, for the Jackson County Circuit Court.

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark is supporting Judge James M. Douglas for re-election to the Supreme Court, and John M. Cleary for the Circuit bench.

BLANTON'S OPINION UPHELD ON RIVERFRONT VOTE FRAUD

Justice Department Says Any Irregularity Is Local Not Federal Matter.

Federal District Attorney Harry C. Blanton announced yesterday that he had received a letter from Assistant Attorney-General Brien McMahon, informing him the Department of Justice concurred in Blanton's opinion that there was no violation of Federal law in the frauds in the $7,500,000 riverfront bond election of Sept. 10, 1935.

The Federal Government, McMahon said, had no direct interest in the election, which was solely the concern of the local govenment. Any irregularity, he continued, was not a Federal offense, but a local matter to be handled by the State authorities.

Blanton's opinion was made public April 5, having been given at the request of a Federal Bureau of Investigation representative. After issuance of the bonds, the city turned over $2,250,000 of the proceeds to the Federal Government, which pledged three times that amount, to make a total of $9,000,000 available for the memorial. As told in the Post-Dispatch April 20, the question of whether ballot boxes in this bond election may be opened for State grand jury investigation of the frauds is still pending before the Supreme Court of Missouri. After next Sept. 10 the statute of limitations will bar institution of prosecution of persons responsible for the frauds.

CONGRESS EAGER TO ADJOURN AND GET BACK HOME

For This Reason Action on Bank Holding Company Bills Seems Unlikely This Session.

LENDING-SPENDING MEASURE NEXT

Ear-Marking of Its Funds Urged—Expected to Be Ready for House Week From Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Aversion to doing much about anti-trust or other controversial matters at this session of Congress became increasingly manifest today. Administration leaders concentrated on whipping President Roosevelt's lending-spending program into shape for an early vote.

Informed legislators said the primary concern of most members was to complete action on still pending phases of the $4,512,000,000 lending-spending program, clean up the tax revision bill and a few other measures and get back home to their political fence-mending.

Talk of adjournment between May 15 and June 15 raised an obstacle to action this year on the abolition of bank holding companies, on which the President asked for prompt legislation in his monopoly message yesterday. But Legislators generally agreed there was a good chance that funds would be voted, as Roosevelt requested for an investigation of the "concentration of economic control."

Many members expressed the opinion that eagerness to adjourn precluded any chance of forcing a vote this session on the wage-hour bill, for which the House Rules Committee refused legislative right-of-way yesterday. Proponents of the measure went ahead, however, with arrangements to circulate a petition to force the bill to the floor. To be successful, the petition must be signed by 218 members.

Spending-Lending Bill.

Meanwhile, a House Appropriations Subcommittee agreed tentatively to end hearings Monday on the President's public works and relief bill and have it ready for consideration by the House the following Monday.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York and the leaders of organized labor's two major factions—John L. Lewis of the C I C and William Green of the American Federation of Labor will be the principal witnesses at final hearings.

Representative Woodrum (Dem.), Virginia, member of the subcommittee, disclosed that it was considering a proposal to put an end to "blank check" appropriations by supplying the funds direct to the agencies charged with their expenditure instead of to the President. Emphasizing that no decision had been reached, Woodrum asserted the committee was anxious to give Congress as much control as possible over the funds.

Other members said such action would prevent the diversion of the funds to projects unauthorized by Congress, such as the Florida ship canal and the Passamaquoddy Bay tide-harnessing project.

Ear-Marking Plan Under Way.

The subcommittee is considering writing one bill to provide $2,500,000,000 for relief, public works, the Farm Security Administration and the National Youth Administration. It spent today receiving suggestions from members of Congress on ways to spend this fund. The witnesses suggested that the following amounts be ear-marked for these purposes:

1. $120,000,000 for the construction of five army air bases in this country and Alaska, and improvement of existing army posts.
2. $200,000,000 for the Rural Electrification Administration.
3. $50,000,000 for the construction of small lakes and dams in the dust bowl.

Representative Beiter (Dem.), New York, urged the subcommittee to recommend that the Public Works Administration be made a permanent agency.

The President's anti-monopoly message drew the fire of Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, a frequent critic of the administration. The New Yorker declared the message was "terrible" and predicted the proposed investigations would be "a witch hunt."

"Poor old business," Copeland commented. "The President didn't leave out anyone. Even the fellow who's got some patents is affected. Instead of quieting business and restoring confidence, the message will disturb everything."

As to Monopoly Message.

The Senate Judiciary Committee may consider the message Monday, but members predicted little would be done except to appoint subcommittees to study the various problems presented.

Senator Burke (Dem.), Nebraska, asserted that when appropriations for the proposed monopoly investigations were considered, the agencies which would spend the money—Federal Trade Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission and the Department of Justice—should be required to "make a showing that the expenditure is justified."

Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, in an address to the American Seminar, an organization of educators and business men, said the Borah-O'Mahoney bill for Federal licensing of interstate corporations offered a solution of the monopoly problem.

Both Senate and House, in recess today, have relatively light schedules next week. Democratic Leader Barkley of the Senate plans to bring the administration's big navy bill to a vote about Tuesday. He predicted final action by the Senate on the tax revision bill early in the week. The House is expected to complete action on that measure Thursday and send the bill to the President.

HOOVER FOR REVISING ANTI-MONOPOLY LAWS

But He Favors Inquiry Into Federal Competition With Private Enterprise.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 30.—Former President Herbert Hoover said here today he favored a revision of the anti-monopoly laws but the investigation preceding it should include an inquiry "into the methods of government competition with private enterprise."

Hoover arrived from his home in Palo Alto today and left tonight to attend a grass roots convention in Oklahoma May 5, after which he planned to go to Chicago and Philadelphia.

"Naturally I support a revision of the anti-monopoly laws to strengthen competition," he said in an interview. "I recommended a revision to the Democratic Congress seven years ago. They needed revision then, and they need it very much worse now.

"This investigation in order to be effective, however, ought to be nonpartisan and ought to include an investigation into the methods of Government competition with private enterprise.

"One can get a great deal of humor out of all these contradictions if there is any satisfaction in it. Monopolistic practices in the country were enormously increased by the N R A. That was a blood brother of the Fascist corporate state and of the Nazi kartel system.

"Despite the fact the N R A was killed by the Supreme Court, the blessing given to monopolistic practices at that time still lingers in the country.

"We might recall that the central idea of the N R A was proposed by the United States Chamber of Commerce in 1932 and rejected by the Republican administration; that the president of the Chamber of Commerce supported the New Deal in that election. This was part of the New Deal. Contrast that with the attacks made on business by the New Deal during the whole of the last two years.

"However, I don't expect consistency in these times."

AT LOWEST COST BRINGS YOU FEATURES WHICH HAVE MADE HOLLAND FURNACES FAMOUS THE WORLD OVER FOR HOME HEATING EFFICIENCY

IN line with the nation's drive to stimulate building and modernizing by reducing costs, Holland has specially developed this low priced furnace. A furnace of such quality could not have been possible at such a price without Holland's unequalled engineering facilities, and over 30 years of specialized experience in home heating.

Illustrated on the left are some of the many invaluable features engineered into this furnace. These features (A, B & C) combined produce (D) the exclusive Holland combustion principle of amazing efficiency. The fire is hottest directly against the castings, insuring a maximum transfer of heat to air inside the casing—more usable heat from every ounce of coal. All castings made of Hollandized Iron.

Installed the scientific Holland way, this furnace cannot fail to give satisfactory heating service for many years to come. If, therefore, you need a new furnace but price has been an obstacle up to now, why wait any longer? At least call the nearest Holland Factory Branch and get all the facts.

ALL THESE FEATURES . . . IN NO OTHER LOW PRICED FURNACE!

HOLLAND'S EXCLUSIVE COMBUSTION PRINCIPLE

What IS YOUR HEATING PROBLEM?

DOES YOUR HEATING PLANT NEED CLEANING?
WE CLEAN ANY HEATING PLANT AND CHIMNEY AND TAKE ALL THE DIRT AWAY
ARE REPAIRS OR ALTERATIONS NEEDED?
ARE SOME ROOMS HARD TO HEAT?
DO YOU WANT AUTOMATIC HEAT?
OR IS IT LOW-COST AIR CONDITIONING?

Perhaps a thorough cleaning is all your heating plant needs to restore original efficiency. If so, Holland's Giant Vacuum Cleaner cannot be equalled for thoroughness. It removes soot, ash, and dust from the entire system including even the chimney. Many patrons say the low cost of this service is repaid over and over again in fuel savings and increased comfort.

Quite often, replacement of damaged parts or slight alterations may greatly increase the efficiency of your heating plant. The quality of materials, expert engineering service and skilled workmanship supplied by Holland insures your complete satisfaction with all such work.

Holland's unique Forced Air Unit not only forces heat to those hard-to-heat rooms but also permits operating your furnace at lower temperature. This substantially cuts down fuel consumption and makes your furnace last longer. It frequently makes a new heating system unnecessary.

If your heating plant is sound but you want it entirely automatic, by all means inform yourself about Holland automatic burners for coal or oil. You will find prices surprisingly low, yet, for efficiency and economy, Holland equipment for any fuel is not surpassed by the costliest.

New air heating and circulating principles in this sensational Automatic Furnace Air Conditioner provide complete, automatic winter air conditioning with gas or oil at almost unbelievably low first cost and operating cost. Also produces decided cooling effect in summer.

FREE Furnace Inspection!
Whatever your heating problem, it will be completely solved at lowest possible cost if you call in the engineer at Holland's local factory branch. He is fully equipped by special training to analyze your difficulties and advise precisely what will correct them. He has every facility to carry out his recommendations. Have him make a thorough, scientific inspection of your heating plant. You pay only for any services you may decide on.

EARLE BORROWED OF JOHN LEWIS, MARGIOTTI SAYS

Pennsylvanian Governor, Senator Guffey and D. L. Lawrence Got $40,000 Loan, He Declares.

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 30.—Former Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti charged tonight that "martial law" was declared in Johnstown and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's plant closed last summer by Gov. George H. Earle at the "request of Senator Guffey, John L. Lewis and others." Margiotti was recently ousted as attorney-general by Gov. Earle.

In an address to a rally at Point Stadium, Margiotti self-styled "middle-of-the-road" candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Governorship, asserted: "The governor told me that Guffey, Lewis, Kennedy and others insisted that the plant be closed because that was the only way to win the strike for the C I O.

(Lieut.-Gov. Thomas Kennedy is backed by Senator Joseph F. Guffey for the Democratic nomination).

Margiotti continued: "It will interest you to know that only a few months before martial law was inflicted upon this community and the plant shamefully closed, Gov. Earle, Senator Guffey and David L. Lawrence who then were working together but who now have split over the spoils of boss rule borrowed $40,000 from John L. Lewis to use for political purposes.

Says Lewis Wants Money Back.

"I want you to ask yourselves whether that loan had anything to do with the declaration of martial law and the closing of the plant. I can tell you that the governor's aspirations to become President of the United States had plenty to do with it.

"I want you to ask yourselves whether the hold Lewis had on the bosses and the votes he might be able to club into line for them had anything to do with it.

"Incidentally, now that Guffey and Lawrence have parted Lewis is wailing loudly for the return of his money. I don't know whether he'll get it back or not."

Margiotti said that, as attorney-general, "I pleaded with Governor Earle not to declare martial law and not to close the plant.

Suggests Gov. Earle Quit.

Previously, in a speech at Harrisburg, Margiotti declared that Lawrence, Secretary of the Commonwealth and Ralph M. Bashore, state secretary of Labor, should be ousted.

Lawrence and Bashore were named in the Dauphin County (Harrisburg) District Attorney's petition for the grand jury inquiry as receiving "large sums of money . . . in return for their influence in causing certain legislation to be enacted."

Margiotti said "some people . . . think that Gov. Earle should step aside."

The new Attorney-General Guy K. Bard, repeated today his decision to stay out of the grand jury investigation and press his own inquiry.

A third investigation is a Works Progress Administration checking of charges that Senator Guffey's forces were coercing W P A workers into suporting the Kennedy ticket.

LEO BROTHERS AGAIN LOSES PLEA FOR PAROLE FROM JOLIET

St. Louisan Convicted of Killing "Jake" Lingle Must Keep on Serving 14-Year Term.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 30.—The State Pardon Board rejected today the clemency application of Leo V. Brothers of St. Louis who is serving a 14-year sentence at Joliet Penitentiary for the murder in June, 1930, of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter.

Brothers' petition for a parole was one of 21 denied by the board. The board did not elaborate on its decision. Chairman W. C. Jones of the Pardon and Parole Board, declined to discuss Brothers' plea, saying any comment would have to come from Gov. Horner.

Brothers has made other attempts to gain freedom. Two years ago William Hale Thompson, former Mayor of Chicago, appeared in his behalf. The hearing on Brothers' latest application was held several months ago.

Swedish-American Fund Drive.

Nils Grant, 3417 McCausland avenue, has been named to head a committee of 40 formed in St. Louis to raise $1000 for endowment of the Swedish-American Museum in Philadelphia. A nation-wide campaign for $750,000 for this purpose has been announced by the Swedish-American Tercentenary Association. The drive, being conducted in 1037 communities, will close May 14.

AUSTRIA TO BE SLICED INTO SMALL DISTRICTS

Nazis to Partition It Into "Gaus" as Soon as Hitler Returns From Rome.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 30.—Organized Nazification of Austria and conversion of the State's political division into "Gaus," or subdistricts, will begin May 10 when Chancellor Hitler's visit to Italy comes to an end, a press bureau official announced today.

The spokesman added that "Aryanization" of Vienna then would be pushed with vigor. In connection with recent humiliation of Jews on the streets of Vienna, he said:

"Such violent encroachments upon Jews will not be tolerated."

A Nazi official, meanwhile, declared the decision to dissolve some Catholic organizations would cause no difficulty because "Austrian church authorities are co-operating in a friendly spirit with National Socialist plans to eliminate politics from the church."

Ecclesiastical authorities disclosed Friday that German secret police had demanded that all Catholic organizations in Austria, except those serving purely religious or charitable purposes, be disbanded.

Charges against Kurt Schuschnigg's administration continued during the week. Old pictures of the former Chancellor were reprinted in newspapers with the caption, "The Hangman Chancellor."

Schuschnigg was blamed for the execution of Nazis after the 1934 putsch. Nazi officials expressed the opinion that Hitler might content himself with censuring Schuschnigg morally by "exploiting all the cruelty and crookedness of his Jewish regime," and that he may not be brought to trial at all.

Nora Gregor, the actress, who was married Dec. 2 to Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, was notified in the official Wiener Zeitung to appear in court and defend herself against a charge of owing a sum equivalent to $300 to a millinery.

The notice said her whereabouts was unknown. It was believed she was in Switzerland.

MISSING WOMAN DIED OF COLD

California Sheriff Finds No Sign of Violence to Rodeo Performer.

By the Associated Press.

MINDEN, Nev., April 30. — Exhaustion and exposure was given by Sheriff William Park today as the probable cause of the death of 22-year-old Mrs. Marian Gilbert, former California rodeo performer, who disappeared last Feb. 6.

An autopsy on the body, which was found yesterday in a snow drift, failed to show any evidence of violence. An inquest will be held Monday. The woman's husband, William James Gilbert, disappeared early last winter, but re-appeared this week after several months in Arizona.

UNION MEMBER FREED OF JAIL SENTENCE

Appeals Court Rules Injunction Void Because Labor Group Is Non-Suable.

A mandate issued by the St. Louis Court of Appeals was filed in Circuit Court yesterday directing the discharge of Elmer McKean, 4161 Westminster place, from a sentence to serve 20 days in jail for contempt of court.

The sentence was imposed in June, 1936, by Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley, who found McKean guilty of violating a temporary restraining order prohibiting the Laundry, Linen and Towel Chauffeurs and Helpers Union, Local No. 366, and its officers, members and agents, from unlawful picketing and violence in connection with a strike involving 32 laundry firms.

McKean, a member of the union, was charged with having sent a metal ballbearing from a sling-slot through the windshield of a laundry truck. The act was alleged to have occurred Feb. 26, 1935, after the issuance of the injunction by Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan. When the contempt sentence was entered, McKean appealed and was released on bond.

In discharging McKean the Court of Appeals held that the original injunction order was void because the union, being a coluntary unincorporated association, is a non-suable entity; further, that as the order was obviously leveled against the union the injunction as affecting its members and agents was merely incidental.

Judge O'Malley had sustained a motion dissolving the injunction as to the union for the reason it was not suable but permitted the order to remain in force as to individuals.

GOVERNMENT DROPS SUIT AGAINST HAMILTON-BROWN

Shoe Firm Agrees to Pay $1500 and Court Costs; Penalty Action Sought $60,300,

The suit of the Government to collect $69,300 in penalties assessed against the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. for failure to furnish certain information requested by the Federal Trade Commission was dropped yesterday after the company agreed to pay $1500 and court costs.

United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton, authorized by the Attorney-General's office to dismiss the petition, said it was the old management which had refused the information and that the new management had supplied the facts.

About two years ago, he said, the commission, under authority of an act of Congress allowing it to investigate agricultural income, sent a questionnaire to the shoe company asking data on purchases, sales, principal customers and other matters. The company failed to answer some questions, he said, and a section of the act fixing a penalty of $100 a day was invoked.

JEAN GUALDONI NAMED STREET COMMISSIONER

24th Ward Leader Gets $6000-a-Year Job, Succeeding Col. E. J. McMahon.

Louis Jean Gualdoni, who in more than 20 years of practical politics has won and maintained control of the Twenty-fourth Ward, largest in the city, got the best job of his career yesterday when Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann appointed him Street Commissioner at $6000 a year.

The Twenty-fourth Ward Democratic Committeeman was working as superintendent of excavation in the Department of Streets and Sewers at $2700 a year when Gov. Stark Friday afternoon unexpectedly appointed Col. Edmund J. McMahon, the Street Commissioner, as State Liquor Control Commissioner. McMahon went from a $6000 job to a $4500 position, while Gualdoni's salary, in succeeding him, was more than doubled.

The new Street Commissioner began formation of a political organization while serving as a Federal prohibition agent from 1919 to 1923. The nucleus of his organization was centered in the district known as "The Hill," but his influence quickly spread throughout the Southwest ward, which had 29,687 registered voters in the tabulation of last December.

At National Conventions.

A member of the Democratic State Committee, he has been delegate at all the recent national conventions. Backed by Mayor Dickmann, he was elected to the City Committee in 1936, defeating Recorder John P. English in a factional fight and establishing his claim as boss of the Twenty-fourth ward. The factional difference since has been composed.

In 1932, Gualdoni supported Bennett Champ Clark in his successful race for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate against Charles M. Howell, the Pendergast candidate. Two years later Gualdoni broke with St. Louis associates to support Harry S. Truman, Pendergast entry, in the campaign in which Truman defeated Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis for the senatorial nomination.

After the 1932 campaign Gualdoni was an aspirant for the appointment as Internal Revenue Collector, but Thomas J. Sheehan got the place instead. At that time Gualdoni was working as an automobile salesman.

In 1934 he settled for $2177 a $4589 Federal income tax lien against him for 1923, 1924 and 1925 in which the Government contended his total income for the period was $79,004. Gualdoni said it was only $10,465. In those years he was associated with two brothers in operation of a grocery at 5579 Manchester avenue.

Tiggard Gets New Job.

Succeeding Gualdoni as excavation superintendent is John Tiggard, Committeeman from the Tenth Ward. He has been a clerk in the fire and police telegraph system office at $180 a month.

As State Liquor Control Supervisor, Col. McMahon succeeded Thomas J. Fitzgerald of Kansas City, active worker in Boss Pendergast's organization, who was summarily fired by Gov. Stark Friday afternoon. The removal was regarded in political circles as a reprisal by the Stark administration for the opposition of the Pendergast organization to the candidacy of Supreme Court Judge James M. Douglas of St. Louis, a Stark appointee, for the Democratic nomination to succeed himself.

Before dropping Fitzgerald and appointing McMahon, Gov. Stark conferred in St. Louis Thursday about the changes with Mayor Dickmann and Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners. Asked about the meeting and the changes which followed, the Mayor said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"I am not in any political combination with the Governor or anyone else. I am for Judge Douglas for the Supreme Court and so is the Governor. Judge Douglas is a St. Louisan and he has been indorsed by the St. Louis Democratic committee. St. Louis has no other representative on the Supreme Bench and I feel it is entitled to one. Besides, Judge Douglas is a fine lawyer and a good judge.

"The Governor and I discussed no political combination against Pendergast and I am not in any such combination."

Fatally Hurt Under Switch Engine.

SUPERIOR PROGRAM BY A CAPPELLA CHOIR

Organization's Annual Concert Given at Municipal Auditorium.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

The St. Louis A Cappella Choir, under the direction of William B. Heyne, gave its annual St. Louis concert last night in the Municipal Auditorium before an audience of about 3000. A program of superior quality, which included compositions by the immemorially great as well as the merely competent masters of the choral form, was rendered with unusual warmth and precision. The concert showed the A Cappella Choir at the top of its form, both technically and musically.

Beginning with six and eight part choruses by Orlando Gibbons, Henry Purcell, Francexo Durante and Johann Sebastian Bach, the choir showed its high purpose and the fine, intelligent insight of its director by delivering the music with the seriousness of style that befitted the subject and an emotional coloring that showed that the singers had done something more than mastered the notes. The second part of the program was devoted to works by Glinka, Tschaikowsky, Albert Kranz and Harvey Gaul and the third was a mixed group—but one that still adhered to songs of a sacred nature.

The outstanding quality of the chorus was its ability to achieve a rich variety of expression within a relatively limited dynamic range. This involved homogeneity of tone, precision, control and an emotional stress that could be applied effectively either by the whole chorus or individual singers. Another admirable attribute of the singers was the complete freedom from any striving for an extraneous effect. The singing was musicianly and appropriate to the text under consideration at all times. The concert was a great credit to the scholarship of the director and the devoted zeal of the chorus members.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB TO OPEN NEW QUARTERS TOMORROW

Formal Exercises in Rehabilitated Building of Old Columbian Club.

The Automobile Club of Missouri will formally open its new quarters in the rehabilitated building of the old Columbian Club, 3917 Lindell boulevard, in brief ceremonies tomorrow evening.

The four-story yellow brick building has been completely reconstructed inside, little of the original structure remaining but the floors. The old stairway has been torn out, new fireproof stairways and an automatic elevator installed, and ceilings have been lowered. The building is air-conditioned throughout, except for the fourth floor storerooms, and indirect lighting has been installed.

While the walls, floors and a few inside partitions are unchanged, all the old plumbing and wiring has been replaced.

On the first floor facing the entrance has been built a 50-foot oval travel counter, where touring information and advice will be given to members. A large room at the east end of the first floor has been tranformed into a members' lounge, the only one of its kind provided by an automobile club. The second and third floors are used as offices for the insurance and other business of the club. A parking lot is provided west of the building.

Cities Selected for Air Offices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Dennis Mulligan, head of the Air Commerece Bureau, has tentatively selected seven cities for regional offices of the bureau. They included New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Fort Worth, Los Angeles and Seattle. He said the establishment of regional offices was part of a reorganization intended to facilitate the field work of the bureau.

COURT COMMISSIONER URGES REVISED RULES

Hyde Says Missouri Procedure Is "Still Frozen to 1848 Model."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 30.—A plea for modernization of court procedure was made tonight by Laurance M. Hyde, commissioner of the Missouri Supreme Court, as he addressed a banquet which concluded Law day at the University of Missouri.

Pointing to the blame placed on lawyers by laymen for "slow-motion legal procedure," Hyde said that rules of procedure are the working tools of lawyers and "our rules of practice are still frozen at the 1848 model." He explained that procedure in the United States is based on old English law, which for a time was more efficient than that of the mother country but that in 1873 England followed our example by abolishing codes but went even farther by permitting its high court to alter rules of practice. As a result the new modern English code eliminates all common law procedural technicalities, marking a great advance, while Missouri is still tied to and hampered by medieval methods, he said.

Hyde said it would not be necessary to abolish the entire present code, adding "A very few changes could make a harmonious flexible system, both trial and appellate, suited to prompt dispatch of increasing judicial business."

Asserting that acts creating administrative tribunals usually emphasize the provisions that hearings shall be simple and summary and that these bodies shall have the power to make their own rules of practice and procedure, Hyde asked:

"Why do not legislatures provide them with a complete statutory code of practice and procedure?"

"Undoubtedly it is because they do not want to hamstring and delay their action, impair their efficiency, and limit their ability to promptly determine the merits of questions entrusted to them for solution," he answered.

"Why then are the courts kept in straight jackets of strict statutory procedural codes which provide so many means of delaying and evading a determination of merits of cases? Surely lawyers and Judges are not less capable than laymen of making rules of procedure, which will make possible prompt determination of cases on the merits.

"I am concerned about modernization of our procedure because I feel that it will not be in the public interest to continue to remove individual rights from the protection of the courts. I believe that men who know and respect ethical standards of the bar, and who have had the educational training required to be lawyers, should be better able than any others to solve problems of new social relations. Therefore I submit at the Bar of Public Opinion that increased litigation, due to new problems arising from modern industrial urban civilization, could be better considered and more promptly handled by lawyers and courts, if the judicial department could devise its own methods of procedure for transacting judicial business."

Hyde shared the speaking platform with Wallace Fry of Mexico, president of the Missouri Bar Association. Earlier in the day Hyde had been initiated as an honorary member of the Order of the Coif, honorary legal fraternity, along with three students, elected to membership on the basis of scholastic records. The student initiates included Morton Liebowitz, St. Joseph; Elmo Hunter, New Madrid; and William Van Matre, Mexico.

CATHOLIC COUNCIL CONVENTION TUESDAY

Two-Day Program for Woman's Archdiocese Organization Is Announced.

The Council of Catholic Women of the St. Louis archdiocese will hold its annual convention next Tuesday and Wednesday with sessions at the St. Louis Cathedral auditorium and Hotel Statler. The Rev. Nicholas W. Brinkman, pastor of the Cathedral parish, will celebrate the mass there at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and Archbishop John J. Glennon will preach the sermon.

The opening session of the convention will be held at the Cathedral auditorium at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Daniel J. McMahon, president, will preside. The evening session there at 8 o'clock will be addressed by the Rev. Joseph E. McIntire, who will talk on motor missions; the Rev. Emmet P. Crane, C. Ss. R., who will discuss Catholic Action and Youth, and Mrs. Margaret M. Brooks, president of the Jefferson City Council of Catholic Women. Mrs. Edward C. McGrath will preside.

A luncheon will follow the Wednesday morning meeting at Hotel Statler at which Mrs. Louis A. Blatterman will preside. Speakers and their subjects at the afternoon session at the hotel will be: Parent Adult Education, Dr. Leo Kennedy; How to Aid the Blind, Mrs. Mary E. Ryder, executive director of the Missouri Commission for the Blind; Methods of Teaching at St. Joseph's Institute for Deaf Mutes, Sister Sylvania of the Sisters of St. Joseph; St. Louis Rural Life Conference, the Rev. R. R. Schuler, secretary of the Catholic Rural Life Conference. Dr. Ralph B. Wagner, director of the St. Louis University department of forensics also will speak.

7 YEARS FOR EXTORTION NOTE

Man Pleads Guilty of Sending Demand to Henry Ford.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, April 30.—United States District Judge Edward J. Moinet sentenced Wesley Earl Gray, 22 years old, today, to serve seven years in the United States Reformatory at Chillicothe, O., for sending an extortion note to Henry and Edsel Ford last November.

The Judge termed Gray "a poor simp who was looking for easy money." Gray pleaded guilty.

SMOKE CONTROL CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON U. MAY 20

Dean Langsdorf Announces Meeting; Gov. Stark and Gov. Horner Asked to Attend.

A conference on coal combustion, arranged with the aid of Smoke Commissioner Raymond R. Tucker and Richard F. Wood, secretary of the St. Louis Coal Exchange, will be held on the Washington University campus May 20 and 21, it was announced yesterday by Dean A. S. Langsdorf of the School of Engineering.

Gov. Stark of Missouri and Gov. Horner of Illinois will be asked to attend the meetings, which will be addressed by representatives of mining, distribution and utilization interests.

Subjects to be discussed will include furnace design improvement, use of processed coals and other developments in the fields of chemistry and engineering which relate to smoke reduction and control.

METHODIST OPPOSITION TO UNIFICATION HEARD

Sanction by Southern Church Before Judicial Council for Decision on Legality.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 30.—Southern Methodism's sanction of union with other branches of the denomination was attacked as improper and illegal today in arguments before the nine-man Judicial Council, highest tribunal of the church.

The union, which would close a breach made between North and South Methodists in 1844 by Negro slavery, was approved yesterday, 434 to 26, by the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Church, South. Bishop Collins Denny, 84-year-old leader of the forces which fought unification before the conference, and his son, Collins Jr., former Assistant Attorney-General of Virginia, represented anti-unionists today before the council.

Representing the unification group were Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas, Tex.; J. T. Ellison, Centerville, Ala.; Judge Nathan Newby, Los Angeles; Judge Hugh A. Locke, Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. T. D. Ellis, Louisville, Ky., and Judge Walter McElreath, Atlanta.

Bishop Denny contended the unification plan would change the Southern Methodist articles of religion and that the church constitution prohibited any change in the articles without approval of "each" annual conference. He declared action of the North Mississippi Conference in rejecting the plan automatically defeated the union proposal. All other annual conferences in the Southern Church sanctioned the merger.

Bishop Denny for Union.

Bishop Moore followed Bishop Denny as the first speaker for the unificationists.

Headquarters of the Laymen's Organization for Preservation of the Southern Methodist Church were closed today but many of the members remained for the hearing before the Judicial Council.

Council approval of the merger plan would be the Southern Church's final step in unification. Widespread withdrawal of members, in case of unification, has been forecast by members of the laymen's group, with estimates ranging to 500,000. A spokesman for the organization said "we know the Methodists of the South are opposed to this union, and we don't intend to give up." Previously announced plans called for litigation in civil courts if the Judicial Council should rule against opponents of unification.

M. E. Lawson of Liberty, Mo., one of four lay members of the council, presided at the hearing. The council's decision is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

Bishop James Cannon Jr. declared tonight he believed Methodist union illegal. He made his declaration after the Judicial Council had taken under advisement the legality of the unification resolution.

Regardless of the outcome of today's hearing, physical union of the Southern Methodists, Methodist Episcopal Church (Northern) and the Methodist Protestant Church will require two years or longer, church leaders said. The Northern Episcopal Methodists and Protestant Methodists already have approved the merger.

A uniting conference, with 400 members from the Methodist Episcopal Church, 400 from the Methodist Episcopal, South, and 100 from the Methodist Protestant, will work out details of the merger, involving approximately 8,000,000 members.

This conference will be called by the Colleges of Bishops of the two Episcopal churches and the president of the General Convention of the Methodist Protestant Church probably early next spring.

Racial and sectional issues are involved in the battle of some Southern members against the unification proposal.

A new objection voiced today was "lack of democracy" within the church. "The reason the conference wasn't willing to return the unification issue to the churches for final decision was that the conference knew the congregations would defeat it," a spokesman for the opponents said.

Negro Segregation.

Under terms of the "plan of union," the church's 280,000 Negroes will be segregated in a "central jurisdiction," embracing the various Negro conferences. White members will be in five jurisdictions, arranged geographically.

Whether membership in a Negro church would entitle a Negro to change his "letter" to a white church was a point raised in debate, with those favoring the union contending the arrangement was the "tactful" way to handle the situation, and those opposing declaring "this thing will ruin our church."

The first step toward starting the machinery of unification was taken today when the General Conference asked the College of Bishops to name a "unification" committee of five of its members to handle details of calling the uniting convention.

Resolution on Chinese War.

Southern Methodists called upon the United States today to "prevent use of its resources" by Japan in the current "war of aggression" against China, in a resolution adopted by the General Church Conference. Introduced by Judge Nathan Newby of Los Angeles, the resolution passed with an overwhelming shout.

Miss Hsiu Li Yui of Shanghai asked for passage because "bombs the Japs rain on us are made in the United States. We know we have your friendship, your prayers and your sympathy, but we need more than that; we need co-operation in keeping war materials from going from the United States to Japan."

TAVERN MAN PLEADS CHARITY AT SUNDAY SELLING HEARING

Says He Gave Beer and Sandwiches to Hungry; License Suspended Two Days.

When Jandre Uremovic, proprietor of a tavern at 2337 Chouteau avenue, pushed four bottles of beer and four sandwiches across the bar on Easter Sunday, he was only performing an act of charity, he told Excise Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel yesterday when he appeared for a hearing after being cited for violating the Sunday closing law.

"I saw four poor hungry fellows and took pity on them," Uremovic said. "I opened my place, made them sandwiches and gave them beer. I received no pay."

The account of policemen differed. They said the drinkers had money in their pockets. McDaniel told Uremovic his license would be suspended for next Tuesday and Wednesday.

BOMB DAMAGES BARBER SHOP

A bomb exploded at 1 o'clock yesterday morning on the sidewalk in front of the barber shop of John Tasheff, 917 Pacific avenue, Granite City. Tasheff told police he had reduced the price of haircuts Thursday from 50 cents to 25 cents.

Broken windows in the barber shop and adjacent buildings caused a loss estimated by police at $200. Christ Pavaloff, who operates a saloon next to the barber shop, told police he had seen a yellow coupe slow down in front of the shop just before the explosion and then speed away.

JAIL WATCHMAN JAILED; MADE PLACE TOO POPULAR

Polish Keeper and Wife Behind Bars Because They Made Merry With Prisoners.

By the Associated Press.

SNIATYN, Poland, April 30.—Wladyslaw Tluczek and his wife are behind the bars of their own jail because they made the place too popular.

As watchman of the prison, Tluczek for years permitted families of prisoners to bring food and drink to the jail. Dances were held regularly, Tluczek playing the mandolin and his wife danced with the inmates.

You can win. Clip the Entry Blank . . . enter today!

ALL YOU DO IS COMPLETE THIS SENTENCE:

"My favorite Libby Food is Libby's. . . . ." (write 30 additional words or less) because. . . . .

IT'S EASY! Just use your own words . . . no fancy writing.

HINTS: Libby's Fruits and Vegetables are packed in on-the-spot kitchens, right where they grow at their finest. They're hurried from gardens to kitchens so as to retain their natural goodness. Special care and Libby's methods protect flavor, tenderness and nutritional values.

ENTER NOW! Send lots of entries. You can enter as many as you choose and each one increases your chance of winning a thousand dollars a year for life or a fine cash prize.

READ THESE EASY RULES!

1. Complete the sentence quoted above, using 30 words or less. Use the entry blank or a plain sheet of paper, writing only on one side. Only the one sentence will be considered in each entry you submit.

2. With your entry send labels, or facsimiles thereof, from three different Libby's Foods. Choose from Libby's brand Fruits, Fruit Juices, Vegetables, Tomato Juice, or Red Salmon. No other Libby labels are eligible.

3. Your entry must be original with you, in your own proper name and over your own signature with complete address and the name and address of the dealer from whom you bought the Libby Foods. He can help you win.

4. Mail your entry to Libby Contest Judges, Dept. S-3, Howard-Clark Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Enter as many sentences as you like, but each one must be submitted on a separate piece of paper with your signature, dealer's name, addresses (Rule 3) and labels from 3 different Libby's Foods (Rule 2).

5. All entries must be postmarked before midnight of July 9, 1938. Winners will be notified as soon as possible thereafter.

6. Entries will be judged and graded on sincerity, uniqueness, advertising value, and prizes will be awarded in the order of merit so determined. Penmanship and elaborate entries will not influence judges. Decisions of the judges must be accepted as final. In event of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. All entries and the right to use same become the property of Libby, McNeill & Libby.

7. This contest is limited to the United States and is subject to all national, state and local laws and regulations. Employees of Libby, McNeill & Libby, employees of their advertising agencies, and members of their families cannot compete.

LABELS MUST BE FROM ONLY LIBBY'S BRAND FRUITS, FRUIT JUICES, VEGETABLES, TOMATO JUICE, OR RED SALMON Each of your entries must be accompanied by labels (or facsimiles) from three different Libby's Foods. Why not all of one kind? Frankly, because we want you to get acquainted with Libby products. That's the reason for this contest—so you'll do some sampling right now. Of course, that doesn't mean buying anything extra. You'd be serving vegetables and fruits and tomato juice anyway. Just get Libby's. Here are some of the most popular Libby products:

CZECHOSLOVAKIA ACTS TO BAR MAY DAY CLASH

Political Demonstrations Barred and in Some Districts All Assemblies.

By the Associated Press.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, April 30.—Czechoslovakia took extensive precautions today to prevent disorders in tomorrow's celebrations of May day. The Government announced an order forbidding political demonstrations would be enforced strictly.

Konrad Henlein's Sudeten German party, representing the country's minority of 3,500,000 Germans, issued an appeal to its members to maintain discipline.

The Government, faced by Henlein's demands for a change in Czechoslovakia's foreign policy, autonomy for the Germans within its borders and other concessions, meanwhile utilized the occasion for a friendly gesture toward Germany.

Message to Hitler.

President Eduard Benes telegraphed special May day wishes to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, saying: "On the occasion of the national holiday I beg to convey to your excellency my most sincere felicitations."

(As a preparedness move, Czechoslovaks between the ages of 6 and 30 must be enrolled in special defense courses. The country has a well-equipped army of 160,000 men, with tanks and other mechanized aids. In the defense courses, the nation for more than a year has been subjected to periodic sham air raids and has been taught how to cope with gas attacks).

The Government order forbidding political demonstrations tomorrow barred party parades. In Praha all parties except the German agreed on a common celebration on Wenzel Square. The only speaker will be the Mayor of Praha. Party flags will be absent.

Nazi Advice for Day.

In the Sudeten German section of the country, celebrations will be conducted by Henlein's party, but only open air meetings will be permitted.

"Keep discipline; don't let yourselves be provoked," is the Nazi slogan for tomorrow.

Henlein's press bureau issued an appeal to his followers declaring there were indications the party's enemies and agents of provacateurs were at work to attempt to incite disorders. It said all must keep cool heads tomorrow.

The Government has prohibited all public assemblies in some districts because of the hoof and mouth disease, according to the official explanation.

Big Turnout Urged.

Henlein's chief propagandist, Rudolf Sandner, meanwhile sought a complete turnout of Sudeten German party members by addressing a proclamation to them.

It called for all party followers to go individually to May day rallies "to show the world that the Sudetens stand firmly and resolutely, yet strictly disciplined, behind Henlein in his demands."

Henlein last Sunday announced an eight-point program of concessions sought from the Government for the German minority.

The Government announced it would permit German citizens living in Czechoslovakia to fly their swastika flag side by side with the Czechoslovak flag tomorrow.

Hitler to Speak to Children, Then at Labor Rally.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 30.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler will make two May day addresses tomorrow.

He will address a children's gathering at 8:30 a. m. and a labor rally at noon. In past May day speeches he has preached solidarity of labor and of the nation, emphasizing abolition of class conflicts.

The Chancellor today proclaimed amnesty for members of the party charged with offenses committed against party rules prior to April 10. All party court proceedings are conducted secretly and the number of Nazis affected by the decree or the nature of their offenses was not disclosed.

Hitler also ordered discrimination halted against party members who formerly were Free Masons unless they held the highest masonic degrees.

The Fuehrer proclaimed the amnesty in commemoration of union of Germany and Austria, effected March 13.

He also created a new decoration in the form of a commemorative medal to be awarded to persons for conspicuous services in connection with the union.

London Police Leaves Canceled on Eve of May Day Parades.

LONDON, April 30.—Sunday leave for hundreds of London policemen was canceled today to prevent disorders when 50,000 Labor party and Trades Union Congress paraders will converge on Hyde Park in six columns for a rally under the slogan, "Arms for the Spanish Government."

Sir Oswald Mosley's Blackshirts will march through hostile districts for its meeting on London's East Side. Sir Oswald has dropped the word "Fascists" for the name of the organization which is now "British Union."

Marchers of both groups have been barred from the big East End area for months, but that has not stopped head cracking.

Last Oct. 3, at the fifth anniversary parade of the Blackshirts, 113 were arrested and 30 sent to hospitals after a clash with anti-Fascists. A few days later at Liverpool, a Leftist struck Sir Oswald on the head with a thrown rock and sent the Blackshirt leader to the hospital with a slight concussion.

The labor groups will gather in the afternoon, the Blackshirts in the evening.

MARIONETTE PRODUCTION OF 'SNOW WHITE' FOR CHILDREN

Carvings by Occupational Therapy Workshop Patients—Show for Two Schools.

A marionette production of "Snow White," with characters and settings carved and painted by 60 patients of the Occupational Therapy Workshop, 4567 Scott avenue, will be presented tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the workshop for children of the Community School.

All of the patients receiving treatment and instruction at the workshop have participated in the preparations for the production. It will be repeated Wednesday afternoon for children of the Elias Michael School, 4568 Forest Park avenue.

Much of the carving has been done by Benjamin Nonte, employe of a printing plant, who suffered a severe injury to his hand several months ago. Others who have worked on the animal and human characters include physicians, insurance men and several persons from out-patient departments of hospitals.

Miss Susan Barnes, assistant director of the workshop, will be in charge of the production. The manipulation of the marionette characters and their singing voices will be undertaken by young patients at the workshop.

Higginsville (Mo.) Man Killed.

By the Associated Press.

HIGGINSVILLE, Mo., April 30.—Albert Meinershagen Jr., 26 years old, of Higginsville, a flour salesman, was killed early today in a head-on automobile collision on Highway 13, two miles south of Higginsville. Mrs. George Miller, 37, Concordia, Mo., occupant of the other car, suffered serious chest injuries and fractures of both knees. Her niece, Eleanor Kammeyer, 16, was slightly hurt, her nephew, Raymond, 12, suffered serious injuries. Meinershagen's father, A. H. Meinershagen, is secretary of Missouri Grain Dealers' and Millers' Association.

COMMUNISTS PUT OUT MANIFESTO AGAINST FASCISM

Ask for International Workers' Front "Against German, Japanese and Italian Aggression."

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 30.—A manifesto issued by the Communist International today called on Socialist and trade union internationals "to form a united workers' front against Japanese, German and Italian aggression."

The appeal was published at a time when thousands of troops were massed in Moscow for Soviet Russia's military display in Red Square tomorrow in celebration of May day.

"The May day review of revolutionary forces of the international proletariat has unusual and militant significance this year," the manifesto says. "Never since the World War has there been such a sharp international situation as at present."

That tomorrow's demonstration would be a show of national power rather than a display of proletarianism was emphasized in newspapers, which referred to the parade as a "review of our mobilized readiness." Slogans officially announced for banners also proclaimed pride in the Red Army, Navy and Air force.

Further Army Purge.

May day preparations confirmed rumors of a further purge in the Red Army, when the names of three high officers were ombitted from orders in connection with the parade.

The officers were Marshal A. I. Yegoroff, Vice-Commissar of Defense; Commander I. P. Beloff, stationed at Minsk in white Russia; and Gen. P. E. Dybenko, commander of the strategically important Leningrad military district. Rumors of their removal had been in circulation since February without confirmation.

All of the officers were members of a court martial which sentenced eight generals to death in June.

The May day manifesto said "one fourth of humanity" was at war and that Germany was threatening Czechoslovakia, France, Lithuania, Belgium, Switzerland, the Netherlands, the Balkans and the Scandinavian countries in an effort to get raw materials and man power "for a great war" against Soviet Russia.

Great Britain Denounced.

Great Britain also was denounced and accused of waiting to share China with Japan and "clandestinely directing" German Fascism "eastward against the country of the Soviet."

The manifesto said the responsibility of the United States, Great Britain and France in the various conflicts lay in their tolerance of Fascist aggression.

"War is not to be avoided by permitting instigators to rob and kill other people," it continued. 'Wars are averted by a firm policy of timely curbing of the Fascist robbers. They cynically lie to you who assert the governments of England, France and the United States are powerless to halt international Fascist plundering."

The International's appeal for solidarity of the working class of other countries against Fascism, recalled the statement of the party chief, Josef Stalin, in a letter to a young Communist in February, in which he expressed hope for the support of workers in the capitalist nations whenever the Soviet Union may be attacked.

International Plea.

In recent years little attention has been given in Soviet Russia to international labor solidarity.

Numerous banners being prepared for tomorrow's parade, however, emphasized this idea.

"Let us strengthen the international ties of the working class of the U. S. S. R. with the working class in capitalist countries," was one slogan.

"Up with the banner of international proletarian solidarity," was another.

Units which will take the oath of allegiance to the Soviet in tomorrow's ceremonies have been rehearsing for the parade for several nights.

Moscow was ablaze with red bunting and red flags.

Gigantic pictures and statues of Bolshevism's founding fathers—Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin—looked down from the fronts of buildings in downtown squares.

ST. LOUIS C I O UNIONS HOLD MAY DAY PARADE

Speech Making Follows March of 650 on Forest Park Avenue.

The second annual May Day parade of St. Louis Industrial Union Council representing the C I O unions, was held yesterday afternoon on Forest Park avenue, west of Grand boulevard, and was followed by a speaking program on the south side of Forest Park avenue, between Vandeventer and Spring avenues.

In the parade, west to Boyle avenue and back to the meeting place, 650 men and women took part, marching two abreast, and carrying banners and cartoons, some of them the work of a C I O artists' group. The Ford assembly plant, Forest Park avenue and Sarah street, was the center of interest to the paraders, among whom were striking Ford employes.

The names of Henry Ford and the Ford Co., and of Congressman C. Arthur Anderson of the Twelfth (City-County) District, whom the C I O is opposing for renomination, were on several of the banners of the paraders, and were mentioned in the speeches.

Anti-Anderson Display.

Several of the paraders acted as pallbearers for a coffin-shaped box, on the side of which appeared the name of Congressman Anderson. The movement of the C I O against Anderson was caused by his utterance in the House, denouncing the procedure of the National Labor Relations Board, in its hearing on the local Ford strike, as unfair.

The Ford plant was closed, as it is every Saturday, but a few maintenance workers, about the premises, watched the parade, and remarks were addressed to them by some of the marchers. The only large groups of spectators were near the Ford plant, and at Vandevener avenue.

A mounted police escort led the parade. The Ford strikers and Chevrolet plant workers, members of the United Automobile Workers of America, were followed by local unions of the C I O iron, steel and tin workers, and the electrical, radio and machine workers. Several large American flags were carried in the line, and a group of women carried individual small flags.

Truck Serves as Speakers' Stand.

At the speaking place, a truck was used as a stand, and the south side of the street, divided by a center park strip, was closed to traffic during the meeting. Norman Smith, automobile workers' organizer, presided, and John Doherty, organizer of the steel workers, was the principal speaker.

Doherty said the C I O was as strong as it was in more prosperous conditions a year ago. He praised the "American attitude" of the police detail in the parade, contrasting it with the action of Chicago policemen in the Memorial day "massacre" at the Republic Steel works in South Chicago.

The speaker predicted that the Ford management, and Tom Girdler, steel manufacturer, would "realize in time that they are up against the Wagner Act and the N L R B." He commended Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis, and praised local A. F. of L. unions for joining the C I O in the fight on Anderson, although William Green, national head of the A. F. of L., said the federation was not opposing Anderson.

Robert Logsdon, organizer of the electrical workers; William Massingale, Negro, of the Building Service Workers; Walter Williams, leader of striking Ford employes in Kansas City and Julius H. Klyman, international vice-president of the American Newspaper Guild, were the other speakers.

Resolutions were passed demanding that Congress enact President Roosevelt's recovery measures, particularly the wage-hour bill, before adjournment and stating that the May day observance here would be made an annual affair.

PLAYGOERS' CAMPAIGN TO START TOMORROW

Organization Launched Successfully Last Season Seeks to Increase Rolls.

A campaign to increase the membership of the Playgoers of St. Louis to 2000 for the 1938-39 theatrical season will get under way tomorrow under direction of Robert Brookings Smith, president of the organization. The Playgoers, a non-profit group, was successfully launched last autumn to bring better stage plays here and to underwrite a guaranteed attendance for each offering.

Renewal invitations have been sent to all last season's members. Dues have been changed from $1 per member to $1 for each seat reservation on the orchestra floor and 50 cents a seat in the balcony. Allotment of seats will begin Tuesday, May 17.

"Until the Playgoers was inaugurated by a group of civic minded St. Louisans, this city was considered a poor bet for touring legitimate shows," Smith said yesterday. "Now the situation has been completely reversed. After the successful season which recently closed, St. Louis, except for New York and Chicago, today is recognized as the best theatrical city in this country. Probably the success of the Playgoers is best described by the fact that two other cities have notified us they are planning similar organizations.

"Many of the plays which were seen here last winter were booked here solely on the strength of the Playgoers. Our whole purpose is to assure a successful theatrical season by advance pledges of ticket purchases without any sponsors assuming any responsibility for a financial deficit. We also want to stress the point that with more members we will be able to obtain even finer plays than were seen during the last winter. We honestly believe that our membership next season will greatly exceed our goal. Already many renewals have been received."

Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann is chairman of the board of the Playgoers. Other officers are John Ring Jr. vice-president; Miss Mary Pettus, vice-president; M. E. Holderness, treasurer; Max Koenigsberg, chairman, and Charles Nagel Jr., vice-charman of the executive committee and Mrs. Florence K. Weberman, secretary-subscription manager. Offices are in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 511 Locust street.

Woman, 87, Hurt in Fall, Dies.

Mrs. Anna Heinzelman, 1745 Dolman street, who had been in City Hospital since suffering a fractured left hip in a fall in the yard of her home April 18, died at the hospital late yesterday. Mrs. Heinzelman, a widow, was 87 years old.

3 GIRLS GET MARRIED BEFORE DEADLINE ON WORKING WIVES

Boston Utility to Fire Women Employes Who Get Husbands on or After May 1.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 30.—Because their employer, a Boston utility, recently laid down a rule which said "Girls who marry after May 1 must quit their jobs," at least three girls took their fiancees to the altar today and they were wed. Three other Boston girls resorted to hasty weddings earlier in the week to beat the deadline.

The utility's reasons for its action are: (1) that working wives hold jobs that could be given to men who are heads of families, and (2) many working wives are supported by their husbands.

"We think our action is in line with popular thought of the day," a company spokesman said.

EX-KAISER'S GRANDSON TO WED TOMORROW

Greek Orthodox Ceremony for Prince Louis Ferdinand and Grand Duchess Kira.

By the Associated Press.

POTSDAM, April 30.—What may be termed an imperial six-footers' club will share in the somewhat difficult task of holding a bejewelled crown over tall Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, grandson of the former German Kaiser, when he is married to Grand Duchess Kira Kirillovna of Russia, according to the rites of the Greek Orthodox Church in Cecilienhof Castle Monday morning.

This imperial six-footers' club will be composed of Princes Hubertus and Friedrich of Prussia, brothers; Princes Oscar and Burchard of Prussia, cousins, and Princes Ernst August and Georg Wilhelm of Brunswick, cousins of the bridegroom; Grand Duke Vladimir of Russia, brother of the bride, and Prince Gabriel of Russia, cousin of the bride.

Promptly at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning, Grand Duchess Kira will be led by her father, Grand Duke Kirill, to the improvised altar in the music room of Cecilienhof Castle. The oldest of the "imperial six-footers," or marshals, as they are known in the Greek rite, then will repair to the adjoining room to announce formally to Crown Prince Wilhelm and his son, Prince Louis Ferdinand, that the grand duchess is waiting. Led by his father, the bridegroom will enter the music room and take his place to the right of the bride. The change over to the left is made only after they have been declared man and wife.

A little girl, the daughter of Russian Col. Udinzoff Uralzeff, who was one of the life guards of Admiral Kolchak, will bring into the room the framed picture of the Virgin Mary which was presented to the Grand Duchess when she was confirmed, and will hand it to the officiating clergyman, who will be Provost Paul Adamantoff of Wiesbaden, who also officiated at the marriage of the Grand Duchess' elder sister and at the burial of her mother. Assisting Adamantoff will be the Grand Duchess' father confessor, Timofeieff, and the head priest of the Berlin orthodox church, Selodovnikoff.

A Russian chorus of 15 will sing at various stages of the ceremony.

As the House of Hohenzollern has always been the champion of Protestantism, even the Cecilienhof ceremony (the Lutheran wedding will take place Saturday at Doorn, Holland) will acquire a Protestant flavor. Bruno Doehring, former court preacher, who confirmed Prince Louis Ferdinand in the Lutheran faith, will close the morning's ceremony with a prayer in German.

CAMPAIGN TO ENLIST 10,000 AGAINST CANCER EXTENDED

Drive Scheduled to Close Last Night to Continue Until Wednesday So Reports Can Be Made.

An enlistment campaign for 10,000 members of the local Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, scheduled to end last night, has been extended until Wednesday to enable workers to make a full report of activities.

Mrs. Edmund Fowler Brown, St. Louis vice-commander, who made the announcement yesterday, said that "while it does not appear we will reach our quota of 10,000 which was set for this district by the national organization, still we feel that the campaign has been successful in awakening the community to the need for cancer control."

Exact number of members obtained will be announced Wednesday. Each paid a $1 membership fee to be used to finance an educational program that will include distribution of free literature and other information about the disease. The Field Army, which has as its purpose combatting the lack of knowledge surrounding cancer, began its campaign April 1. About 500 women representatives of 125 organizations have participated.

ARMY STARTS HELPING NAVY BUILD OUTPOST IN PACIFIC

Engineering Officers Sent to Midway Island to Construct $2,000,000 Seaplane Base.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Official orders disclosed today the Army has started co-operating with the Navy in preparing a new Pacific air defense outpost at Midway Island.

They directed Lieut. Henry L. Hille Jr. of the Army Engineer Corps to proceed there to assist Lieut. William H. Ely, who already has made aerial surveys for a harbor channel and seaplane base to cost upwards of $2,000,000.

The Navy is preparing the ship Sirius at San Francisco to take constructors to Midway probably in the next few weeks, officials said.

After the base for commercial and military seaplanes and a channel for small surface vessels have been completed, in about two years, similar work is contemplated at Wake Island.

Both islands are way stations on the trans-Pacific line of Pan American Airways.

L. Walter Moon to Speak.

L. Walter Moon, charter member of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, will be the speaker at a dinner of the chapter Tuesday night at Garavelli's restaurant, 5701 De Giverville avenue, in observance of the local organization's twentieth anniversary. Moon is president of a St. Louis heating company.

U. S. CHAMBER AGAINST NEW CURBS ON TRADE

Proposed Federal Measures Assailed—Convention Begins Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30. — Delegates arriving for the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States indicated today they would urge that business adopt a specific platform designed to speed up spending by private enterprise.

Sentiment among the vanguard of the 2500 delegates expected to attend the chamber discussions was against the Government's program of increased Federal spending.

The annual meeting will start at 10 a. m. Monday and will end Thursday.

Delegates who will attend financial discussions mentioned the low point to which new capital financing has fallen and emphasized the need for sluicing fresh money into trade and industrial channels. One delegate cited estimates prepared by the Chamber to show the extent to which the capital stream had dried up. Volume of new capital obtained by business through securities sales during the last seven years has averaged less than $750,000,000. In the preceding seven years, according to the Chamber estimates, the average was more than six times as large.

A statement issued by the Chamber said an "immediate contribution" which the Government could make to stimulate business and increase work would be to drop pending proposals for "further Government control of business."

Specific proposals called "deterrents to recovery" by the Chamber included: Federal licensing of corporations; establishment of centralized Government economic planning agencies; extension of the Labor Relations Act; Federal regulation of wages and hours, and Federal price-fixing and control.

The Chamber reported that measures being applied throughout major fields of business to sustain employment included:

1. Advance planning by business itself.
2. Payment of maximum possible wages consistent with fair treatment to salaried employes, investors and consumers.
3. Research to produce goods at cheaper cost.
4. Flexible working schedules to sustain employment at highest practicable levels.
5. Willingness to deal with employes collectively or individually as long as the rights of individual workers were fully protected.
6. Preferential treatment for older workers.
7. Adherence to fair trade practices.

$10,000 Drive for Camp Wyman.

The fund sought is for a sanitary system and electric lights.

SHIPPERS CLOSE TACOMA PORT, TIED UP BY RIVAL UNIONS' ROW

A. F. of L. Longshoremen Refuse to Cross Picket Line Set Up by Independent Sailors.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., April 30. — The almost deserted Port of Tacoma, which normally handles about $131,000,000 worth of goods annually, was closed today by employers because of a dispute between rival Atlantic and Pacific Coast maritime unions.

The employers ordered the long threatened shutdown when Tacoma's A. F. of L. Longshoremen persisted in their refusal to pass a picket line of the independently organized Sailors' Union of the Pacific to load the Shepard Line freighter Timber Rush, only ship remaining in port.

The Sailors' Union, which has refused to join either the C I O or A. F. of L., has been picketing Shepard Line ships on the ground the company was violating a working agreement involving the employment of West Coast sailors.

Aboard the Timber Rush was a crew from the East Coast National Maritime Union, affiliated with the C I O. Company executives said the Labor Board had ordered them to recognize the N M U.

Every ship except the Timber Rush had left Tacoma before the shutdown, leaving 600 longshoremen and 1000 other workers with nothing to do even had the port remained open.

The longshoremen contend that crossing the line would be dangerous, and the employers demand that the union recognize an arbitrator's decision that refusal to load the ship was a violation of the stevedoring contract.

WILLIAM H. MALONE ORDERED COMMITTED TO U. S. PRISON

Probation Hearing Tomorrow for Illinois Ex-Official Convicted of Tax Evasion.

CHICAGO, April 30.—United States Marshal William H. McDonnell directed deputies today to serve a prison commitment order on William H. Malone, former chairman of the Illinois Tax Commission, sentenced to two years' imprisonment and fined $5000 for income tax evasion.

Malone's commitment was ordered on receipt of a decision of the United States Supreme Court affirming the sentence by Judge William H. Holly, which had been appealed. A probation hearing is scheduled for Monday before Judge Holly.

McDonnell said Malone would be held in the Cook County jail until the hearing and would be removed to the penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., if his appeals are denied.

Malone, convicted June 7, for evading income taxes totaling $53,580.13 for 1929 and 1930, appealed for probation earlier this week. His counsel said Malone had been ill and under a physician's care.

DYER ACT TRIAL TO BE RESUMED TOMORROW

More Witnesses to Support Defendants' Denial of Dealing in Stolen Autos.

The trial of Eugene Tebeau; his stepson, John Walsh, and Edward S. McIntosh on charges of causing the interstate shipment of stolen automobiles, will be resumed tomorrow at 2 p. m. before a jury in the court of United States District Judge George H. Moore.

The defense, continuing the presentation of its case, will call additional witnesses for the purpose of corroborating testimony given by two of the defendants, Walsh and McIntosh. Tebeau, with whom Government witnesses have said they dealt with almost exclusively in the transactions involving alleged stolen automobiles, will not take the stand, his attorneys said.

Because the trial will not get under way until tomorrow afternoon, the case, which began last Monday, is not expected to reach the jury until Tuesday. Judge Moore passed the trial until the afternoon session of court in order to dispose of his law docket.

Yesterday Walsh, former student in the St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance, took the stand in his own defense and made a general denial to the Government's charges. In response to questions by George C. Dyer, defense attorney, Walsh denied that he had any knowledge that the automobiles sold by his stepfather or McIntosh to purchasers on the East Side had been stolen.

The witness declared he did not drive any of the cars to points on the East Side, and that he did not direct anyone else to do so. He testified, as had McIntosh on Friday, that the seven automobiles sold by Tebeau and McIntosh, and alleged to have been stolen, were obtained from an East St. Louis automobile finance firm.

Questioned as to each machine, he testified he did not steal them nor authorize anyone to steal them, and that he was not responsible for the alteration of the motor number on each.

He denied also that he had entered into an agreement with his step-father and McIntosh for the purpose of receiving and selling stolen automobiles.

On cross-examination by Assistant United States Atorney Henry G. Morris, Walsh said he had signed the names of the purchasers of the automobiles on applications for Illinois certificates titles with the knowledge of the purchasers and as a part of an accommodation to them in obtaining titles for them.

He said he helped his stepfather at the latter's used car establishment at 4619 Delmar boulevard occassionally, but that most of his time was spent at day and night classes at the University and in preparation of lessons.

The Government does not charge the defendants with stealing the automobiles, but contends they sold the cars with knowledge that they had been stolen and that they caused them to be transported in interstate shipment in violation of the Dyer Act.

Scratched—Stormscud.

Fighting Fox a real good colt. He broke alertly but was allowed to drop in behind pace for the first six furlongs. Stout had him under restraint to the middle of the turn then sent him up. He came around Opera Hat and taking command in stretch drew out and won going away. Can't Wait was a bit slow to get into his stride; worked his way up and closing with a good burst of speed gained the place in last few strides. Opera Hat was ridden. He had plenty of speed, set a fast pace but weakened in the last sixteenth. Bourbon King made his bid entering the stretch but faltered in the final drive. Nedayr was hustled into a contending position going into paddock turn and rated along to the top of stretch where he quit cold. Pasteurized away in a tangle and never had a chance. Quick Devil went in the air at the start and just galloped along back of the field. Wood Song was being eased up at end.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Fighting Fox, latest in the line of famous horses from William Woodward's Belair Stud, headed toward Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Derby tonight.

With a performance that surpassed that of his famous brother, Gallant Fox, the bay son of Sir Gallahad III today took the measure of eight other three-year-olds, four of them also eligible for the Derby, in the mile and 70 yards of the $20,000 Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

He did it in a manner that indicated he will be a real threat when the distance is stretched out to a mile and a quarter at the Downs one week from today. Closing in the stretch in a manner that recalled the feats of his brother, Fighting Fox crossed the finish line three lengths in front of the fast-closing Can't Wait, Myron Selznick's Derby hope.

Opera Hat, a non-Derby eligible owned by Mrs. Amory Haskell's Woodland Farm, lost runner-up honors in a photo finish but had the satisfaction of taking the measure of such highly-regarded Derby candidates as Hal Price Headley's Bourbon King and W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr.

Bourbon King, winner of the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre De Grace last Saturday, was fourth, three lengths back of Opera Hat, while Nedayr trailed by another two lengths in fifth place. Mrs. W. P. Stewart's Pasteurized, only other Derby horse in the field, was sixth.

The performances of Nedayr and Pasteurized eliminated them from Derby consideration, as neither will make the trip to the Downs.

Fighting Fox not only scored a convincing victory but his time of 1:43 flat was three-fifths of a second faster than the time made by Gallant Fox in winning the stake in 1930. It also was only a second slower than Pompey's stake record but lacked one and four-fifths seconds of equalling the track mark.

The Fox, made the 9 to 10 favorite by the crowd of 17,300 to win the purse of $17,450, lost no time proving Trainer James Fitzsimmons' contention that he is a faster horse than either Gallant Fox or Omaha, 1935 Derby winner.

Opera Hat broke in front but Jimmy Stout had the Fox right on his heels from the start. Never

Miami Petition Would Cut Racing To Five-Day Week

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., April 30.

MERCHANTS launched a move today to limit horse and dog racing to five days a week next winter.

Petitions were circulated in the business district reading, "We, the undersigned registered voters of Dade County, are in favor of the five-day week for horse and dog tracks and Jai Alai games, believing such regulation necessary in order to preserve racing in the State of Florida."

WRAY'S COLUMN

Old Diz's Soupbone.

DIZZY DEAN'S $250,000 soupbone has the jitters again—and so have the Cub officials. Nor can you blame them considering that they are wondering whether the club treasury is now $185,000 poorer than before the Dean deal, with possibly only a highly publicized lemon to show for it.

Viewing the dark side of the Dean picture, President Wrigley may note that although Dizzy has been credited with two victories thus far, he has twice had to be taken out of the game. The first time Dean said his arm was tired. Friday it was because he "pulled a muscle."

Also, he has not been fogging his fast ball past the batters—in fact against the Cardinals he bore down on only one or two pitches. Considering all this, following a season of arm complaints and indifferent performances, you could hardly say the Dean outlook was rosy.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the doctor who examined Dean's arm for the Cubs has minimized the trouble and says Dizzy will be able to pitch in a few days. So the door of hope is still open to Charley Grimm.

In Mr. Wrigley's case, however, we are free to say that we'd rather have that $185,000 in the safe, than Dean in the lineup. At 30 years of age sore arms are difficult to bring back. It is not often that a pitcher who passes his peak, ever regains it, although that has happened.

Dean's pitching is now in the diminuendo phase. He steadily improved up to 1934 when he reached a top of 30 victories and 7 defeats. Since then his work has gradually fallen away. In 1935 his record was 28-12, in 1936 it was 24-13 and last year it was 13-10.

It is unlikely that he will climb the summit of 1934 again—or even approach it. His own predictions for 1938 have not passed 20 victories. The law of averages as shown by other pitchers is against his regaining his best form.

Dizzy may have pulled a muscle; it is also possible that the Cardinals may have pulled a "fast one" and the Cubs a "boner."

DEAD HEATS, in horse races, once rarer than diamond-studded hen's teeth, have been common sence the "photo finish" entered the field. Since 1875 no derby ever resulted in a tie. But some day the camera is going to reveal one.

That will bring up a problem the future bookie has not yet had to contend with—one which may cause him plenty of grief.

"What's the future book payoff in case of a dead heat?" one local betting commissioner was asked. "You can't follow the mutuel pay without getting into a row with your client."

"That's one I haven't figured out," was his reply.

We put it up to another bookie with better results. He had the Opera Hat Folded Up After Leading to the Stretch

Mrs. Amory Haskell's non-Derby eligible Opera Hat (on the rail) set the pace in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica yesterday, but could not stand off the driving finish of William Woodward's Fighting Fox (second from left), which won by three lengths. ALICE MARBLE BEATS KEANEY

A courteous gesture by Frank Keaney may have cost him a possible tie in his exhibition tennis match with Alice Marble, top ranking woman star, yesterday afternoon at Shaw Park in Clayton. Keaney performed on a side of the court which was damp due to Friday night's rains and after the first set, when it came time to change courts, the former St. Louis University tennis captain insisted that Miss Marble stay on the side that was dry in order to avoid slipping and injuring herself.

Despite the slight disadvantage, Keaney played very well but lost, 6-1, 7-5. A crowd of 400 saw the matches.

Both players resorted to a back court game in the first set. Miss Marble showed her mastery in that department by outscoring Keaney, 31 to 21.

Keaney took a 4 to 2 lead in the second set, but Miss Marble went to the net for some kills that surprised Keaney and he lost two of the next three games. Then he rallied to tie the score at 5-all. Miss Marble took the following two games to win the set and match.

Hal Surface Jr. of Kansas City, seventh ranking in the nation, defeated Karl Hodge, 6-1, 6-3, in another exhibition match. The second set was very close. Surface showed considerable improvement over his performance here four years ago when he won the Missouri Valley singles title.

Miss Marble and Keaney lost a 6-2 decision to Surface and Joseph L. Werner and then decided to call it a day with the score 7-all in the second set of the doubles.

Miss Marble showed an improvement over last year in her ground strokes. She will pit her skill this afternoon at 2 o'clock against Hal Surface of Kansas City, ranked No. 7 in the United States. After playing one set against him, she will meet Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, national men's indoor champion and ranked No. 9, in another set. McNeill is a student at Kenyon College, Gambier, O.

In the doubles, Miss Marble and McNeill will oppose Keaney and Surface.

FIGHTING FOX IS CUT TO 5 TO 1 IN DERBY BOOK

The price on Fighting Fox was cut from 5 to 1 to 4 to 1 in Charley Burke's Derby future book yesterday. Dauber was cut from 6 to 5 to 1, Co-Sport from 30 to 20 to 1; Blind Eagle from 100 to 40 to 1; Bull Lea from 8 to 5 to 1; Menow from 10 to 7 to 1 and the Chief from 20 to 10 to 1, among other changes.

Stagehand remains the favorite at 5 to 2 to win but his place odds were cut from 6 to 5 to even money and for show from 7 to 10 to 3 to 5.

Bourbon King's price went up from 15 to 20 to 1; Stand Alone from 40 to 60 to 1; Red Breast from 20 to 30 to 1.

Eight Meet Records Are Set in Drake Relays

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 30.—Fourteen thousand spectators sitting in the warmth of a bright sun saw eight meet records go tumbling into oblivion in the finals of the twenty-ninth Drake relay carnival today.

The athletes, in bursts of dazzling speed, opened the meet with a record-breaking performance and continued it until the gun barked for the closing event.

Sun-tanned runners from Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., divided the lion's share of honors with Wisconsin, each winning four events in the two days of competition with the Texas youths setting records in three events and tying one.

Wisconsin captured the distance medley, 1000-yard run, pole vault and two mile. Rice established records in 120 high hurdles, the sprint medley, the 440-yard hurdles and tied the mark for the 440-yard relay.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Wolcott, Rice; second, Gatewood, Texas; third, Patterson, Rice; fourth, Collinge, Iowa. Time, :14.2 (new Drake record; old record, :14.4, by Saling of Iowa in 1932 and tied by Allen of Oklahoma Baptists in 1934 and 1935; also tied by Wolcott in 1938 preliminaries).

FOUR-MILE UNIVERSITY RELAY—Won by Missouri (Burrus, Rucker, Collins, Munski); second, Notre Dame; third, Michigan State; fourth, Kansas State. Time, 17:34.7 (new Drake record; old record 17:40.2, by Indiana in 1936).

100-YARD DASH—Won by Elerbee, Tuskegee Institute; second, Greer, Michigan State; third, Clifford, Notre Dame; fourth, Nelson, Fresno State College. Time, :09.6.

SPECIAL INVITATION 400-YARD DASH—Won by Cagle, Oklahoma Baptists; second, Miller, Compton (Cal.) College; third, Orr, Washington State; fourth, Tate, Oklahoma A. & M. Time, 47.7s (new Drake record; old record, 48.5s, by Ellinwood of the University of Chicago in 1936).

SHOT PUT—(Final)—Won by Hackney, Kansas State, 50 feet 5½ inches; second, Mills, Nebraska, 48 feet, 3½ inches; third, Dillon Drake, 47 feet, 5½ inches; fourth, Lohkamp, Kansas State Teachers, Emporia, 47 feet, 5¼ inches.

INVITATION—1000-YARD RUN — Won by Fenske, Wisconsin; second, Bell, Rice; third, San Romani, Kansas State Teachers, Emporia; fourth, Morse, Duke. Time—2m. 10.7s. (New Drake record. Old record 2m. 11.2s by Cunningham of Kansas in 1936.)

TWO-MILE UNIVERSITY RELAY — (Final) — Won by Notre Dame (Hester, Bernard, Rice, Francis); second, Iowa; third, Drake; fourth, Nebraska. Time—7m. 43.5s.

POLE VAULT—Won by Padway, Wisconsin, 13 feet, 8 inches; tied for second at 13 feet, Cassels, University of Chicago, and Gibbs, Notre Dame; tied for fourth at 12 feet 8 inches, Habrie, Michigan State; Bird, Kansas; Sargent, Iowa State; Nelson, Northwestern, and Anderson, Augustana (Ill.) College.

HALF MILE UNIVERSITY RELAY — (Final) — Won by Michigan State (Adcock, Carpenter, Woodstra, Greer); second, Texas; third, Marquette; fourth, Oklahoma U. Time 1m. 27.1s.

JAVELIN THROW—(Final) — Won by Graham, Texas, 217.47 feet; second, Waldram, Missouri, 214.02 feet; third, Frank, Nebraska, 195.36 feet; fourth, Lamb, Iowa, 193.92 feet.

ONE-MILE RELAY COLLEGE I. DIVISION—(Final) — Won by Coe (H. Wedgbury, Eislager, Moore, L. Wedgbury); second, Pomona; third, Miami (Ohio); fourth, Butler. Time—3m. 20.9s.

ONE-MILE RELAY COLLEGE, II DIVISION—(Final)—Won by Oklahoma Baptists (Watson, Lewellyn, King, Cagle); second, North Central of Naperville, Ill.; third, Kansas State Teachers, Pittsburgh; fourth, Nebraska Wesleyan. Time—3m. 18.1s.

HIGH JUMP—(Final)—Won by Diefenthaler, Illinois, 6 feet, 3¾ inches; tied for second at 6 feet, 2 ¾ inches, Brown, Missouri, and Burke, Marquette; tied for fourth at 6 feet, ¾ inch, Best, Wisconsin; Coatney, Tulsa; Leonas, Notre Dame; Hubbard, Minnesota; Baxter, Nebraska; Gustafson, Minnesota.

480-YARD SHUTTLE HIGH HURDLE RELAY—First section won by Kansas State Teachers, Emporia (Smith, Shephard, Demott, Simner); second, Michigan State; third, Illinois; fourth, Oklahoma A. & M. Time—1m. 0.1s. (New Drake record. Old record 1m. 1.1s by Illinois in 1936.)

SECOND SECTION—Won by Iowa (Aples, Collinge, Lindenmeyer, Lamb); second, Wisconsin; third, Iowa State. Time—1m. 2s.

PLACES ON BASIS OF ELAPSED TIME—Kansas State Teachers, Emporia; Michigan State, Iowa and Illinois.

TWO-MILE RELAY—College I and II (Final)—Won by Kansas State Teachers, Pittsburgh (Howard, Blackmore, Allen, Bedillon); second, Kansas State Teachers, Emporia; third, Pomona; fourth, Butler. Time—7m. 47.6s. (New Drake record. Old record 7m. 52.0s. by Kansas State Teachers, Pittsburgh in 1936.)

440-YARD UNIVERSITY RELAY—(Final)—Won by Rice (Jones, Steakley, Carr, Wolcott); second, Texas; third, Marquette; fourth, Michigan State. Time—41.5s. (Ties record made by Texas in 1938 preliminaries.)

ONE-MILE UNIVERSITY RELAY (Final)—Won by Iowa, (F. Teufel, C. Teufel, Graves, Billig) second, Oklahoma A. and M.; third, Illinois; fourth, Oklahoma U. Time—3:15.4. (New Drake record. Old record 3:15.9 by University of California at Los Angeles in 1934.)

440-YARD HURDLE (Final)—Won by Patterson, Rice; second, Lemen, Purdue; third, Tulin, Drake; Fourth, Hathaway, Northwestern. Time—53.2. (New Drake record. Old record :54.4 by Ernst, Michigan State, in 1922).

Harvard Eight Beats M. I. T. and Rutgers Crews

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 30.—Harvard's highly-impressive rowing fleet launched its season today by gaining its second straight Rowe Memorial regatta clean sweep from the Rutgers and Massachusetts Institute of Technology crews on the Charles River's Henley Course.

The Crimson varsity eight, a much more powerful unit than the successful boatload Tom Bolles assembled last year when he came to Harvard from Washington, climaxed the series of mile and five-sixteenths races by paddling to an almost three-lengths victory over the Rutgers varsity, which led the M. I. T. sweepers by a good length.

EARL SRENCO WINS Y. M. C. A. HANDBALL TITLE

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, April 30.—Earl Srenco, 21-year-old St. Louis athlete, won the International Y. M. C. A. handball singles championship today when he came from behind to defeat Walter C. Plekan, national junior A. A. U. champion from Buffalo, N. Y.

Long, hard shots to the baseline won the first game for Plekan, 9-21, but the St. Louis youngster apparently found a flaw in Plekan's game and won the next two, 21-5 and 21-10, with whistling shots that hit on Plekan's left side.

Officials here said Srenco is the youngest person ever to win the international "Y" singles.

Houston, Tex., won the volley ball championship by defeating Davenport, 15-12, 15-8.

Phil Michlin of Rochester, N. Y., won the Badminton singles crown by defeating H. A. Jornad of Fort Wayne, Ind., 15-8, 15-7, in the final.

The gymnastics title went to Jack Lattin of Detroit, who took all around honors. St. Paul won the team title with 384.8 points.

Walter Jacobs of Ithaca, N. Y., retained his title in the 158-pound wrestling division.

In the 115-pound class Alexander Reile of New York won.

The 134-pound title went to Douglas Lee of Baltimore. Vincent Jamieson of St. Louis was second.

John Spirche, of Reading, Pa., took the 123-pound mat crown. The 131-pound mat title went to John Schoff, of Baltimore.

The 145-pound title was captured by Elwood Roberts, of St. Louis. In the 174-pound class Edward Hoffman, of Newton, Mass., won. J. E. Baltzell, of Middletown, O., took the heavyweight crown.

The wrestling team title went to Baltimore with 10 points. St. Louis was second with eight points.

Hannibal, Mo., dethroned Williamsport, Pa., as the basketball champion, beating the Pennsylvanians, 57 to 48, in the final game.

The Chief First, Lawrin Third in Churchill Sprint

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30.—The Chief, stablemate of the Earle Sande-trained Kentucky Derby favorite, Stagehand, won a six-furlong race over three other Derby candidates today as Churchill Downs opened its sixty-fourth annual spring meeting. Milky Way Farms' Mountain Ridge was second and H. M. Woolf's Lawrin third. Lassator, Valdina Farms' candidate, also ran.

Showing superior form, J. B. Respess' Main Man picked up top weight of 124 pounds to best a field of 10 in the seventy-fourth running of the Clark Handicap, $5000 stake.

HARTNETT HITS HOMER AND DOUBLE; GUTTERIDGE MAKES THREE ERRORS

Grimm's Team Scores Five Runs in Opening Inning and Takes 8-0 Lead Before Redbirds Rout Tex Carleton With Four-Run Rally in Fifth.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Max Macon, the slender left-hander who distinguished himself at Columbus last year, ran into infield and base-hit trouble as he made his Sportsman's Park bow as a starting pitcher yesterday afternoon, and the Cubs of Charlie Grimm gave Young Macon and the Cardinals a sound spanking, 11 to 5, to celebrate the return of the Gas House Gang to its own house.

Don Gutteridge, who had made only one error in all previous games of the season, missed a grounder on the first Cub batter in the first inning (his first of three miscues in the game) and the Cubs used that break as the opening wedge in a five-run rally which caused the razzberry merchants to swing into action early.

The game, marking Dizzy Dean's first appearance in the traveling gray of the enemy on a field where for so many years he had been the fair-haired boy in white, attracted a crowd of 12,639, including 5699 cash customers, and you would have thought the home team was winning, as the stands roared with applause at the success of the Cubs and gave the Redbirds the old Bronx cheer.

Carleton Has Trouble Too.

Tex Carleton, Charley Grimm's starting pitcher, ran into base-hit trouble too, after grinning through four fat innings which saw him basking in an 8 to 0 lead, but that handicap gained in the early frames was too much, and four runs collected in the fifth-inning rally and another off Charley Root, who finished the game, merely made the score slightly more respectable, though not very much so.

After Macon departed, the Cardinal pitching was fair, Max Lanier turning in four good frames, but it was too late for pitching to do much for the Redbirds. Lanier finally retired for a pinch batter and Ray Harrell, after an impressive eighth inning—in fact, one of the best eighth innings ever pitched at any ball park, unless you consider innings in which all batters struck out—was nudged for four hits and three runs to make the final score more lop-sided.

Stanley Hack opened the game with a grounder that skipped between Gutteridge's hands, and when Mickey Owen dropped a pitch and couldn't find the ball in the sky because it was on the ground at his feet, Hack went to second, scoring on Billy Herman's double to right. Collins walked, Demaree sacrificed, Marty was passed intentionally and Galan made the strategy sour by hitting the first pitch to right for two bases. Lazzeri then struck out, but after Hartnett was passed intentionally, Carleton drew an unintentional pass, forcing in the fourth run of the inning, after which Macon wild-pitched Galan home to make it 5 to 0.

On and On.

The second inning was uneventful and Macon retired two men easily in the third. Then Lazzeri walked and Gabby Hartnett whacked a home run into the left field seats. When Carleton singled, Krist relieved Macon and on Hack's single Carleton over-ran second and was retired.

Collins' single, a pass to Demaree and another miscue by Gutteridge gave the Cubs a run in the fourth to make it 8 to 0 and the enemy did no more damage until the ninth when Demaree singled off Harrell's glove, Marty sacrificed, and, after Galan fouled out, Lazzeri singled, Hartnett doubled, Root walked and Hack singled to center.

Gutteridge started the Cardinals' big drive in the fifth inning, beating out a bunt to Herman. Owen forced Don at second and Lanier flied out, but Brown singled to left and Bucher singled to right scoring Owen. Slaughter singled Brown home and Medwick then hit the right field screen with a high-fly triple, scoring Bucher and Slaughter.

The Cub bull pen galvanized into action, but Carleton had enough left to strike out Mize to end that inning and Root took over the job in the sixth. Mize's double to right-center and Pepper Martin's infield single which caromed off Herman's shin produced the fifth Cardinal run in the eighth.

The defeat, eighth of the season for the Cardinals, dropped them below the .300 mark, to which they had climbed by virtue of their victories Wednesday and Thursday.

RED BIRD NOTES

CURT DAVIS, obtained in the Dean trade, will face the Cubs this afternoon in the second game of the series. Larry French, who blanked the Redbirds at Chicago, is likely to oppose Davis.

The home-coming series opener attracted 5699 cash customers. Boys and girls brought the total to 12,639.

Bobby Mattick, St. Louis boy with the Cubs, was presented with a wrist watch at home plate before the game.

The crowd took Dizzy Dean's St. Louis debut in a Cub uniform quietly. It will be different, though, when Jerome pitches here against his old teammates.

Four Cardinal runs in the fifth inning broke a string of 22 scoreless innings against the Cub pitching.

By Herman Wecke

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Ted Lyons, veteran right-hander of the White Sox, serving his sixteenth season in the major leagues, gained the 199th victory of his big league career here this afternoon, when he shutout the Browns, 3 to 0. It was his first triumph of the 1938 campaign and the first shutout for any member of the Sox twirling staff.

The Browns had numerous opportunities. They out-hit the Sox, 9 to 7, but they could not bunch their safeties to advantage. All told, the Browns had 12 base runners. In only one round, the second, did they fail to get a runner on the sacks. Five of the 12 advanced as far as second, but so effective was the Sox veteran that not a member of the Gabby Street troupe advanced beyond the middle sack.

Buster Mills, making his first appearance since he suffered an ankle injury on the training trip, opened the game with a double to reach the middle sack. The other fortunate St. Louisans were Heffner in the second and fifth; Clift in the sixth and West in the eighth. Lyons had almost perfect control, passing only one batter, Don Heffner, in the ninth round. And that pass was nullified when Tommy Heath slapped into a double play to end the contest.

McQuinn Fails in Pinch.

George McQuinn, the Browns' rookie first sacker, who was dropped to fifth place in Gabby Street's new batting order, with Beau Bell moving back to the cleanup spot, failed to come through on two occasions with a runner on second.

With Lyons twirling this sort of baseball in the 49-degree temperature, Jack Knott was forced to accept defeat though he yielded only six safeties in the six rounds he was on the hill. Knott's game was the kind which would net him victory more often than defeat.

The Browns' right-hander, who was making his first start of the campaign, was even with Lyons until the fifth. Then Berger singled, and, after Sewell and Lyons had been retired, Hayes doubled down the left field foul line to drive in Berger. It war the first run batted in for Hayes for the campaign. Kreevich followed with a single to center and Hayes rode home with the second run of the game. In the sixth, Marvin Owen punched one into the left-field stands for the final tally of the contest.

Missed Chances.

Street's men had an opportunity in the third, when Heffner, first up, was safe on Berger's fumble. Heath, Knott and Mills, however, failed to get him around. West opened the fourth with a single, but Clift hit into a double play and then Bell came through with his first of three straight hits.

In the sixth, with two out, Clift and Bell singled, but McQuinn, after dropping a pair just outside the foul line deep in the outfield, rolled to Hayes. Then in the eighth, West and Bell singled and this time McQuinn fouled to Kuhel.

Except in the two innings in which they tallied, the Sox had few opportunities against Knott and his successor, Ed Linke. In the first, Kreevich and Walker singled, but Kuhel went down. In the ninth, two were out when Kuhel singled and Owen walked, but Berger's best was a tap to Linke.

BROWNIE NOTES

CHICAGO, April 30.

BUCK NEWSOM, seeking his fourth consecutive victory of the season, will pitch for the Browns in the final of the series with the White Sox tomorrow. He will probably draw Thornton Lee as his opponent. In his only other start against the Sox, Newsom gained a 5-4 victory, driving in what proved the winning run with a single in the eighth inning.

Chilly weather held the attendance at the series opener to 5000. The thermometer registered 49.

Buster Mills, making his first appearance of the season, doubled on Lyons' first pitching effort and then before you could turn around, he was picked off the bag on Lyons' snap throw to Berger.

Clift made a fine stop of Gee Walker's smash in the fifth, robbing the Sox outfielder of a hit and the Sox of an additional tally.

M'KENDREE DEFEATS PRINCIPIA COLLEGE

GIANTS CAPTURE NINTH IN ROW; HUBBELL PITCHES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—King Carl Hubbell handcuffed the Brooklyn Dodgers with five hits today and then had to call on relief pitcher Dick Coffman to stop a threatening ninth-inning rally in hurling the Giants to a 3 to 1 victory. The Giants scored all their runs off Van Lingle Mungo for their ninth straight win.

BRUBAKER EQUALS ERROR MARK AS REDS BEAT PIRATES

CINCINNATI, April 30.—The longest "jinx" in the National League ended today when the Reds whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 2 to 0 behind the five-hit pitching of Peaches Davis. It was the Reds' first win over the Bucs after 20 straight defeats at their hands. Ival Goodman hit a homer.

Wilbur (Bill) Brubaker of the Pirates tied the modern major league record for most errors by a third baseman in a single game by committing four against the Reds.

The modern record was set by Jim Burk with Milwaukee in 1901 and equalled last year by Buddy Lewis of Washington. Back in 1884, however, Joe Mulvey of the Phillies was guilty of six fumbles in one game for the "ancient" mark, which was tied in 1888 by Joe Werrick of Louisville.

Veteran Infielder Retires.

WRAY'S COLUMN

answer ready and waiting.

"We've already figured out that one," he said. "If there's a tie for first we pay half what the ticket calls for on each horse. If you have a $10 ticket on Fighting Fox at 6 to 1, and he runs a dead heat with Stagehand, we pay the ticket holder half of the $70 coming to him. To the holder of a $10 ticket on Stagehand at 4 to 1 we would pay $25."

"What if the ticket reads $10 across the board?"

"Well, the place and show have nothing to do with the dead heat for first place. We would pay second and third place sums in full."

With several horses showing wonderful form as the Derby nears, it would occasion no surprise if a dead heat were to result this year. In fact, in 1937 one almost resulted in the $50,000 Preakness Stakes, run one week after the Derby. In that race, Pompoon, a feeble second to War Admiral in the Derby, raced the son of Man o' War to a whisker. The photo finish showed the two horses extremely close; a nod either way could have produced a tie.

Stagehand Not So Hot?

AT LEAST ONE BOOKIE in the country is not incandescent over the probability of a Stagehand victory next Saturday. This commissioner, so dispatches relate, is Tommy Nugent of Louisville and he's laying 6 to 5 that Stagehand will not finish in the money!

Considering that in some books Stagehand opened up at 4, 2 and even, Mr. Nugent is not scattering his gold with any great abandon. The original future book estimate evidently contemplated that Stagehand would either win or not be in the money. The Louisville agent apparently figures the same way.

The Stagehand pessimism is supposed to be based on a disappointing trial in which Sande's horse was reported as "all in" after one and one-eighth miles in 1:55 1-5. "Stagehand did not appear at all impressive and lost many of his followers," one racing observer commented.

This does not agree with reports that Stagehand worked five furlongs in 1:00 flat, breezing. If he can step five furlongs at that gait, he'll be ready for the Derby Saturday.

The fact is, however, that Stagehand's price should be rising instead of falling, not because of his own deficiencies, but because so many other horses have shown real Derby class in recent races or trials—Dauber, Bull Lea, Fighting Fox and others.

Sande is very strong for his charge, Stagehand; but the son of Sickle really will have to be as good a horse as he was when he defeated Seabiscuit, in order to clinch this year's Derby. On the face of things it's a tough job to pick the money nags in this stake.

Have to Show Lawrin.

NATIVES of this state are looking to Lawrin in the Derby. Being from Missouri they figure that the son of Insco and his trainer Ben Jones of Parnell, Mo., will have to be shown. That workout in 1:38 for the mile was the fastest on record and stamps Lawrin as one of the dangerous candidates for the 1938 prize.

Owned in Missouri, trained in Missouri and bred in Missouri by Herbert A. Woolf of Kansas City, Lawrin will be truly representative of the State, if he wins.

Insco, sire of Lawrin, is by Sir Gallahad III. He raced for Griff Watkins of International Shoe fame. The name Insco is a contraction of International Shoe Co.

Lawrin, if successful, will not be the first Missouri-owned horse to win the Derby. J. D. Patton of St. Louis won the event in 1882 with Apollo. J. C. Cahn, also of this city, won it in 1897 with Typhoon II. Ed Corrigan of Kansas City captured the prize in 1890 with Riley.

Should Lawrin win, his share of the purse would run over $50,000, more than three times as much as the combined purses won by three preceding Derby winners from Missouri.

How that Derby has grown!

FIGHTING FOX WINS WOOD MEMORIAL BY THREE LENGTHS

more than a length and a half separated the pair as they took the first turn and swung down the back stretch with Nedayr in third place, Bourbon King fourth and Can't Wait far back.

Nedayr and Bourbon King closed in at the turn out of the backstretch but were unable to maintain the pace. Opera Hat was still in front as they hit the home stretch, three-sixteenths of a mile from the judges.

There Stout gave the Fox of Belair a few cracks of the bat and the smooth striding bay stuck his nose in front and never stopped until he had the situation well in hand. Stout eased up in the final strides but George Woolf kept driving with Can't Wait, getting the Selznick colt up in the final strides for second place.

Fitzsimmons tried to make it a double in six furlongs of the $5000 Jamaica Handicap but the speedy Merry Lassie from the Wheatley Stable stopped in the stretch and yielded honors to Walter Carter's Clodion, a 5-to-1 shot. A length separated the pair at the finish, with E. W. Duffy's Grey Gold six lengths back in third place.

Louisville Expects Only 13 Horses to Run in Derby.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30.—Of the 103 thoroughbreds named for the Kentucky Derby when nominations closed Feb. 15, railbirds believed today the field had been narrowed to 13 for the race here next Saturday.

There might be one or two more, but a small field is indicated.

Several have eliminated themselves by un-Derbylike performances. Others—among them Milky way Farms' leading candidate, Tiger—have been withdrawn because of injuries.

Latest of the likely starters to step out was W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr, which turned in a poor performance today in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

Here are the 13 now regarded as most likely starters (with owners):

Stagehand	Maxwell Howard
Fighting Fox	William F. Woodward
Dauber	William du Pont Jr.
Mountain Ridge	tMrs. Ethel V. Mars
Bull Lea	Warren Wright
Lawrin	H. M. Woolf
Menow	Hal Price Headley

DI MAGGIO AND GORDON HURT AS YANKS WIN

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Sparked by Joe DiMaggio, who made his 1938 debut, the New York Yankees walloped the Senators 8 to 4 today. Spud Chandler went the route for the Yanks. DiMaggio and second-baseman Joe Gordon were injured in a collision in the sixth inning and were taken to a hospital for observation.

DiMaggio had a lump on his right temple and Gordon's right jaw was bruised.

Examining physicians reported later that neither was badly hurt and that DiMaggio probably would be able to play tomorrow. Gordon, they said, would be out a day or so longer.

Neither DiMaggio nor Gordon had any recollection of their crash.

The collision occurred on a high fly to short left center by Pinch-hitter Taft Wright in the Senators' half of the sixth inning. Zeke Bonura had doubled, Jonathan Stone grounded out, Buddy Myer flied out and Rick Ferrell walked when Wright was sent in to pinch-hit for Pitcher Dutch Leonard.

DiMaggio, Gordon and Left-Fielder Myril Hoag all chased after the fly. Hoag took it for the out, but as he did, DiMaggio and Gordon met in a head-on crash.

INDIANS LOSE TO TIGERS, 5-3

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, April 30. — The Detroit Tigers opened their game with the Indians today with a three-run attack in the first inning, powered by Rudy York's homer, and finally won, 5 to 3. It was the third defeat of the season for the Indians, who tied the game in their half of the first, but were powerless in the other innings. Earl Averill also hit a home run.

Tom Sharkey in Home for Aged

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Tom Sharkey, one of the famed figures of earlier day boxing and once possessor of a fortune of $250,000 today became an inmate of the Laguna Honda Home—San Francisco's haven for the aged, infirm and destitute.

He still carries his head high, but he's broke, this old time gladiator who came out of the United States Navy to fight them all. He'll be 65 years old next September.

Sharkey boasted he "wasn't afraid of any man alive." He fought John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, James J. Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons and Kid McCoy among others. His last match was a six-round no-decision bout with Jack Monroe in 1904 at Philadelphia.

Never a champion, the barrel-chested Irishman slashed a colorful path through the boxing ranks during a career which started in 1893.

Unwise investments, horse racing and the lure of the bright lights dissipated his wealth. Of late years he acted as a guard at race tracks.

In 1896 he boxed a three-round draw with the late John L. Sullivan. The same year he fought what was called a four-round draw with Jim Corbett and won on a sixth-round foul from "Ruby Robert" Fitzsimmons.

Old accounts of the fights say Sharkey was giving Corbett a beating in the exhibition bout when the latter's seconds jumped into the ring.

His two most notable battles were with Jeffries. Jeffries won a 20-round decision in San Francisco in 1898 and a 25-round verdict the following year in New York.

SPORT SALAD
by
L. Davis

The Rover Boys in St. Louis.

Thanks to Ken Keltner, the 22-year-old rookie and 18-year-old Bob Feller, the Indians won a close game from the Browns Friday afternoon. Youth will be served.

Keltner batted in all three of the Indians' runs for his youthful teammate. It was a nice little tea party. Bob Feller poured and Rollie Hemsley received.

BOB FELLER, who has burning speed
And shoots and curves no end,
Finds Keltner is a friend indeed
When a Feller needs a friend.

See where Charley Grimm has gone in for managing in a big way. He is watching Mr. Wrigley's expensive though fragile piece of bric a brac with the tender solicitude of a mother for her first born.

On the eve of his first visit to the home town as a member of the Cubs Ol' Diz pulled a muscle or something and had to be taken out in the fourth inning of the game with the Reds Friday.

He might not have pitched against his former playmates anyway but the Cardinal clientele was bitterly disappointed.

Bob Feller doesn't specialize in "color" but he has a fast ball that the gents who lay it on the line go miles to see.

He Has Something There.

See where Jimmy Wilson, the last of the playing managers in the National, is going to hang up the mask and wind pad. Jimmy succinctly explains his action by remarking, "What's the use of being on the playing list when you can't play?" Sounds reasonable.

Managing in Philadelphia is different from managing in other cities. If a manager can manage to hold onto a star player and see him safely through the flurry of a bull market he might be written down as a successful manager.

The manager who has to develop ivory for home consumption only is fortunate indeed.

See where the old Black Sox were given another airing in the Bathnight Post. It was news to the present generation.

May 9 will be George McQuinn day at Griffith Stadium in honor of the Browns' first baseman. Looks like first division!

After making four hits in 10 games Beau Bell polished up the old batting lamp and made three hits in one game against Bob Feller. Another example of the uncertainties of baseball.

The man on the breadbox says take it or leave it, but you can bet all the saleratus in the bakery on Seabiscuit to take War Admiral.

St. Louis is the only major league city that doesn't have daylight saving time. Old Sol is good enough for us.

We don't believe in trying to reform the calendar or the solar system but we might go in for a spot of night baseball in the near future.

To night-time baseball we may turn.

INDIAN RESERVATIONS

CLEVELAND, M'KINLEY AND CENTRAL WIN

Cleveland remained within one-half game of first place in the City High School League baseball race and also knocked Beaumont out of a tie for second place by defeating the Blue Jackets, 11 to 7, after McKinley had won from Soldan, 7 to 2 and Central had shaded Roosevelt, 2 to 1, in eight innings yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium.

McKinley and Cleveland each have three victories, while the latter also has one defeat. Central is third with two victories and one loss.

Cleveland outhit Beaumont only 10 to nine, but the South Siders received the benefit of nine passes issued by Norman Stiemel, Beaumont lefthander. John Eichelberger, Cleveland hurler, always had something in reserve.

Matthew Maguvero, diminutive McKinley right-hander, was again in fine form as he hurled the team to his and its third victory in as many starts. His fast ball accounted for 10 strike-outs, raising his total for three games to 32, and for the second consecutive game he allowed only three hits. All of them came in the fourth when Salzman and Schiling singled and scored on Goldblum's double to left.

In fact, Soldan had no base runners in any other inning but the fourth.

Joe Honhorst, Soldan's 6-foot 5-inch right-hander, who blanked Washington University's freshmen earlier in the week, also pitched well, but his mates committed six errors in the field, and also he hit two batters, in addition to yielding six hits and three walks.

Argument Delays Game

The Central-Roosevelt game was the best played but was marred by a eighth inning argument, which lasted 20 minutes. Then Roosevelt's coach, Lee R. Carlson, announced that the remainder of the game would be played under protest. The score was tied 1-all at the time.

Benish's single in the second inning, an infield out, and Feick's error on Cline's ground ball had given the Rough Riders a run to match the tally. Central counted in the first on Fehr's two-base boot of Wulfmeyer's bounder and Serb's single to right.

Neither team had threatened then until the eighth when Hughes of Roosevelt shot a drive to deep left field along the foul line. The ball struck just outside the line and appeared to be hidden from Umpire Vernon Sandusky's view by the three-inch ledge of the sand pit in left. Sandusky ruled the ball fair, then changed his decision.

"It couldn't have been fair, for I would have seen it hit the ground. As it was, the ball was hidden from my sight by the pit, which is in foul territory," Sandusky said.

Rule on Protests.

Carlson then played the game under protest. Public High School protests don't become official, however, until the principal of the protesting school sends a formal note to the principal of the other school.

The Medic-Rambler game will decide the league championship and give the winning team the right to play the Northerners in Chicago on next Sunday.

EAST ST. LOUIS WINS MEET AS 5 MARKS FALL

Five records were set as East St. Louis won the eighth annual Southwest Illinois High School Conference relays yesterday afternoon at Granite City. The winners counted 83 20-21 points.

Jim Condometti of Collinsville leaped to 11 feet 2½ inches in the pole vault to break the mark of 10 feet 9¾ inches st by Hicks of Collinsville. In the high hurdles, Don Harpley of East St. Louis was timed in 15.8 seconds, which lowered the mark of 16.1 seconds made by Holcomb of Wood River.

The East St. Louis 480-yard shuttle low hurdles team broke the mark of 54.2 seconds owned by Wood River. Members of the team were Ray Sheppard, Woods, Palaich and Harpley.

East St. Louis also broke the sprint medley mark of 3 minutes 35.9 seconds by a tenth of a second. Ray Sheppard, Martin Kuykendall, Harpley and Tom Ganey ran on that team. Granite City held the old record.

Ed Evers of Collinsville threw the javelin 174 feet 11 inches to surpass the old mark of 169 feet 11 inches by Freiberg of Collinsville.

Granite City was second with 70 2-7 points, Belleville third with 60 10-21, Collinsville fourth with 53 17-21, Edwardsville fifth with 29 2-3 points, Wood River sixth with 23 2-3 points and Madison seventh with 13 1-7 points.

There were seven ties for fifth place in the pole vault, which complicated the scoring, since there was one point to be split seven ways.

The results:

POLE VAULT—Won by Jim Condometti, Collinsville; Cottam, East St. Louis, second; Grothjahn, Granite City, third; Abel, Edwardsville, fourth; seven tied for fifth. Height—11 ft. 2½ in. (New record. Old record 10 ft. 9¾ in., Hicks, Collinsville.)

MILE RELAY—Won by Granite City (Robertson, Whittaker, Tatum, Brown); Belleville, second; Edwardsville, third; Collinsville, fourth; East St. Louis, fifth. Time—3m. 42.2s.

480-YARD SHUTTLE LOW HURDLES—Won by East S. Louis (Ray Sheppard, Woods, Palaich, Harpley); Granite City, second; Belleville, third; Wood River, fourth. Time—52.6s. (New record. Old record 54.2s by Wood River.)

DISTANCE MEDLEY RELAY — Won by East St. Louis (Coleman, Kuykendall, Cohen, Ganey); Belleville, second; Granite City, third; Edwardsville, fourth. Time—11m. 14.7s.

440-YARD RELAY — Won by East St. Louis (Ray Sheppard, Royce Sheppard, Kindall, Kuykendall); Granite City, second; Edwardsville, third; Wood River, fourth. (Belleville was disqualified for fouling Granite City). Time—45.7s.

TWO-MILE RELAY — Won by Collinsville (Monroe, Halloway, Jackstadt, Weller); Belleville, second; East St. Louis, third; Wood River, fourth; Granite City, fifth. Time—8m. 50s.

SHOT PUT—Won by Ricks, Wood River; Evers, Collinsville, second; Love, Granite City, third; Wagner, Belleville, fourth; Pfaff, Collinsville, fifth. Distance — 43 ft. 11½ in.

880-YARD RELAY—Won by East St. Louis (Ray Sheppard, Royce Sheppard, Kendall, Kuykendall); Belleville, second; Granite City, third; Wood River, fourth. Time—1m. 34.3s.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Ed Evers, Collinsville; Dalappe, Collinsville, second; Dewald, Belleville, third; Meek, Edwardsville, fourth. Distance—174 ft. 11 in. New record, Old record 169 ft. 11 in. by Freiberg, Collinsville.)

HIGH HURDLES — Won by Don Harpley, East St. Louis; Schmidt, Granite City, second; Schell, Belleville, third; Lewis, Collinsville, fourth; Downer, East St. Louis, fifth. Time—15.8s. (New record. Old record 16.1s by Holcomb, Wood River.)

BROAD JUMP—Won by Parker, Granite City; Brown, Granite City, second; Kelio, Madison, third; Schmidt, Collinsville, fourth; Holcomb, East St. Louis, fifth. Distance—20 ft. 1¼ in.

JUNIOR 880-YARD RELAY — Won by Collinsville (Kleppisch, Wrigley, Whillchurch, Edwards); East St. Louis, second; Edwardsville, third; Granite City, fourth. Time—1m. 14.1s.

Tennis Forced on Alice Marble —To Get Her Out of Baseball

By Reno Hahn.

Alice Marble, first ranking women tennis player in America, was forced into tennis at the age of 12 because her brothers decided she was too old to continue playing baseball and being a mascot for the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League.

Miss Marble, in town yesterday for exhibitions at the new Shaw Park courts in Clayton yesterday and today, related atthe Coronado Hotel, where she is stopping, how she first began to play tennis.

She played baseball regularly, with boys' teams. She visited the Seals' park regularly to watch them play and one day was invited to work out with the team. She did so and the players adopted her as their mascot.

After she reached the age of 12, her brothers decided that she was too old to play baseball and stay around the park every afternoon, so they made her take up tennis. She was reluctant to do so, because tennis at that time was regarded as a "sissy" game and she was very much of a tomboy.

However, she took up the sport and soon became one of the best.

Her coach, Miss Eleanor Temant, thinks she will win the Wimbledon championship this season. Another famous player and one-time champion, Miss Mary K. Browne, is also of that opinion.

However, Miss Marble would not state her opinion on that matter but said that competition would be far keener in the women's division than ever before, with Mrs. Helen Wills Moody making a comeback, and Helen Jacobs entered again, and several other top-notch players from foreign countries competing.

Miss Marble has a strenuous scheduled outlined for the coming season. She will depart from New York on May 11 for England. Arriving there on the sixteenth, she may start her invasion with a tournament the following week, but would prefer to wait until May 30. Following those two meets, she will compete in the Wightman Cup matches on June 10 and 11, and then play in the Wimbledon meet.

She would like to play in the Dutch championships, but does not know if she can do that before returning to this country to take part in the first rank meets which will be held late in the summer, ending with the national championships.

STAGEHAND AND SANDE STILL DOMINATE THE DERBY PICTURE

WITH BIG RACE SIX DAYS OFF, FIELD SHRINKS

Fighting Fox, Bull Lea, Lawrin, Dauber and Menow Among Most Serious Contenders.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Fresh drama in an old setting will be enacted at Churchill Downs next Saturday when the pick of the nation's three-year-olds face the barrier for the sixty-fourth running of the Kentucky Derby.

Once it was Earl Sande against the field. This time it'll be Sande's horse, Stagehand, against the field.

Between 15 and 20 other horses are expected to answer the call to "Boots and Saddles" but unless something goes wrong between now and post time the bigger part of the crowd will be rooting either financially or sentimentally for the Earl's cinderella horse.

Stagehand is quoted at 5 to 2 in the future books and probably will be held at even shorter odds when the starter sends the field away on the mile and a quarter journey.

After failing to win a race as a two-year-old, Stagehand wrote a rags-to-riches story that would do credit to Horatio Alger. In the space of 10 days he won the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby and the $100,000 Santa Handicap, defeating the great Seabiscuit by a nose in the latter.

Since then the Maxwell Howard colt has been keeping in trim at Churchill Downs while the remainder of the 102 nominees have either proved their right to go after the big prize or eliminated themselves.

Six Other Top Horses.

At least five other horses rate serious consideration. They are Fighting Fox, from William Woodward's Belair Stud; Bull Lea, from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm; William du Pont Jr.'s Dauber; Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin, and Hal Price Headley's Menow.

By winning the Wood Memorial at Jamaica, traditionally the final test for the Eastern candidates, Fighting Fox firmly established himself as the East's leading threat to Stagehand. The Fox, which originally drew notice because he is a full brother to Gallant Fox, the 1930 Derby winner, outran four other Derby eligibles, Myron Selznick's Can't Wait, which took second money three lengths behind, Mrs. W. P. Stewart's Pasteurized, Hal Price Headley's Bourbon King and Nedayr.

Future book odds here on The Fox dropped to 3 to 1 after the colt's brilliant race while Pasteurized and Nedayr were definitely declared out of the Derby after finishing fifth and sixth, respectively.

Lawrin's prospects were hurt considerably when the Woolf colt finished third behind The Chief, stablemate of Stagehand, and Mrs. Ethel Mars' Mountain Ridge in a six-furlong race for Derby eligibles at Churchill Downs today. Lassator, Valdina Farms' entry, was fourth and last

Both Dauber and Lawrin gained their reputations in winter performances. DuPont's colt was only a half-length off Stagehand in the Santa Antia Derby and then wound up his Derby preps with an easy victory in Maryland. Lawrin flaunted the Kansas City merchant's colors in front in the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park, and headed for the Downs.

Bull Lea, a consistent money performer last year, and Menow, champion juvenile of 1937, hooked up in two races at Keeneland and both times the Wright colt won in track record time. He was clocked in 1:44 for a mile and a sixteenth, leaving Menow far behind, and then in the Blue Grass Stakes last Thursday stepped a mile and an eighth in 1:49 3-5 with the Headley ace less than a half-length back.

Menow likely will not have the benefit of a ride from his regular jockey, Charley Kurtsinger. The "Flying Dutchman," who won with War Admiral last year, has been reinstated by the Brookmeade Stable but in all probability he will ride his employer's Handcuff in the Pimlico Oaks on Derby day. Should Menow come through Saturday he will be the first Belmont Futurity winner in history to win the Derby.

For that matter, Stagehand, Dauber and Lawrin have Derby history against them. Only one winter stake winner, Black Gold, ever captured the Downs classic. Such good horses as Brevity and Roman Soldier failed in recent years after capturing important winter events.

Women's Bowling Event.

Sixty-four teams of the St. Louis Public School Playgrounds Mothers Circle will start play Monday morning at 10 o'clock in their annual team elimination bowling tournament for the Henry C. Menne trophy at the Wellston Recreation Alleys, 5942 Easton avenue. There will be 14 teams rolling on the opening squad and 14 more teams will follow at 1:30. On Wednesday 14 teams will bowl at 10 a. m., 14 teams at noon, and eight at 2 p. m. completing the first round. The 32 winners will bowl Friday at Melene.

Pitches No-Hit Game.

Pitching for Berkeley High School at Patonville, Friday, Jimmy Bohing held his opponents hitless. Berkeley won the game, 5 to 0.

40,000 ATTEND SUFFOLK DOWNS TRACK OPENING

BOSTON, April 30.—A crowd of 40,000 at Suffolk Downs today welcomed horse racing back to New England for the 1938 season and saw the H. & H. Stock Farm's Panther Creek win the $5000 added Plymouth Rock Handicap.

Panther Creek took the opening day feature by two lengths and a half over Mrs. Emil Denemark's Higher Cloud to pay $14.40 for a $2 ticket. Higher Cloud, which paid $4.60 to place, nosed out the favored Clocks, from the L. E. Ogle Barn, in a photo finish for second. Clocks paid $2.40 to show.

Panther Creek's win was his second win of the year in five starts and the $2150 that the victory was worth brought his earnings to $3400. Clocks, shipped here on the eve of the opening for the race, burned up $14,202 that was bet on him to win when he was not able to go on with Panther Creek's stretch drive.

Jockey Scheih, who rode Panther Creek, won also with R. Pinchot in the second race and Upslala in the fourth.

BELLEVILLE BOWLERS TAKE FIRST PLACE IN ILLINOIS TOURNEY

PEORIA, Ill., April 30.—Al Hartman's Falstaff Beers of Belleville rolled into first place in the five-man event of the Illinois State Tourney here today with a 2854 pin series. Max Stein, former A. B. C. All-Events Champion rolled with the Belleville team. He gathered 545. Hartman was top with a 640-pin series.

J. Granberg and W. Hartman, Belleville grabbed second place in the two-man event with 1111.

R. Crone Woodstock, shot 623 for fourth place in singles while E. Wirz, Belleville hit 619 for fifth place.

Max Stein shot 595 in the doubles and 582 in singles.

Before you pay above $1000 for a motor car—

LOOK AT LaSALLE!

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

MOST PEOPLE WILL AGREE that the motorist who pays the price of a LaSalle ought to get a LaSalle.

Yet, many do not. They make an expenditure which entitles them to Cadillac quality, Cadillac safety and Cadillac prestige—but fail to secure them.

This is undoubtedly due to a misunderstanding as to the cost of a new LaSalle.

V-8 CADILLAC ENGINE

Because LaSalle's reputation is so fine, they think the price must be high.

However, this is not the case. There are actually eleven motor car manufacturers who have models costing more than a new LaSalle V-8.

Before you invest—investigate. If you expect to spend above $1,000 for your next car—come in and look at LaSalle.

ST. LOUIS BOYS IN THE MINORS

Willis Norman, who had been playing right field for Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, was benched by Manager Wade Killefer because of weak hitting. Norman, regarded as a slugger, was obtained from St. Paul of the American Association. He had a trial with the White Sox a couple of seasons ago.

Herb Fash, former St. Louis U. athlete, who played first base for Dayton Beach in the Florida State League, has been sold to Taff of the Texas Valley League.

Joe Schultz Jr., catcher, who trained with the Cardinals at Bradenton, Fla., has joined the Asheville Tourists of the Piedmont League. He is a son of Joe Schultz, the Pittsburgh Pirates farm manager.

Jack Zeller, director of the Detroit Tigers' minor league clubs, started for a 30-day tour of the Tigers' farms, setting out from Beaumont, Tex.

Tom Cigno, an infielder, a protege of the St. Louis Fire Department, has been released by Bartlesville of the Western League.

Joe Rayne, a first sacker, who was sent to Mayfield of the Kitty League by Springfield of the Three-I League last week, has been transferred to Batesville of the Northeast Arkansas League. All clubs are Browns' farms. Elmer Kirchoff of East St. Louis is manager of the Batesville team.

George Silvey, an outfielder, who had signed as manager of the Shelby club of the North Carolina State League, but was declared a free agent by Judge Landis in the Cedar Rapids case, and instructed not to affiliate with a St. Louis Cardinal club for three years, will be permitted to manage the Shelby club after all. Silvey pleaded his case to Judge Landis by letter and the concession was granted, but he will be a free agent after the 1938 season.

Al (Chink) Marchand, outfielder with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League, has returned to right field for the Seals after injuring an ankle during spring training. Marchand played with Kansas City of the American Association last season.

The Rochester infield in the International League has Maurice Sturdy of Kirkwood at third base, Tony Mallinosky of Collinsville at third and Jack "Red" Juelich at the keystone sack. On other International League clubs are Alban Glossop, at second base for Syracuse, and Herman "Ham" Schulte, at second base for Newark. At Baltimore, Chalmers Cissell is playing third base.

Billikens Split Double Header

NORMAL, Ill., April 30.—St. Louis University's Billikens and Illinois Normal U's Red Birds divided a twin bill here this afternoon, the latter winning the first game 6 to 1 and the Billikens the second by the same score.

Roy Scott, the Billikens' submarine hurler, pitched great ball to give his teammates a victory. He doled out five hits, the same number allowed the Bills in the first game, and struck out 11 batters.

In the opening contest, the pitching of Earl Sprau and the timely hitting of his mates, who got nine hits off Mike Hart, gave the Normal club victory. Sprau permitted but five scattered hits, never more than one in any inning.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE PITCHER GIVES NO HITS IN 7 INNINGS

Edwin Kimmel, 16-year-old pitcher, allowed the opponents no hits as his team, the Millers, defeated the Southwests, 11 to 1, in a Municipal League, junior division, baseball game yesterday afternoon. The game was only seven innings.

Kimmel struck out nine and walked seven. The losers scored their lone run in the seventh frame.

The teams are members of the Gabby Street League.

LEWIS ACCEPTS TERMS FOR CONTEST HERE WITH HARRY THOMAS

John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion of the world, has accepted terms for a match here with Harry Thomas, Eagle Bend (Minn.) heavyweight, Larry Atkins, matchmaker, stated in a wire from Cleveland last night.

Thomas has not yet agreed to meet Lewis and in the event he will not, Atkins stated he would try to arrange a bout between Jimmy Adamick, Detroit heavyweight, who knocked out Red Bruce at the Auditorium Thursday night, and Otis Thomas, who won from Charley Belanger on the same program.

Atkins is the proud father of a baby girl born to Mrs. Atkins at the home of her parents in Cleveland Friday.

YVON ROBERT TO MEET GOTCH IN MAT MATCH

Rye Gets Lacrosse Tourney.

The national women's lacrosse championship will be held at Rye, N. Y., the Memorial day week-end.

Auto News and Notes

NINE HUNDRED AND FIFTY Standard Oil dealers from St. Louis, the county and surrounding Missouri territory met Monday and Tuesday nights at the DeSoto Hotel to hear Standard Oil Co. officers explain advertising and merchandising plans for spring and summer. C. C. Smith, assistant manager, told the dealers that Standard Oil was putting the bulk of its 1938 advertising appropriation into newspaper space, and said that the advertising program featured low cost per mile driving and, directed attention to clean restroom service for motorists. A humorous monologue on the evolution of the restroom as a factor in merchandising was given by R. W. May, manager of the St. Louis division, who remarked that Standard Oil dealers were pioneers in furnishing clean restroom facilities.

R. W. May

The company's new policy of offering Quaker State motor oil through Standard Oil stations, and plans for further featuring of this added product, were discussed by G. T. Dougherty, special salesman. C. Mahoney, of the Quaker State Oil Refining Co., reviewed the advertising campaign with the help of a technicolor film.

C. C. Smith

Dramatizations of various sales problems and methods of dealing with them, of ways to create the urge for traveling, and of ways in which dealers could take advantage of advertising and merchandising plans and features, were presented by C. S. Reiber, sales manager; F. C. Dickerson, tire sales manager, and F. B. Kramer, advertising representative, all of the St. Louis office.

May closed the meetings with assurances that there would be plenty of business for salesmen who would go after it, and gave a resume of the assistance upon which Standard Oil dealers could count in 1938.

The meeting was in charge of D. F. Conrad, special salesman in St. Louis.

WATER IS PUMPED THROUGH the cooling system of a 175-h. p. Packard 12-cylinder car at the rate of more than 20 tons per hour when the car is traveling 40 miles per hour, and at a still greater rate, of course, at faster speeds. At 40 miles per hour, 48 gallons of water is pumped through the cooling system every minute, or 2898 gallons per hour. As the cooling system holds 10 gallons of water, the entire water supply circulates through the system 289 times in an hour.

LARGER SALES THAN IN THE corresponding period of 1937 are reported by the Cadillac Motor Co. In the first quarter, 3112 Cadillacs were sold, D. E. Ahrans, general sales manager, says. This was a three and a half per cent increase over the first quarter of last year.

A PART IN THE PROMOTION of the New York World's Fair, which will open in 1939, is to be played by U. S. Rubber, according to R. L. Whisler, district manager here for the U. S. Tire Dealers' Mutual Corporation. To help in stimulating interest in the fair, 48 good-will cars will leave New York tomorrow to tour every state and visit all the state capitals and the largest cities. The cars will be driven by members of U. S. Rubber's field engineering organization and will be equipped with U. S. Royal Master safety tires. Each of the 48 cars will be driven directly to a state capital. A forty-ninth car will go to Washington. In addition to the fair promotion, the cars will serve, with the co-operation of the A. A. A., as a national safety driving demonstration. The drivers have been made special members of the A. A. A. and the United States Safety Society.

A NEW LINE OF DODGE three-quarter-ton trucks is announced. With a maximum gross weight rating of 5200 pounds, the new trucks are available with flat cowl face, chassis and cab, express, stake and platform body types on 120-inch wheelbase and in all these types plus panel and canopy models on an 136-inch wheelbase. Dimensions of the panel body are length, 115 inches; maximum width, 58⅜ inches and maximum height, 50⅝ inches. The engine used in these trucks develops 75 horsepower.

THE CONTINENTAL AUTO Supply Co. has moved into its new building at 5837 Delmar boulevard where it has complete modern equipment for servicing on autos, brakes, tires, batteries, lubrication and washing. The firm, of which Walter St. Cyr is head, held its formal opening in the new quarters Friday and yesterday. A gasoline filling station and motor oil service are part of its setup.

JOHN P. MANSFIELD, WHO for the past six years was merchandise manager and district representative in Chicago, has been appointed city manager for Dodge in St. Louis. He started in business with the Chrysler Corporation 15 years ago, serving as a factory apprentice, in the car order department, as a dealer's retail sales manager and as a used car representative, and joined Dodge eight years ago.

J. P. Mansfield

His appointment was announced at a Dodge luncheon held at the Park Plaza by Allison Miller, regional manager. Les Mahon, whom Mansfield succeeds as city manager, has been transferred to Seattle, Wash., where he will be in charge of truck sales.

STARTING TOMORROW, A fleet of 25 Buick cars, carrying couriers of the New York World's Fair which will open in 1939, will leave New York for all parts of the country. The fleet will be made up of Model 81 and 91 Buicks, on the roof of each of which will be a stainless steel model of the trylon and perisphere scheme of the fair. In Missouri, the car assigned to this State will visit St. Louis and other cities, and at Jefferson City a key to the fair and a scroll to be signed will be presented to Gov. Stark. On completion of the tour, the model trylon and perisphere and the scroll will be placed on exhibition at the State Capitol.

TWENTY-SEVEN GRADUATES of the Chevrolet school for sons of Chevrolet dealers heard M. E. Coyle, general manager of the company, deliver the commencement address in Detroit the past week. W. E. Holler, general sales manager for Chevrolet, suggested that the dealers give their graduating sons positions in the business management of their business, so that the benefits of their training might be capitalized. Among the graduates were Hubert L. Tate, son of J. H. Tate, of the Gallatin Motor Co., Gallatin, Mo., and Charles De Witt, son of E. E. De Witt, of the Corn Belt Chevrolet Co., Jacksonville, Ill.

PLANS FOR A NATIONAL TIRE Safety week from May 14 through May 21, designed as the climax of a campaign to accelerate the replacement of an estimated 59,000,000 auto tires which have been worn smooth or will be before the end of this year, are being pushed by the tire division of the Rubber Manufacturers' Association. Facts emphasizing the danger of driving cars with worn tires will be presented, as will also the economic folly of trying to obtain the few extra miles in dangerous casings.

GOSSIP TO THE EFFECT THAT rubber fenders for autos are in the offing is the result of wishful thinking rather than matured consideration of the problems involved, according to R. C. Sanders, rubber expert for the De Soto car factory. "It is easy to see that the driver who is in the habit of nicking others' fenders would like to see such a development soon," Sanders says. "But years of research and development in the laboratory must be spent before anything practical in the way of rubber fenders will result."

APPOINTMENT OF WILLIAM K. Harrison as assistant sales manager for Willys Overland Motors, Inc., is announced. Harrison goes to Willys from Pittsburgh, Pa., where he was active in wholesaling and retailing low priced cars.

THE LARGEST SEVEN-PASSENGER Plymouth ever built has just been added to the Plymouth line. It is a four-door touring sedan with built-in trunk, has a 132-inch wheelbase and measures 214 inches from bumper to bumper. The auxiliary seats, which fold into the back of the front seat when not in use, are four inches wider than seats formerly regarded as adequate, and are built three inches closer together, to seat three passengers in comfort. The car has a rear axle gear ratio of 4.3 to 1 for reserve power when carrying driver and eight passengers.

THE EDDIE C. MILLER MOTOR CO., which for the past 15 years has been at 1831 South Kingshighway, has moved one block east to 1938 Vandeventer avenue where new and larger quarters give it more than 10,000 square feet of floor space. The firm, of which Eddie C. Miller is president, specializes in dent and fender work, and also is a Hudson and Terraplane auto dealer. Miller said that new equipment was being installed and the building completely redecorated. He is retaining his organization, with George Craig as shop foreman and Robert E. Knoblauch as sales manager in charge of Hudson and Terraplane sales.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION FOR outstanding work has been given by the Pontiac Motor Co. to Eugene Haley, parts and accessories manager for the Christ Christen Pontiac Co., St. Louis. It ranks him as one of the leading parts managers for Pontiac dealers in the country.

NINE TROPHIES WON BY Graham cars in the last three Yosemite gasoline economy runs will be sent on a tour of dealers' showrooms throughout the country. Each year since 1936, Graham Superchargers have won the sweepstakes trophy in this competition with Clay Moore, a nonprofessional, driving the cars. Osborn Wedgworth was driver of the unsupercharged Grahams which won price class awards.

STEAMBOATS BEING SHIFTED FOR SUMMER EXCURSIONS

President to Start North From New Orleans May 24; Capitol Due Here by May 11.

Shifting of the five boats of Streckfus Steamers, Inc., has been started in preparation for the summer excursion season on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. The all-steel President began operations at New Orleans April 17. It will start north May 24 and will reach St. Louis for the summer June 11.

The Capitol, which left New Orleans April 18, will be here May 11 for an excursion of the Kirkwood and Ferguson high schools and May 23 and 24 for trips for the Granite City High School, the National Association of Purchasing Agents, Lindenwood College and the Retail Druggists' Association. Then it will move on to St. Paul for the summer.

The J. S. will b ehere June 4 to 7 for a number of excursions, then will put in the summer between Hannibal, Mo., and Red Wing, Minn. The St. Paul will move from Paducah, Ky., to Pittsburgh, and the Washington will continue to cruise the Ohio.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL HORSE SHOW WINNERS

Western Military Academy Scored Easy Victory Over 20 Schools.

Western Military Academy scored an easy victory over about 20 schools in winning most points in the fifth annual horse show for preparatory schools, sponsored by Maryville College, which closed last night at Missouri Stables Arena, 5200 Berthold avenue. The show started Thursday night.

Ruth Franklin and Mary Jane Kinsella of Villa Duchesne won first place in the advanced girls' three-gaited pair class, one of the most interesting events last night.

Others in the advanced girls' pair event were Mary Jane O'Reilly and Mary Elizabeth Goodwin of Sacred Heart Academy City House, second place; Mary Jane Muckerman and Lily Claire Faust, Villa Duchesne, third, and Henriette Lane and Suzanne Buckner, Visitation Academy, fourth.

Miss Goodwin also won first in the three-gaited event for single riders in the advanced girls' class, with Miss Muckerman second. Other winners in this class were Irene Corley of Villa Duchesne, Miss Buckner and Miss Faust.

The four-abreast three-gaited event, a lively exhibition of teamwork which drew frequent rounds of applause, was won by a Villa Duchesne team composed of Ruth Franklin, Lily Faust, Irene Corley and Barbara Griesedieck. The Sacred Heart City House team placed second, with Mary Goodwin, Mary Jane O'Reilly, Mary Tierney and Betty James riding.

The advanced boys' pair class was won by Charles Sell and Franck Kaiser of Taylor School. Cadets Irving Goldman and Howard Arvey of Western Military Academy were second.

Betty James, as an alumna of Maryville, won the aulmnae girls' preparatory school event, with Virginia Martin, Maryville, placing second; Martha Ennen, Sacred Heart Academy, St. Charles, third, and Jane Costigan, Maryville, fourth.

The event for novice boys, ages 14 to 18, was won by Cadet William Cox of Western Military Academy. Second was Louis Holtkamp, Webster Groves High School; third, Franck Kaiser, and fourth, Lester Anixter, Taylor School.

Winners in other events:

Girls, 7 years and under—Betty Benoist, Villa Duchesne; and Nancy Jean Burger, Leslyn Benson and Elaine Burns of Brescia Hall.

Novice Girls, 13 to 18 years—Peggy Ann Davenport of Visitation Convent and Jean Labadie of Villa Duchesne.

Maryville College Class, three-gaited horses — Virginia Martin, Betty James, Jane Costigan and Lois Marie Ebbert.

Three-gaited, any height—Harold Grant Barngrove, Lockwood School; Mary Elizabeth Goodwin, City House; Agnes Killes, Dodson School, and Ruth Franklin, Villa Duchesne.

WRIT BARS FIRM FROM PAYING EMPLOYES PARTIALLY IN SCRIPT

Workers Say De Kalb (Ill.) Merchants Refuse to Accept It at Its Face Value.

By the Associated Press.

SYCAMORE, Ill., April 30.—Circuit Judge William Fulton granted a temporary injunction today restraining the Marquardt Mattress Co. of DeKalb from paying its 100 employes partially in scrip.

A petition signed by 33 of the workers alleged the scrip was worthless for trading purposes and that about $6000 worth had accumulated in their pockets. An accounting was requested, as well as damages equal to the amount already paid by the company in scrip.

The suit related that when the firm transferred its plant from Milwaukee, Wis., early in 1936, Sycamore merchants raised $6000 for moving expenses under an agreement that employes would accept 5 per cent of their wages in paper redeemable at local stores. Later, the petition charged, merchants refused to accept the scrip at its face value.

MISSOURI HISTORICAL SOCIETY HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

Federal Judge Moore Outlines Background of Louisiana Purchase; New Trustees Announced.

The annual meeting of the Missouri Historical Society, commemorating the Louisiana Purchase, was held last night at Hotel Jefferson.

The historical background of the purchase was outlined by United States District Judge George H. Moore, the principal speaker. Judge Moore commented briefly on the proposed Thomas Jefferson-National Expansion Memorial on the St. Louis river front.

The recent election of six new trustees was announced at the meeting by Charles Nagel, president of the society. They are Walter M. Crunden, Claude S. Kennerly, John S. Leahy, Alex T. Primm, Milton R. Stahl and A. O. Wilson. Trustees re-elected are James M. Breckenridge, J. Hugo Grimm and James Harrison.

MAPLEWOOD VOTES TUESDAY

Election on Proposal to Raise Library Tax From 2 to 5 Cents.

An election will be held in Maplewood Tuesday on the proposal to raise the library tax from 2 cents to 5 cents on the $100 valuation. A majority vote will carry the election.

SEA SCOUT BOAT RACES BEGIN NEXT SATURDAY

150 Boys to Participate in Week-End Contests at Creve Coeur Lake.

More than 150 boys, representing 12 Sea Scout ships, will participate in the opening of the spring racing season at Creve Coeur Lake next Saturday and Sunday. The program will feature point races for single and double gigs, a dinghy race, and two sailing events for X-boats.

Duty crew work was demonstrated at the base last week by 30 Sea Scout officers under the direction of Commodore H. A. Brereton. In addition, 25 boats were repaired and launched in anticipation of activities next week-end.

Two routes have been selected for the 10-day nature study hikes which will feature each two-week session at Camp Irondale this summer, J. Lee Johnson, chairman of the camping committee, announced yesterday. Camp Irondale, sponsored by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, will open June 19 and continue to Aug. 13.

One route will include visits to Iron Mountain Lake, Pilot Knob, Lake Killarney, Arcadia, Tom Sauk Mountain and Deer Run State Park. Alternating with this route through the season will be another to Clark National Forest by way of Round Spring, Davisville and Indian Trail State Park.

The hikes, open only to senior scouts, will be under the direction of Eagle Scout William G. Hollister, and will emphasize field work in the observation of bird, reptile and animal life, wildflowers, trees and geological formations.

Eight assistant campmasters, who will be in charge of scouting projects at the annual Boy Scout Camporee at Tilles Park May 20-22, have been appointed by the council to assist Col. H. D. McBride, camporee chairman. They are Joseph Smith, George Brockhoff, Arno D. Krause, Walter Jones, R. T. Shepherd, G. V. Bradshaw, Lou Leverington and Oliver Johnson.

Assistant campmasters in charge of camp arrangements have also been selected. They include J. G. Princell, Clyde Connell Jr., Charles Gillespie, Cecil Kirk, W. I. Hanson, A. G. Bauer, E. L. Heitert and A. G. Evers.

Camp Jackson Dinner May 10.

A dinner in commemoration of the taking of Camp Jackson by Union forces in the opening months of the Civil War will be given the evening of May 10 at the Elks' Club, 3619 Lindell boulevard, by the Mid-Town Business Club.

BUILDING ON CHOUTEAU AV. ACQUIRED BY IMPROVEMENT CO.

The large two-story building at 1433-35-37-39-41-43-45 Chouteau avenue has been purchased by the Missouri Press Brick & Improvement Co. as an investment. The Julius Haller Realty Co. handled the transaction. Lynn Meyer was the grantorf to the title.

The structure consists of four stores, a picture store, gymnasium, offices and several small and large meeting halls. Plans contemplate extensive alterations to the building to conform with the requirements of prospective lessees.

The site has a frontage of 125 feet by a depth of 150 feet. The location is regarded as one of the most attractive in this section for business purposes.

OLD EUGENIA CHOUTEAU HOME ON MARYLAND IS PURCHASED

The residence of the late Miss Eugenia Chouteau, at 4927 Maryland avenue, has been purchased by Dr. Hugh McCulloch as a residence.

The three-story brick structure has 10 rooms, three baths, with three-car garage in rear of the premises. It was occupied by Miss Chouteau for many years, until her death a year or so ago.

The purchaser was represented by A. T. and Whitelaw Terry and the heirs of Miss Chouteau, by Cornet & Zeibig, Inc.

APARTMENT BUYS ADJOINING PLOT ON LINDELL BL.

Pierre Chouteau Acquires Ground, With House Just West of Building at 4440 From Non-Resident.

EUCLID AVENUE STRUCTURE LEASED

Arthur R. Lindberg Rents Group at Southwest Corner of Washington, Owned by Sam Breadon.

By Berry Moore

The Chouteau Realty & Investment Co., a holding company of Daniel C. Kerckhoff, president of the Pevely Dairy Co., has purchased the old three-story residence, with 40x213 feet of ground, at 4442 Lindell boulevard, from Helen Jane Schlafley, a non-resident who formerly occupied it.

The eastern part of the lot will be utilized as a driveway in connection with the Pierre Chouteau Apartment Building, a 16-story structure adjoining at 4440 Lindell boulevard, owned by the Pevely Realty & Investment Co., of which Kerckhoff is president. The ground will also be available for the future enlargement of the apartment building, which, nowever, is not contemplated at this time, it was stated. Speculation is keen in real estate circles as to the price paid for the ground which in the pre-depression era would have command a very substantial figure, according to realtors.

Acquired in 1934.

The apartment building was acquired by Kerckhoff on behalf of the Pevely Realty & Investment Co., in August, 1934, on the steps of the Civil Courts building for $280,000. The price paid for the building was the minimum set by Circuit Judge Green in a foreclosure action brought because of defaults in payments the interest and installments on $650,000 of first mortgage bonds outstanding at that time against the property.

Fireproof in construction, the building contains 60 apartments of five and six rooms and basement garage. It was completed in 1930. The site has a frontage of 85 feet on Lindell, with a depth of 213 feet, exclusive of the lot, 40x213 feet, involved in the present transaction,

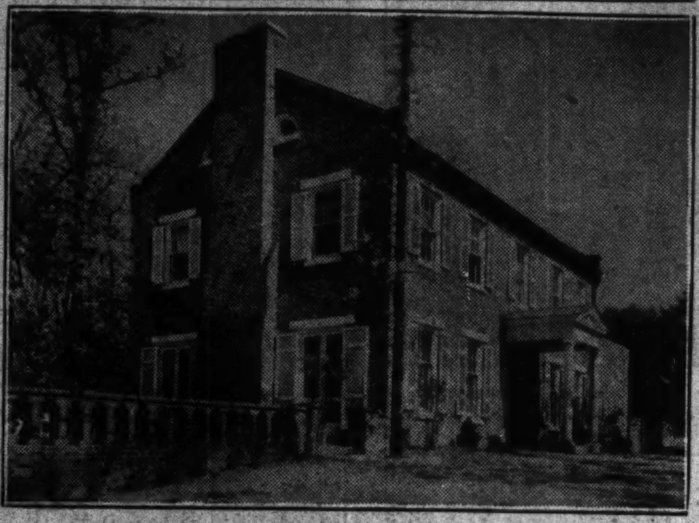
Residence Recently Completed in Club Grounds



Residence recently completed for Silas B. McKinley on the Cella road in St. Louis Country Club grounds, St. Louis County. Study & Farrar, architects. The site of approximately two acres was acquired through Mary Potter Love, Inc.

BUYS REMAINING PART OF OLD FRANCIS FARM

Developer Acquires 34 Acres South of Natural Bridge Road With Building Plans.

A tract of approximately 34 acres lying south of Natural Bridge road and east of Lucas and Hunt road, has been acquired by the Schuermann Building & Realty Co., of which Norman Schuermann is president.

The tract was part of a farm originally occupied and owned by the father of the late Gov. David R. Francis. It was sold for the Francis Investment Co. by the Francis-Perry-Ruth Real Estate Co. The sale price was not announced.

The purchaser has plans for the improvement of the entire tract with single family moderate priced dwellings. There will be lots available for 150 buildings in the proposed subdivision, which will have a total frontage of approximately 7500 feet. None of the lots will be offered for sale separately from the houses, but will be held for improvement by the builders.

The Schuermann Realty & Building Co. is co-operating in this connection with the Federal Housing Administration. Construction has already been started on the initial buildings. The program does not provide for the erection of any prefabricated houses. All units will be constructed of brick or stone and will have concrete foundations. Each will be original in design.

The tract is just west of and adjoining Uplands Park, being developed by the Francis-Perry Ruth Real Estate Co., and also formerly a part of the Francis farm.

This section, including both the tract involved in the present transaction and Uplands, recently voted a bond issue of $125,000 for converting Maria Creek into a sewer. The Government has approved a W P A allotment of $225,000 in connection. Construction of this sewer is now under way.

This farm is not to be confused with the large tract in Southwest St. Louis formerly owned by the late Gov. Francis, and now embraced in St. Louis Hills, a Cyrus-Crane-Willmore development. Francis Park in this section and a part of the Southwest St. Louis farm, was donated by the late Gov. Francis to the city for a civic center.

CORONA PARK HOUSE SOLD TO MRS. ELIZABETH LEONARD

A recently completed house at 466 Wilcox in Corona Park, Kirkwood, has been acquired by Mrs. Elizabeth Leonard. It has five rooms and two baths and is replete with attractive features. It was constructed by the Fairfax Construction Co., of which Arnold H. Marmont, developer, is president.

The Fairfax Construction Co. has erected 10 houses of different designs in Corona Park, a comparatively new development in the Kirkwood area. Eight of these houses have been sold. Plans are going forward for the erection of other houses in this development to conform with the ideas of prospective purchasers.

CYRUS WILLMORE TO ATTEND MEETINGS AT RICHMOND

Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Inc., a former president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange and a member of the board of directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and a past chairman of the National Association's Land Developers' Division, will attend meetings of the national directorate and the Land Developers' Executive Committee to be held in Richmond, Va., May 4 and 5.

AMUSEMENT CO. ERECTING AIRDOME ON FLORISSANT AVE.

St. Louis Amusement Co. is building a movie airdome at Florissant and Bircher boulevard, to be called the Florissant Cinema Garden. It will seat 2000 people and will open May 15 with second run pictures. It is the only airdome that Fanchon & Marco and the St. Louis Amusement Co. own.

SILAS B. M'KINLEY COMPLETES RESIDENCE CLUB GROUNDS

The new residence of Silas B. Mc Kinley, author and lawyer, on Cella road, is one of the most striking in the St. Louis Country Club Grounds.

This house is colonial in design with a hall running through the center and opening onto the garden. There is a large living room, paneled library, powder room and lavatory, and dining room in the main wing, with the service quarters, butler's pantry, kitchen, etc., and garage in an adjoining wing. The second floor has four master bedrooms, with baths and dressing rooms. Servants' quarters are over the garage in the service wing.

The walls are of old handmade rose brick laid in Flemish bond, a wall material almost invariably used by the architects, Study & Farrar, in colonial houses. This type of architecture was greatly favored in Eastern Missouri in the first quarter of the last century. The prototype for the McKinley facade is a famous old house in St. Charles County on Highway 40, which is recognized as one of the best examples of early Missouri colonial architecture.

The distinguishing characteristics of the house are the lintels and window sills of white Vermont marble, with white shutters, instead of the conventional green, making a striking contrast with the brick. There is a very spacious terrace with brick paving and wall.

The site, comprising approximately two acres, was purchased through Mary Potter Love, Inc.

BUILDING PERMITS IN MARCH UNDER THOSE OF 1937 PERIOD

494 for $689,700 in Construction Issued as Compared to 570 for $889,585 Last Year.

Building permits issued in St. Louis last month numbered 494 and authorized construction costing $689,700, as compared to 570 permits for work costing $889,585 in April, 1937.

During the first four months of this year, 1468 permits for $2,401;-437 were issued. For the same period last year there were 1666 permits for $2,753,670.

R. WILLIAM KNOLLMAN BUYS HOME IN PASADENA HILLS

R. William Knollman, president of the Knollman Paper & Grocery Co., has purchased a residence of Spanish design at 7210 Bristol drive in Pasadena Hills, the former home of Samuel D. Nichols, president of the Menzies Shoe Co.

The first floor has a studio living room with vaulted ceiling two stories in height, sunroom, dining room, breakfast room, and two bedrooms with bath. There are two additional bedrooms with bath on the second floor.

Standing on a wooded tract, the house was built four years ago from plans by R. P. Wallace, architect.

The Carl G. Stifel Real Estate Co. handled the transaction.

CLARKSON ROAD TRACT IS ACQUIRED BY R. L. SPARKS

A 30-acre tract on the west side of Clarkson road, approximately a mile west of Chesterfield, and two miles north of the Clayton road, has been purchased by Robert L. Sparks, formerly with the Alco Valve Co. George Landveter, a farmer, was the former owner.

The purchaser is having plans drawn for the erection of an American farm house. The present improvements consist of an old farm house and outbuildings.

Norman Pemberton, real estate dealer, handled the transaction. The sale price was not disclosed.

CONSTRUCTION IN FIRST QUARTER WAS $595,982,843

This Compares With $721,439,136 for Same Period of Last Year, Survey Shows.

Building activities for the first quarter of 1938 show a contraction in comparison with the 1937 corresponding period, according to E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Ass'n of Building Trades Employers, with headquarters in Chicago.

The spring construction survey as compiled by Robert D. Steele, the association's statistician, shows that first quarterly returns of 44 states had a dollar value of $595,982,843, compared with $721,439,136 in the same 1937 quarter and $602,958,791 in the first 1936 quarter. The dollar value of 38 cities for the first 1938 quarter totaled $185,427,499, compared with $199,900,610 in the first 1937 quarter. Individual permits of these 38 cities were 40,422 for the first 1938 quarter compared to 41,955 for the first 1937 quarter.

New York continues as the leading city on dollar value, with a total of $108,029,777. Los Angeles occupies second place and Detroit, third place. Chicago's standing is seventh position compared to eighth place a year ago. Chicago is thirty-first on the list for individual permits.

Building Decline in 31 Cities.

Excepting New York, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Paul, Norfolk and Elizabeth, 31 cities showed decreased building activity during the first 1938 quarter as compared with the like 1937 quarter.

As to home building, statistics show that the first 1938 quarter is behind the first 1937 quarter. Thirty-one of the 38 cities reported 5994 homes started or finished during the first 1938 quarter as compared with 7738 homes during the first 1937 quarter. Los Angeles continues to lead in home building, with 1691 homes. Detroit is second, with 697.

APARTMENT BUYS ADJOINING PLOT ON LINDELL BL.

which gives a total frontage on Lindell of 125 feet.

Appraised at $800,000.

Preceding the foreclosure action in 1934, in an appraisal for the court, Nelson Cunliff stated that the building could not be duplicated for less than $800,000, exclusvie of the cost of the site. Rectangular in shape, it is one of the most conspicuous structures of its type on Lindell boulevard.

It was stated that the old residence occupying the lot at 4442 Lindell would not be disturbed.

The St. Louis Cathedral, standing at the northwest corner of Lindell and Newstead, is pointed to as adding to the character of this section of this thoroughfare.

Several years ago, when real estate values were at a low ebb, Kerckhoff, through the Pevely Realty and Investment Co., purchased the southwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, 100x250 feet. A three-story apartment building occupies this site.

Arthur R. Lindburg, Zephyr and Ford dealer, has taken a long lease on a group of three-story buildings at the southwest corner of Washington and Euclid avenues, owned by Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis National Baseball Club. Fireproof in construction, the buildings contain 52,000 square feet, with a total frontage of 280 feet on Washington and 87 feet on Euclid. They comprise spacious show rooms, auto shop, and a three-story service building with ramp. Lindburg now occupies a large quarter at the southeast corner of Lindell and North Grand which will be maintained in addition to the newly leased buildings.

HOUSE IN LINDWORTH PLACE IN COUNTY CHANGES HANDS

A residence recently completed at 20 Lindworth place, north of Litzsinger road and west of Lay road, has been purchased by Edgar S. Idol, associated with the Columbia Terminals Co. W. R. Worthington was the grantor in the transaction.

Painted white, the house is of brick and clapboard construction. The first floor consists of entrance hall, living room with fireplace, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and screened porch. There are two bedrooms with bath on the second floor. An attached garage is an attractive feature. The building is air-conditioned and equipped with a gas burner. It occupies a lot 125 by 250 feet.

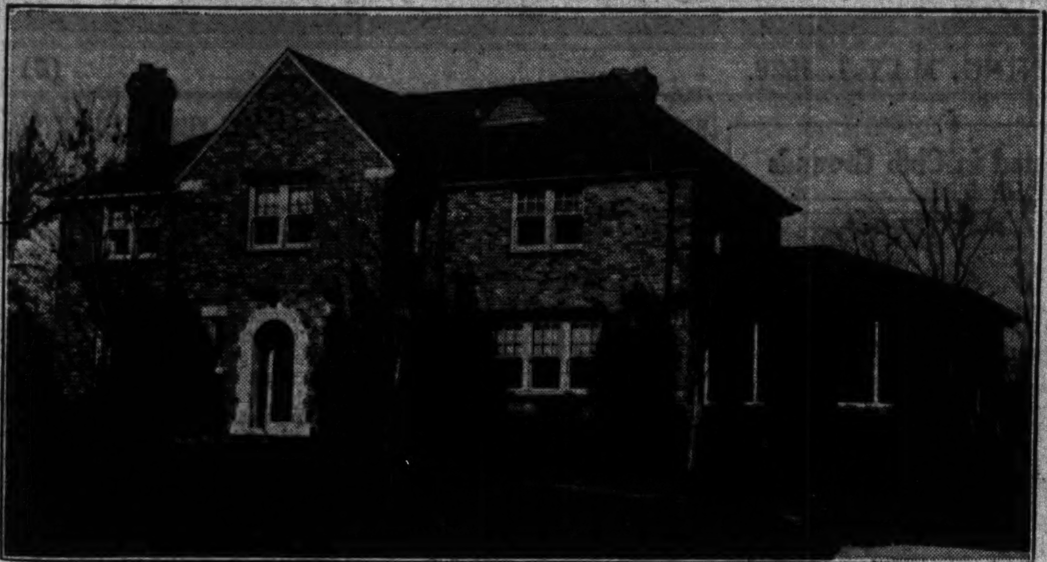
Edward L. Bakewell effected the transaction.

TRACT NEAR BOGY CLUB IS PLACED ON MARKET

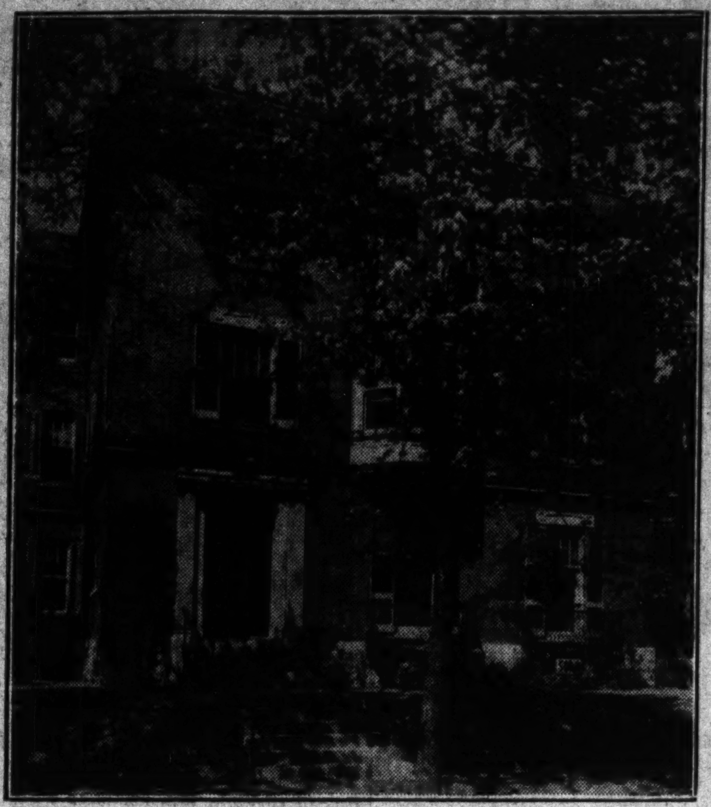
A tract adjacent to the Bogy Golf Club and divided into three and four acre home sites, is being developed by Howard Godman, builder. It occupies a high elevation, with rolling terrain. Winding drives have been constructed through the tract, thus adding to its natural beauty.

Approximately 600 feet south of the Price school, the tract is in the heart of the city of Ladue. Overhills Estates is to the west.

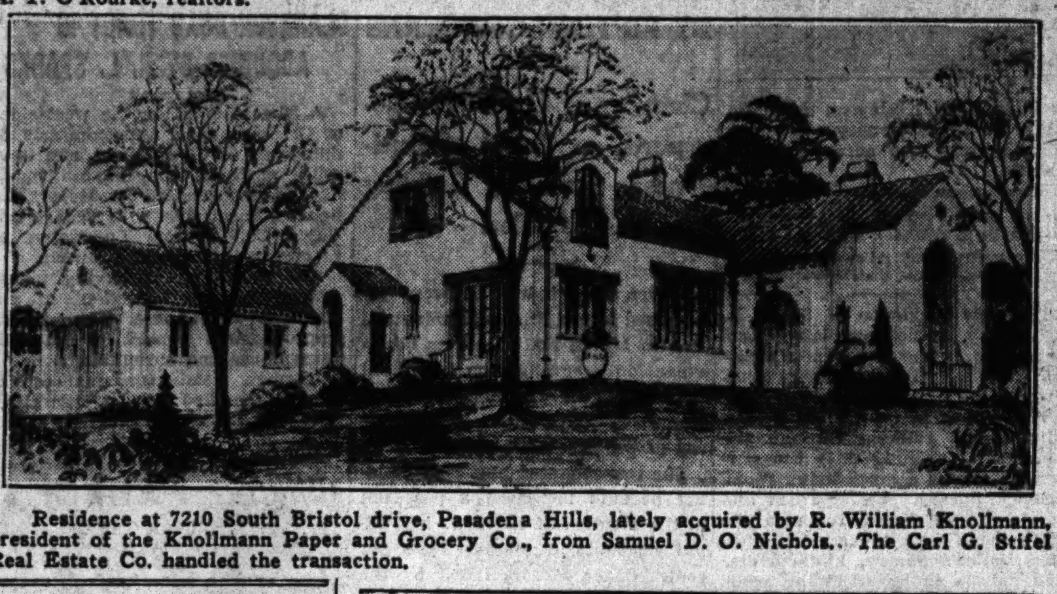
Houses Recently Completed and Others Acquired



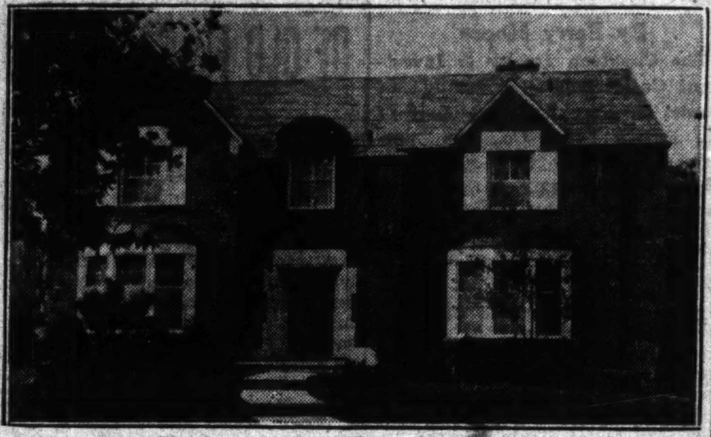
Colonial residence at 30 Rio Vista drive in La Hacienda, at Ladue and Price roads, recently acquired by Frank Mullivan, vice-president of the Crunden Martin Manufacturing Co., through H. A. & A. T. O'Rourke, realtors.



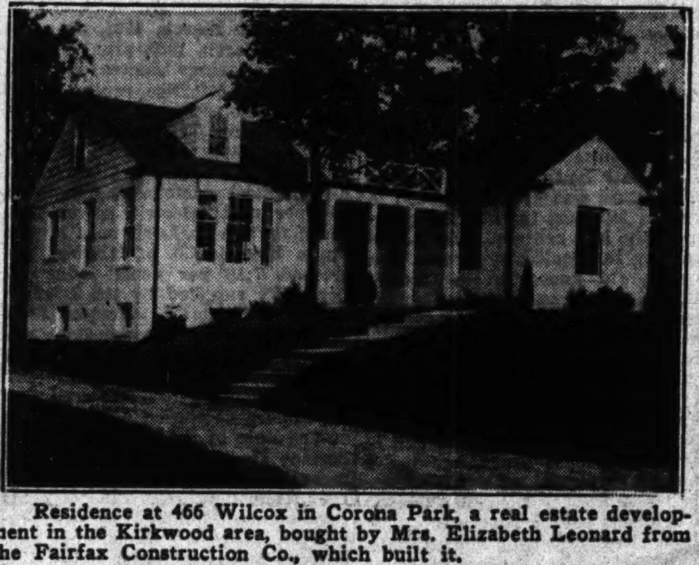
The former residence of the late Miss Eugenia Chouteau acquired by Dr. Hugh McCulloch. The Chouteau heirs were represented in the transaction by Cornet & Zeibig, Inc. A. T. & Whitelaw Terry represented the purchaser.



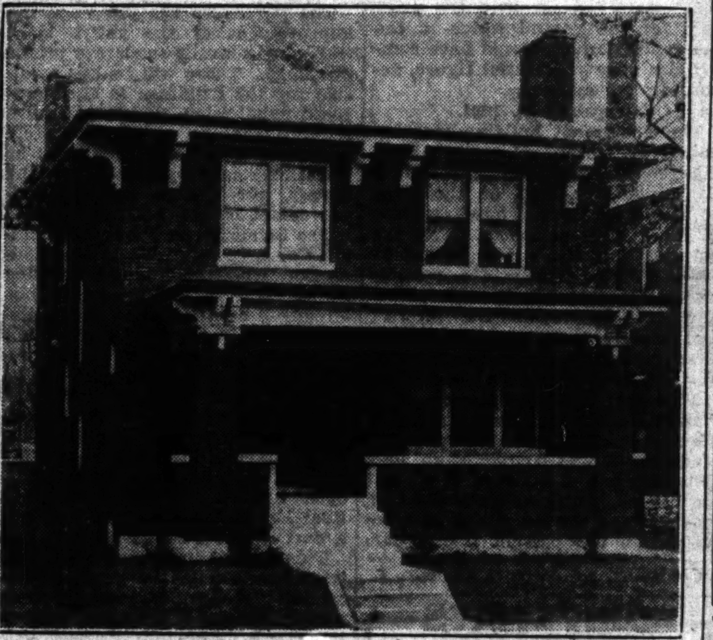
Residence at 7210 South Bristol drive, Pasadena Hills, lately acquired by R. William Knollmann, president of the Knollmann Paper and Grocery Co., from Samuel D. O. Nichols. The Carl G. Stifel Real Estate Co. handled the transaction.



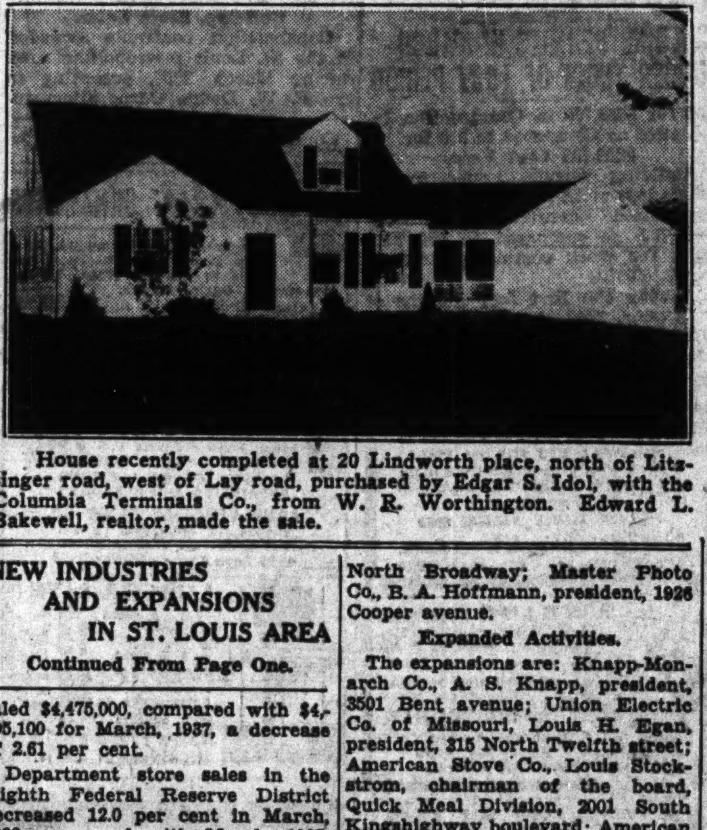
University City home at 7925 Teasdale court, recently purchased by Fred Robinson. Dimmitt Rickhoff Bayer Real Estate Co., Inc., Francis Perry Ruth and Edward Bakewell, realtor, participated in the negotiations.



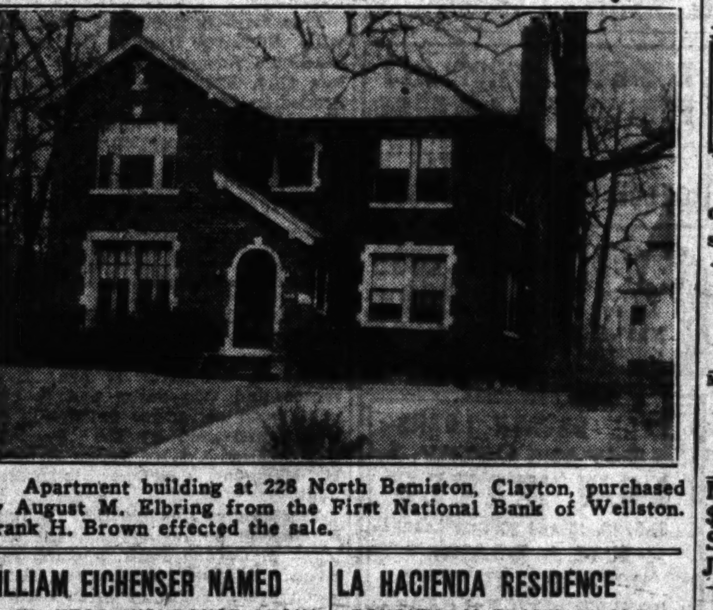
Residence at 466 Wilcox in Corona Park, a real estate development in the Kirkwood area, bought by Mrs. Elizabeth Leonard from the Fairfax Construction Co., which built it.



Residence at 3661 Utah place acquired by Dr. H. L. Kleine from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. The John P. Dolan Realty Co., Inc., negotiated the sale.



House recently completed at 20 Lindworth place, north of Litzsinger road, west of Lay road, purchased by Edgar S. Idol, with the Columbia Terminals Co., from W. R. Worthington. Edward L. Bakewell, realtor, made the sale.



Apartment building at 228 North Bemiston, Clayton, purchased by August M. Elbring from the First National Bank of Wellston. Frank H. Brown effected the sale.

BUILDING MANAGERS TO MEET IN CHICAGO

National Association of Owners and Managers Completing Plans for Annual Convention.

The National Association of Building Owners and Managers is completing plans for its thirty-first annual convention, to be held at the Hotel Schroeder in Milwaukee June 20 to 23. In co-operation with Alfred Trenkamp, president of the Milwaukee organization, and his various committees, E. B. Murray, president, and Robert B. Beach, executive secretary of the National group, are working out a well-defined program pertaining to topics and problems of particular interest to the industry.

Taxation will be a major theme on the program, with Wingard Miller of Seattle, an authority on the subject, presenting his views and leading the discussion which will follow. Income production, always pertinent to the industry, will be given it share of attention, and the National Association's Income Production Service Council, which has been developed during the past year, will be further enlarged upon as a phase of the association's activities.

Notwithstanding the fact that the skyscraper industry has been free from extreme labor difficulties as compared with other fields, labor policies will be thoroughly discussed, particularly as they affect the industry's tenants and its potential tenants.

Formal invitations have been sent out to members of the industry outlining for them the many points of interest contained in the convention program. "Business trends as they affect the skyscraper industry; legislation and the new attitude in Washington; taxation and concerted effort to limit public spending; collective bargaining and the wage-hour issue; a common denominator for air-conditioning costs; insurance, depreciation, decentralization, and the basic facts concerning them on which intelligent action may be taken—with these and other subjects, Milwaukee will have an answer for every question, an inspiration for every need," the invitation states.

"Apartment interests will share attention with those of office and other building types. Such specialized groups as medical buildings will have their time and place apart from general sessions. The operating forum and the rental forum will repeat the success of other years. Round table breakfasts will give rookie and veteran alike an opportunity to take part."

FLATS AND BUILDING SITES IN RECENT TRANSACTIONS

Geo. J. Wanstrath, 715 Chestnut street, reports the following sales: No. 7719 Arthur avenue, 2-family flat, furnaces and garages; 7723 Arthur avenue, a 2-family flat, hardwood floors, furnaces and garages. Both sales were made for Central States Life Ins. Co., to James J. Downey.

Wanstrath also reports having sold two separate one-acre tracts on Litzsinger lane, for the account of Morris Steinbaum to P. Harvey Reis.

Storeroom on Delmar Leased.

The storeroom at the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Pendleton avenue has been leased by the Delmar Oil and Burner Co. Sylvia Pollock was the lessor. The Edward Glik Co. effected the lease.

PASADENA HILLS

SEE IRENE DUNNE AND DOUG FAIRBANKS JR. IN "JOY OF LIVING" NOW AT THE AMBASSADOR THEATRE.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME IN BEAUTIFUL WOODED PASADENA HILLS...

4586 NADINE DRIVE

The exquisite home pictured here is located in a secluded quiet court among the oaks. It faces across an attractively landscaped park. This home will give its occupant the full "JOY OF LIVING." The large living room with its log-burning fireplace between 2 cased windows overlooking the park, from its spacious dining room to the luxurious kitchen with its Pondosa pine cabinets and the delicately tinted Fyrart wainscote to the 3 bedrooms with two magnificent Fyrart paneled bathrooms to the inclosed screened sleeping porch, make this truly the home of "full living." There is a knotty pine rathskeller and a specially designed home-comfort air-conditioning system. Price is only $17,500.00 and has been built under the supervision of the Federal Housing Administration.

Pasadena Hills, located at Lucas-Hunt and Natural Bridge Roads, with its park-like environment, is one of the most beautiful subdivisions in Greater St. Louis. 3 Country Clubs are in the immediate vicinity. Many fine modern stores are on Natural Bridge and transportation is at the very gates. The new $250,000 Thomas Jefferson School was opened last month.

BUNGALOWS FOR SALE—Southwest

Show you?

Of course . . . . . and why not this afternoon?

Missouri-minded prospects are particularly welcome to St. Louis Hills representatives. Their hard-headed, common-sense inquiries about restrictions, values, maintenance and the like bring out all of St. Louis Hills' desirability as a place to live, a place to own your home.

A Willmore representative would be delighted to "show you"—today, tomorrow, or any time—all there is to know about St. Louis Hills. What's more, you'll find him able to go from the general to the specific; he'll show you, too, the homesite you've always wanted to build on, or a home that suits not only your taste and needs, but also your pocketbooks? Why not stop by the Willmore office and talk things over—or call FLanders 8100 and make a definite appointment for a Willmore representative to call on you at some convenient time?

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

The Robert J. Ambruster Pre-Arranged Funeral Plan.

BRIEFLY, it is to relieve your dependents of the perplexities attending the details of your funeral, and to limit the expenses according to your best judgment.

The intermingling of anxiety with sorrow is avoided, and unnecessary expenditures, suggested even in a friendly way, are precluded.

It is, in the extremity, a beneficence.

IN MEMORIAM

SAITTINGER, CATHERINE (nee Praechter) —In remembrance of our dear mother, who died April 30, 1935:

Till memories fade and life departs,
You'll live forever in our hearts.
Sadly missed by
SON AND DAUGHTER.

BERLINGEN, NICHOLAS — In loving memory of our father, who left our home April 23d, 1931.
Missed by CHILDREN.

GOCKEL, ELIZABETH—In memory of, who died May 5, 1933.
HUSBAND AND SON.

KORTEN, WILLIAM—In loving memory of my dear husband, who departed this life May 1, 1937:

I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
Sadly missed by wife and family.
ELIZABETH SIPPEL KORTEN.

KRAFFT, OLIVER L. JR.—In memory of our dear son and grandson, who departed this life May 3, 1934. Sadly missed by your GRANDMA GARLOCK AND FAMILY.

KULICH, JACOB—In loving memory, died April 28th, 1936:

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all;
The voice is mute, and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true,
Bitter was the trail to part
From one so good as you—
You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory lasts
We will remember thee;
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by, we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face
No one can fill your vacant place.
LOVING WIFE AND CHILDREN.

SCHULZE, WILLIAM—Died April 27, 1934.

Four years of sorrow, lonely and blue;
Life is so empty, dear husband, and father, without you;
It was sad indeed the way you died;
Without a chance to say goodby.
Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE, CHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

SMART, LAURA (nee Faudree)—In loving memory of our dear sister, who departed this life April 29, 1933. Sadly missed by BROTHER, SISTERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

WAGNER, GEO. W.—In memory of Geo. W. Wagner, died April 30, 1937.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

WOLF, WILLIAM—In memory of dear husband and father, who passed away April 27, 1937. Sadly missed by WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SON-IN-LAW.

CARD OF THANKS

I WISH to express my profound appreciation of the kindness and sympathy shown me by my relatives, friends and neighbors during my sad hour of bereavement in the loss of my dearly beloved husband, Albert L. Wilcox.
MRS. SARAH WILCOX.

New York

BY LUCIUS BEEBE

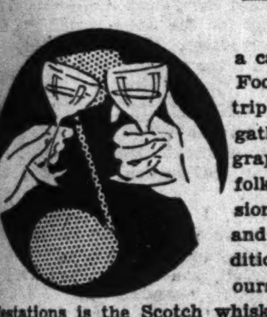
NEW YORK, April 30.

NEXT to the paragraphers and gossip reporters, no calling entails such an extensive knowledge of the private lives of the great and pseudo-great as that of the town's hotelmen; the managers, credit executives and front office smoothies who run the glittering caravanseries of the more lacquered faubourgs. And no business in the world is so conducive to a philosophy of gay and hearty cynicism as is the hotel business in New York, where the fraudulent and the authentic, the real and the bogus and the phonies and the real folk all have their being in such a concentrated and opulent social midst.

The hotel man, as the basic requirement of his calling, has to know pretty nearly everything about everybody and, as with a priest or a doctor, professional canons prevent his retailing much of the gaudy and bawdy which is grist to his mill. If Rost, of the Plaza, or Prince Obolensky, of the St. Regis, or Mulligan, of the Biltmore, should take it into his head to go into the gossip paragraphing business Maury Paul and Winchell and Sobol and all the rest of us would be out of work within a week. Not only does a managing director of a luxury hotel have to know all the financial and amorous details of the life of the town; he also has vast reservoirs of less exciting but nevertheless fascinating dope on the tastes, prejudices and whims of the great.

Looking over the high-toned folk carrying on fancy at the Morocco the other evening, a prominent hotel man spotted no fewer than eight tail-coated toffs whom he had to lock out of their apartments for arrears in rent or even more spectacular delinquencies, while the number of prominent married men and women whom he knew to be chronic and enthusiastic cheaters were simply beyond counting. It's the frock-coated room clerk behind the vase of Max Schling gladiolas on the front desk that gets about the wisest laugh out of the New York scene.

—O—O—



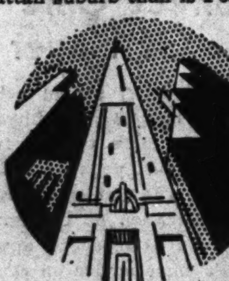
SOME DAY SELMER FOUGNER or a carefully disguised Dolon of the Wine and Food Society is going on a cross-country trip through the American countryside, gathering material for a definitive monograph on the local drinking habits of the folk. This department has just had occasion to penetrate the fastnesses of the West and deep Southwest, and only our condition prevents us from doing the job ourself. Most amusing of bar-room manifestations is the Scotch whisky situation in the Middle West, where the imported strong waters are coming into ascendancy over the American type of whisky as a popular habit among reasonably affluent people.

But is it drunk as elsewhere in the world, with mineral water, syphon or potash water? In a word, succinctly, no. An order for a Scotch and soda in Ohio or Missouri will bring the thirsty customer an arrangement of spirits and sweet soda pop. So urgent has this curious crisis become that the august St. Louis Post-Dispatch has found it necessary to run at least one editorial urging sanity upon the populace in the form of highballs made with the conventional soda known to the rest of the world.

It wasn't until he reached Saint Francis' town and the chaste simplicities of John's Rendezvous that this department got over the fright he suffered in the wilds of the frontier. An added and reassuring note of sanity, however, is that at the Texas Hotel, in Fort Worth, Tex., feudal and baronial seat of Amon G. Carter, the most exciting man in the State, the parcel store liquor list on the dresser lists four brands of Scotch whisky and 40 varieties of rye, bourbon and American whiskies. Reason still prevails somewhere.

—O—O—

No visitor to Hollywood can fail to be impressed by the circumstance that Sunset boulevard is just a continuation of Fifty-second street and that the town is much more of a Manhattan suburb than is Pelham or Plainfield. Despite the bad times, the faces at the Vendome and the Trocadero still are the same faces you saw a few days ago at the Colony and 21, and the hats and gowns are as patently the handiwork of Miss Jessica and Valentina as they are of Adrian and Howard Greer.



The latest addition to the more tumultuous group of Hollywood writers and executives who have become part of the Gene Fowler-Joel Sayre-Nunnally Johnson tradition is Collier Young, late of Brandt & Brandt ,and now in the story department of Myron Selznick. Young, who once, while a Dartmouth undergraduate, was elected "America's Most Representative Boy" and had to spend a week in the White House for his pains, never has been associated with what could be termed the quieter side of New York's night life. It was he who, when his brother Bill was married by Mayor Walker, turned up at City Hall in a Confederate General's uniform, followed by a 15-piece Negro band. His own recent wedding, which went on for some days in Sniffen Court, sent real estate values all over Murray Hill to new lows, and now he is taking over The Strip, in Hollywood, the way Grant took Richmond. When Young achieves national celebrity for some particularly epic outrage against the civic tranquillity and starts figuring in the legend which embraces Hecht and Fowler and MacArthur, don't say we didn't warn you. We just spent a couple of evenings with him in the Clover Club and know whereof we speak.

—O—O—

SINCE PLOVERS' EGGS have been an illegal delicacy in England and, of course, on British ships, steamship lines of other nations, particularly the canny Germans, are making a big bid for the patronage of serious-minded gourmets by featuring plovers' eggs on their menus . . . As a matter of actual fact, a taste for these particular edibles is almost entirely confined to Britishers, who are faced with a choice between gourmandism and patriotism when they travel abroad . . . In the salon of a Fifth avenue beautician, Robert, two adjacent departments are the toupee section and the men's perfume counter . . . A shot of geranium for the morning bath, says Robert, is the affectation of the moment among the town's exquisites.

Hollywood Puzzle

BY H.H.NIEMEYER

Ann Sheridan, One of Few Beauty Contest Winners Who Came Into Pictures and Stayed In, Seems to Have Everything It Takes to Be Successful, Yet Film Stardom Eludes Her.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 30.

FOR some time now we have been intending to do something about the case of Ann Sheridan, one of the very few beauty contest winners who came into pictures and stayed in. The producers haven't done right by Ann and so, as a defender of beauty in the films and all that sort of thing, we have been fixin' to rush to her somewhat silent band wagon and help turn the crank to start the tooting. The rush has been slow due to one thing or another coming up and a natural enough desire to put off rushing to do anything out here in the California sunshine. But we saw Ann yesterday having lunch in the Warner Brothers' studio cafe, saw her flaming red head bent over a bowl of soup and the old desire to help came surging back.

One eats in that studio lunch room without so much as looking up when Kay Francis or Bette Davis or Priscilla Lane comes in for a snack, but there is always a stir when Ann crashes through the door. One looks up and there she is, her head on fire and her throaty laugh filling the corners of the "Green Room"—so called, we believe, because it has a blue carpet and cream colored walls. The lunch she orders belies her slim figure.

Ann simply creates a stir. She is the kind of a person impossible to ignore. It must have been that way in Texas, too, when Ann, who was Clara Lou Sheridan then and a promising young school-teacher-to-be, decided at the last minute to enter her name in the Paramount "Search for Beauty" contest, which was being sponsored in Dallas by two of the daily papers there.

Two years ago when John Rosenfield of the Dallas News was in Hollywood, he confided to a few of Ann's friends that he may have stretched a point in letting Clara Lou's name be entered at the very last minute. He was impressed by her vivid beauty and the point stretching has never bothered his conscience. She won, of course. A great injustice would have resulted if she hadn't.

—o-o—

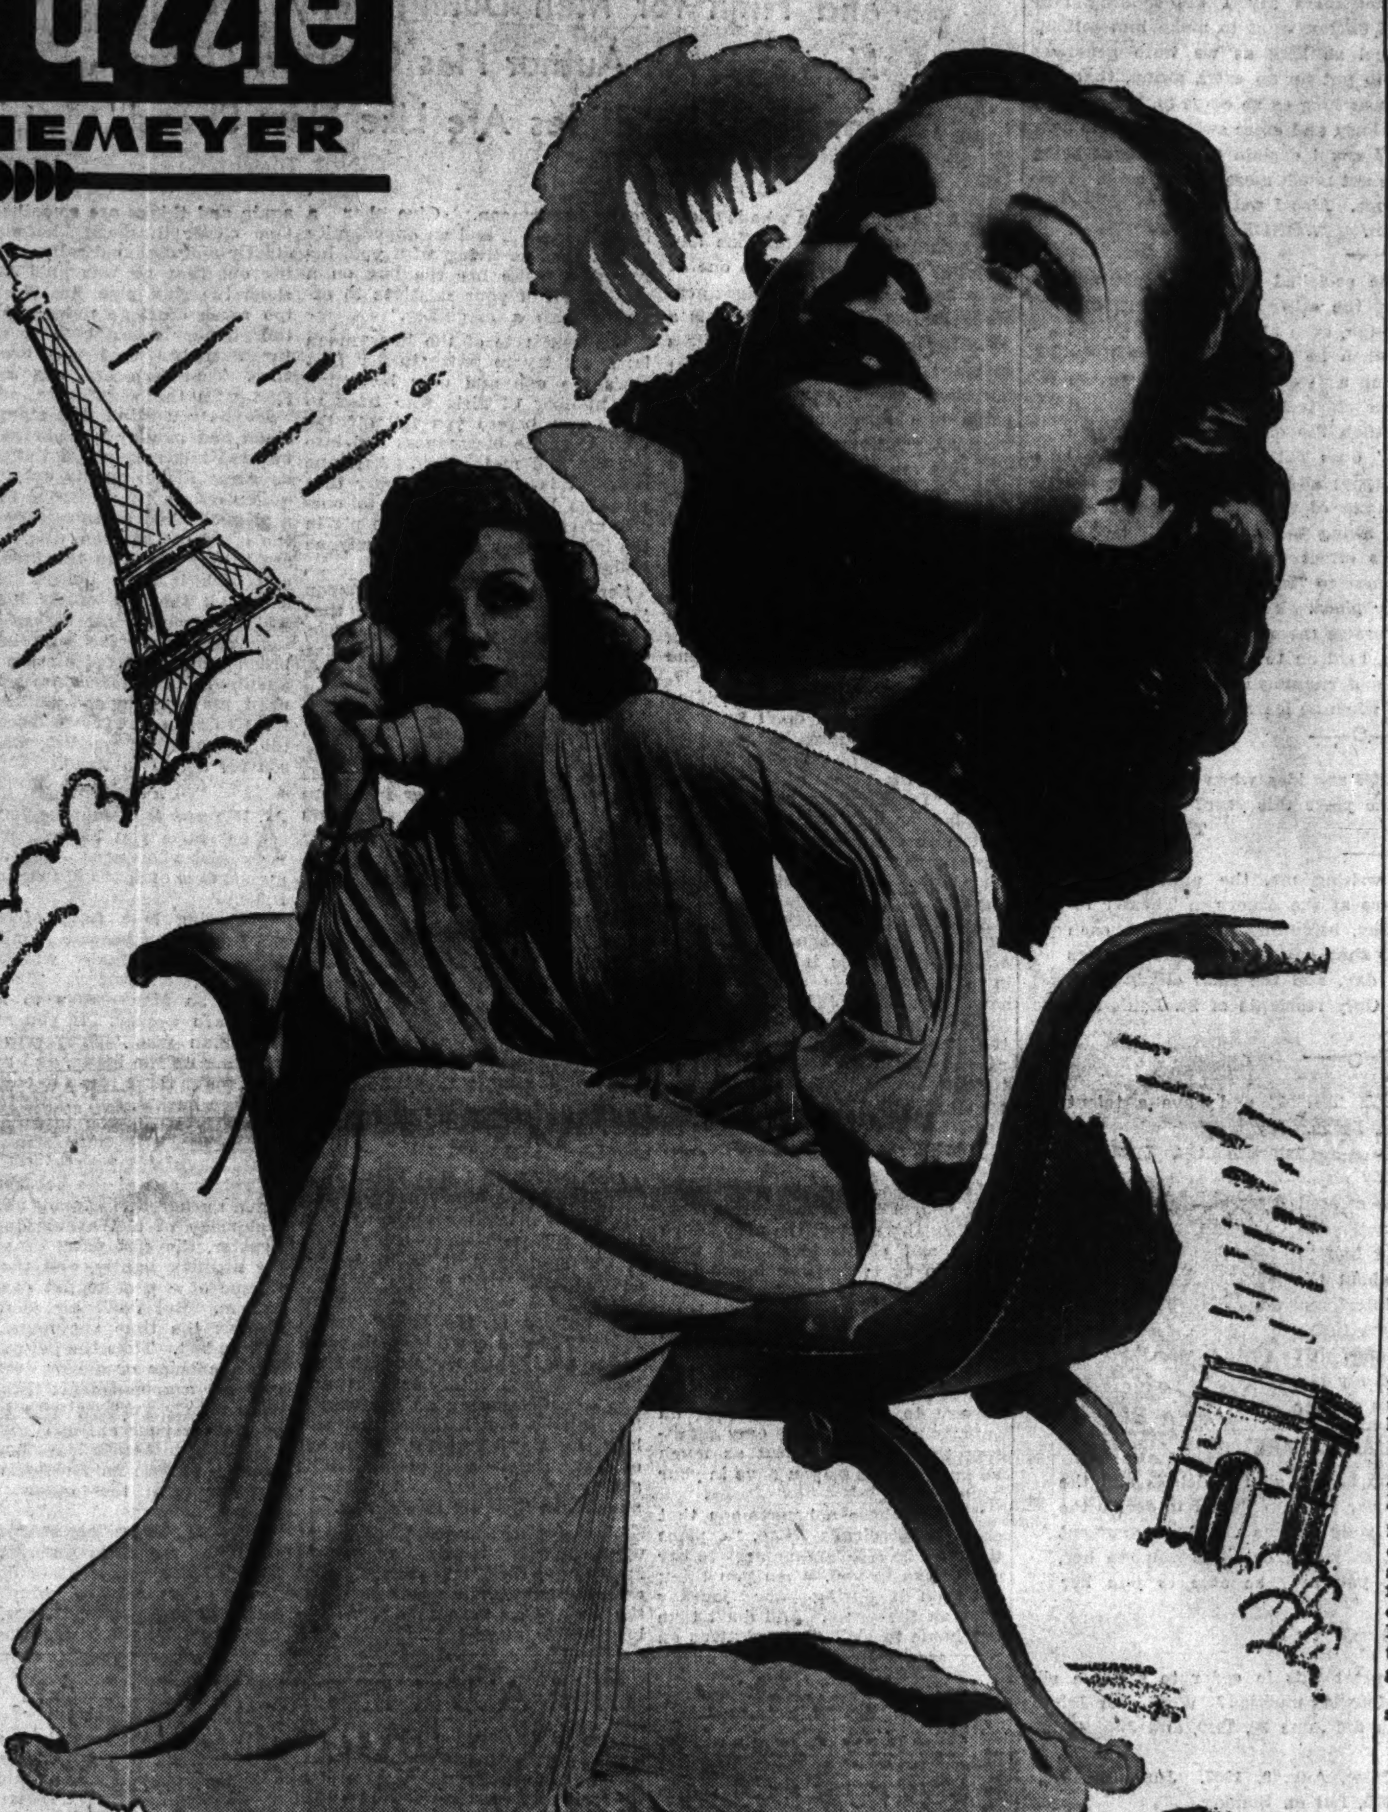
HAVING found their desired "beauty" neither Paramount nor Hollywood did much about it. When the ballyhoo had died away and the facts were known, Miss Sheridan, renamed Ann, was found to be playing a bit role, a very small bit role, in Paramount's "Search for Beauty" and then similar unimportant parts in "Come On Marines," "Murder at the Vanities," and "Behold My Wife."

If you don't remember Ann in these you are little different from thousands of Texas enthusiasts who sat through them, presumably waiting for Ann to win the leading man and prove her success in Hollywood. It didn't work that way. Ann's first big role—so called—was opposite Fred MacMurray, then just beginning to attract attention, in "Car 99." Probably you didn't see that either because not many people did and those who did were almost as sorry for themselves as for Clara Lou—who wasn't "being done right by" in Hollywood.

Paramount let her option drop and for a time Ann free-lanced with only moderate success. "I was never actually hungry," she explains. "I always had enough money put away to pay my fare back to Dallas, sometimes with and sometimes without Pullman. And I never went without meals because I don't believe in diets."

At the end of this lean period in her career, Ann signed a long-term contract with the Warners. Ann's Dallas friends predicted that she was at last on the easy road to stardom, but again their wishes and their predictions came only half true. Ann played secondary roles in "Sing Me a Love Song" and "Black Legion" and then got a leading role in "The Great O'Malley" with Pat O'Brien.

Since then she has played in many pictures but usually in those of lesser importance. No one on the Warner lot seems to know why. She is popular, generally considered good to look at and she is unusually good-natured, never complaining about a role or going home in a temperamental outbursts. Perhaps if she would let her temper get away from her just once and warm the ears of her present producers with a bit of a tongue-lashing, she could command better parts.



ANN SHERIDAN, ACCLAIMED AS HAVING THE "PERFECT AMERICAN GIRL FIGURE" BY JEAN CHARLOT, THE ILLUSTRATOR.

Ann is married and apparently happy, which may account for the slow progress she is making toward stardom. Her husband is Edward Norris, an M-G-M player, who appeared for Mervyn LeRoy in "They Won't Forget" and got lynched in the final reel for his trouble. Ann was on hand to watch the lynching —and to comfort the young man after the scene was finished.

"Marriage is the best confidence builder I have ever found," Ann says. "I think I had lost my courage. I found that I was hesitating over decisions I should have been able to make at a moment's notice. There was no one to kick me in the shins and tell me to go to work.

—o-o—

"THEN I found that I was in love. There is nothing to do in that situation except marry the man I did. I married in spite of the advice of my friends who believed that a young actress should avoid romantic entanglements until their careers are at least in intermediate if not in high gear.

"I am sure I'll go further in my screen work, such as it is, as a married woman than I would have gone as a single girl."

But still they haven't done right by the red-headed Ann. Her most recent role in "Cowboy from Brooklyn," in which she bounced several break-away vases off of Pat O'Brien's head and laid him up for a week, is better than some she has had but even so she plays second fiddle to Priscilla Lane, who gets first feminine billing—except, of course, in Texas.

Texas went to war with Mexico over less.

Unfailing good humor has won her a place as the most popular actress on the Warner lot. Many think her one of the four or five most beautiful girls in pictures. With half a chance she should be able to do all that Clara Bow did and more. She could even run a cafe such as Clara is supposed to run in Hollywood, because among her many accomplishments, never properly exploited, it seems, is an ability to cook.

Such girls are mighty hard to find—in Hollywood.

Someday when you come to Hollywood and eat at the Warner "Green Room" you will see a pair of beautiful shoulders and a head of flame and you will have met Ann Sheridan face to face. No black and white screen can do her justice. Shortly after that you may start writing letters to the editor demanding reasons for the casual treatment given Ann by the producers.

It will do no good. Contrary to some reports, most producers CAN read but few of them take time to read suggestions and still fewer find time to follow them. Ann will have to fight her Hollywood battles in person.

Ann has been in Hollywood for nearly five years. She came directly from the North Texas State Teachers' College in her home town of Denton, near Dallas, and she was spending a week-end in the last-named city when the "Search for Beauty" contest was scheduled to close. Urged by her family to enter, Ann recalls that she borrowed a picture of herself from an aunt and took it personally to the contest headquarters.

That was probably the secret of her success. Ann in person would warp the judgment of any contest editor, no matter what her small-town portrait might look like. Perhaps if she could be sent out for personal appearances or was given a chance in a color picture, she would find that last step to stardom which so far has eluded her ambitious feet.

Then Hollywood might do right by Texas Annie.

—o-o—

IN Our Set—The Barrymore trio, Lionel, Ethel and John, may appear together once more in a film version of Ethel's play, "Whiteoaks" . . . In "Spawn of the North," incidentally, Brother John will do a little singing. . . . Robert Taylor has just started work on "Give and Take" with Frank Morgan as his chief support. . . . Spencer Tracy's much heralded trip to Europe ended in New York and he will be back in Hollywood in a few days.

—o-o—

PLENTY OF TALK around the big lots about depression, cutting down expenses and things like that. People still being let out of the smaller jobs with an occasional biggie being dropped to make a real showing on the payroll cuts. Warners, for instance, have just neglected to tak up the option on Hugh Herbert, allowing that comedian, who has long been a most reliable and surefire contract player, to become a free lance. As a matter of fact Herbert will do a lot better, financially, under his new arrangement of picking jobs where he sees them. He will find all the work he wants.

But with all these economies being practiced, most of them in the wrong direction, the studios are planning to make a lot of pictures this year. Without taking into consideration many quickie companies which will turn out a film every now and then about 650 feature pictures have been announced. This, with the independent offerings, will make possible at least two features every day in the next year. Doesn't look, then, as though the double feature programs the producers have been complaining about for so long were due to go by the boards for at least a year. In addition to the longer films, 15 new serials are scheduled together with 180 shorts. This doesn't take in the news reels and things like that so, recession or no recession, there is plenty of motion picture entertainment in the offing.

Potomac

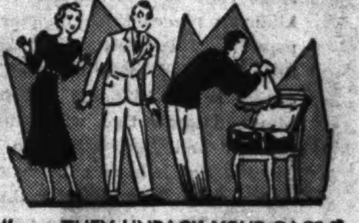
BY HARLAN MILLER

WASHINGTON, April 30.

A NIGHT at the White House! At last the long-awaited invitation . . . You are met at the station in Washington by a White House car manned by chauffeur and footman, who can recognize unerringly the White House guests among 200 getting off the train—perhaps by the divine glow on their faces.

In the long, black limousine they drive you a mile and a half through heavy traffic . . . (Police spot the Presidential seal on the door . . .) If you ask the chauffeur any questions he chats informally over his shoulder . . . You roll under the great white front portico.

At the front door an usher is waiting to escort you up the elevator to the private quarters on the second floor, where the Roosevelts dwell . . . He guides you to your suite off the wide central corridor.



"... THEY UNPACK YOUR BAGS."

Two men servants appear, to unpack your bags, and a maid to unfold your wife's dainty garments . . . She is given the enormous main room, with a bed big enough for three or four, and you are led firmly into the smaller bedroom . . . The valet whisks your suit away to be pressed.

—o-o—

IT IS 6 O'CLOCK, and the usher tells you that dinner will be promptly at 7 . . . You begin frantically to bathe and dress . . . The tub is one of those square things, with corners where you can sit down . . . The white towels are monogrammed "U. S." in white and there's things a girl would want for a week-end's toilettes.

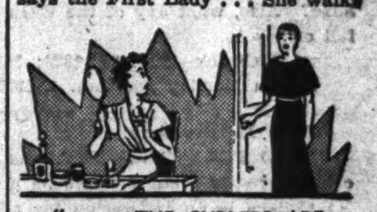
For several minutes every door seemed to be open, with servants moving and carrying things in every direction, but now all is quiet . . . There is a bowl of pink carnations in each room, and plenty of current books and magazines . . .

Your windows overlook the White House gardens, the Ellipse, the Monument and the U. S. Treasury; far away through the trees gleams the Potomac. All is serene, homelike, hospitable.

—o-o—

NOW IT IS 6:30, and there is a knock at the door . . . You say, "Come in," a little tentatively, and in walks Mrs. Roosevelt, not yet dressed for dinner, followed by her secretary . . . Your wife is a "ttle flustered because there are a few curling clips in her hair. But Mrs. Roosevelt doesn't seem to notice them. Her greeting is informal and gracious.

"I think you could use a fire," says the First Lady . . . She walks over to the fireplace and lights the fire herself.



"... THE CURLERS ARE UNNOTICED."

You know her day has been crowded with engagements . . . But she is unhurried and friendly. You chat for a moment or two.

You admire the bed, with its pink silk and lace-covered blanket . . . "I hope you'll be comfortable," she says. "This is the bed in which Ramsay MacDonald slept when he was here." It is also occupied by some of the Roosevelt children when they visit the White House. She goes off to change dresses.

—o-o—

YOU ARE SHOWN a chart of the seating arrangement for dinner, but you will find it not much easier, as usual, to find your place than without a chart . . . Perhaps you cache a tiny cake of soap for your little daughter's collection.

You have brought along three white vests and three white ties, just in case. You begin to hurry a little nervously . . . Your wife is certain she won't have enough time to dress and do herself justice.

There is another knock at the door . . . The usher informs you that it is time to assemble in the upstairs sitting room a few minutes till 7. He seems just a shade surprised that you are not completely ready . . . Your wife begs prettily for just another minute, just another touch or two . . . You mustn't keep the President waiting.

Feeling Fine · · by George Jean Nathan · · Turn to Page Five

my Opinion

by MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WOULD like your opinion on the following situation: Last summer my husband built a double swing in our back yard. The idea was for our little boy to have one and his neighbor friends the other. Of course the problem of "turns" came up at once and the question has grown so that I am bothered all day long and am about to remove the swings. They are all under five years of age and do not understand about letting each other take their turn.

If my little boy gives up his swing, he cries. If I do not make him give up his swing, neighbors say I am making him selfish. I do not want to make him selfish, but I feel as long as we were generous enough to put up an extra swing, that our little boy ought to be able to stay on as long as he cares to. It seems to me these other fathers ought to get busy and erect swings in their own yards. If my boy were older and I could explain to him about being unselfish and giving turns, but he is not much more than a baby. Your frank opinion will certainly relieve me. Also I would like to hear from other mothers about such a problem. WONDERING MOTHER.

In a case of this kind the so-called "rights" might not be understood by your son and the other children. But, certainly, your little boy is old enough, even at three, to be taught what a nice little boy he is when he is kind to other little boys. To praise him for offering a piece of candy and in the same time to impress the other children that gentleness and kindness makes them happier than the constant feud is quite possible. "Mother's little man" does not want to hurt other little boys and make them unhappy; and at the same time the appeal to the kindness and feeling of those who come to see him and know that while the swing belongs to him, he is friendly and nice, will have its effect upon all the children. They will soon learn what it means to "take turns" and become interested in watching for their place. You could even teach them to form a little line and praise them for staying in it.

Your baby could, of course, hold on to his own swing, but play the game, by getting out and running into line once in a while; he would think that fun when he learned it.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

COULD YOU PLEASE GIVE ME any idea when the dance tryouts for the Municipal Opera would take place this year? And when and where they are held? THANK YOU.

Probably you saw, after writing me, the announcement that these tryouts will take place at the American Theater tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday, beginning at 10 a. m. each day. Singers will be heard the first day, singers and dancers will have auditions the second day, and the final eliminations will take place the third day. Only residents of St. Louis and vicinity are eligible.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM A GIRL IN MY EARLY TEENS and have a talent for music. I take music lessons in St. Louis. My teacher wishes to put my sister and me (Sister plays the same instrument as I) in a band which plays in different places. My sister is to be placed and my teacher has offered to do the same for me, but I cannot make it on band practice days. I would like to be with my sister since we are about the same age, but my school work interferes. I suggested to my parents to let me finish school in St. Louis but they refuse. Of course I don't want to get behind my sister. I am sure you will give me an answer to this problem. ANXIOUS.

I believe your mother, who knows all the details and the circumstances, is in a much better position than I to decide the matter; however, if you have your lessons on the instrument regularly and your sister can, at home, or when you see her, give you much help; so that you may be able to join her later in the orchestra.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I'M ASKING YOU to please print this in order to settle a silly argument. In what year was Joe Medwick married? What year Johnny Mize? Also, what day of the week did June 30, 1919, and Jan. 4, 1920, fall on? A. R. J.

Medwick—Aug. 25, 1936; Mize, Aug. 9, 1937. June 30, 1919, fell on Monday and Jan. 4, 1920, fell on Sunday.

—o—o—

Dear Martha Carr:

"OLD FOGY'S" LETTER was really quite amusing. I am not a college graduate, but I would be if circumstances would permit.

College is an institution for advanced learning and not a kindergarten. These rude and inconsiderate persons, of whom "Old Fogy" speaks, should have been taught manners and courtesy in their grammar school days and have been compelled at home, by their parents, to abide by these teachings.

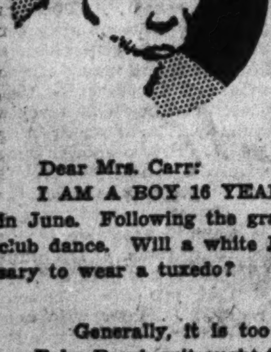
There is probably one, out of every 10 college students, who imposes upon relatives, sleeps all day, and refuses to pay board; unfortunately "Old Fogy" has happened to meet with that one.

BELIEVER IN EDUCATION.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

QUITE OFTEN in your column I have noticed that some of your readers have dogs to give away. I am looking for a small dog such as a Scottie, spaniel, dachshund, wire-haired terrier or Boston bulldog. And I feel that maybe one of your readers might have one of these they can no longer care for and would like to find a good home. I am living in the County and have plenty of room for a dog. I have only one son, 15 years old, so that the dog would not be misused by smaller children. I can be telephoned at YOrktown 0067 and I shall be glad to go and look at the dog.



Thank you, Mrs. Carr, for anything you may do about this. MRS. A. L. P.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM A BOY 16 YEARS old and will graduate from high school in June. Following the graduation exercises I am going to a Country club dance. Will a white Palm Beach suit be all right or is it necessary to wear a tuxedo? THANK YOU.

Generally, it is too warm to wear a "tux" in June. The Palm Beach suit ought to be all right or the blue coat and white trousers. It is always comfortable to have an understanding with the other boys about the clothes to be decided upon for the occasion; and not at all out of the ordinary to ask others who are to be there.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

Danger Ahead!

by VIRGINIA IRWIN

Matrimonial Seas Are Likely to Run Rough and High for Men During Early Years of Marriage; An Author Has Charted Course for Them in "Brides Are Like New Shoes."

FOR the young man who is about to sign on the dotted line and agree to support for life one of those bundles of contradictions generally known as a wife, there is a spanking new book off the press designed to help him through that hurricane called a wedding and guide him through the first few troubled years when the matrimonial seas are apt to run rough and high. This handbook for about-to-be bewildered husbands is called "Brides Are Like New Shoes" (Dodd, Mead, publishers), and was written by Anne B. Fisher in response to the pleas of the men who read her advice to blushing brides called "Live With a Man and Love It."

"When the date of your wedding is made public, you don't know it, but you'll be automatically signed off the air," Anne counsels the boy who is in the throes of big-wedding woes. "You'll take a back seat until it is time for you, as a necessary part of the floor show, to put in an appearance at the church to claim your blushing bride. Men have always hated big weddings, but they are helpless to do anything about it. After all, most women are actresses at heart, and this is the one time in a woman's life when she can have the uncontested leading part."

So while your girl is so busy with the business of big-wedding arrangements that she has hardly time to notice you're around, you who are about to become a husband can put in your time digesting Anne's advice on the subject of honeymoons.

"Most men are plain crazy when they plan a honeymoon," she says. "They think of all the nice things to do, and places to go, and then wind up by taking the brand new wife on a fishing trip."

So, no matter what the anxious-to-please partner says, don't take her fishing. No woman on earth likes to play second fiddle to a fish and if you're touched in the head enough to want to go fishing on your honeymoon, you're only admitting that you have just as much interest in bass as you have in your bride.

"Try to chose a honeymoon that she'd like," pleads Anne, "a place that will be a lovely memory to her as well as to you, when you think back on it during your journey through the years. And don't take her home to visit your relatives on your honeymoon. Give her a breathing spell, and an opportunity to get used to living with you, before you make her the bug on a pin for all of your relatives to examine with a magnifier."

The next rule of the honeymoon is: Don't try to prove to her that she's the one and only by citing the number of girls who tried to snare you before you fell off the limb of single blessedness and into her lap and matrimony. As Anne says, "It is well to remember that previous love affairs kept to oneself after marriage are like pie in the icebox—they never give anyone indigestion."

Some time during the honeymoon you will, of course, discover that your newly acquired spouse has, strange to say, a few faults that you failed to notice while you were in the pre-wedding moonlight and honeysuckle mood. Maybe you'll even notice that she's beginning to be a bit bossy. In which case, honeymoon or no honeymoon, use a curb bit and rein her in before she even gets a start at making you one of those "Yes, My Dear" husbands.

There will be other faults you'll discover, of course, when you settle down for a go at housekeeping. Maybe she's one of those girls who can't be convinced that moldy bread never belonged in anybody's bread box. Or maybe she peels the vegetables in the sink and stops up the drain. Telling her not to hoard moldy bread and not to let bits of broccoli and beet tops slip down the drain, won't do anything except start a battle.

—o-o—

"YOU'LL find that it is easier to learn how to clean out the offending pipes, or even to pay the plumber to come to do it for you, than it is to try to change your wife's habits, and get her to peel vegetables somewhere else besides in the sink," warns Anne. "If you can't take it, you'd better see if she's a sink peeler before you look into her eyes and slip a wedding ring on her finger. She can be a sink peeler and still look sweet and ethereal. Four out of five girls are sink peelers. It is simply female nature and it doesn't show until they get into action.

"And don't jump down her throat when she tells you about the crooked anatomy of the kitchen pipes! She's cross already, and irritated about the sink. The time to discuss the business is after the sink is open again and things are smoothed out. One clever husband handled it quietly and diplomatically, by pointing out that he was glad to help clean the sink pipe, but if she let too much stuff go down the sink, the plumber might have to dig up the fern bed that was over the trap. That fern bed was a weak spot with the wife."

Maybe you think that stopped-up sinks and mouldy bread in the bread box are inconsequential things, but as Anne Fisher points out, "it requires only a tiny microbe to start a plague." And to prove it she tells the story of the man who tired of seeing dry bread in the bread box and took it upon himself to toss away all the dry crusts his wife had been saving for turkey dressing. After that the wife hoarded bread crusts and fed him on bread pudding, just to teach him a lesson, until his eyes bulged out and he went to see a lawyer to discover if too much bread pudding was reason for a trip to Reno.

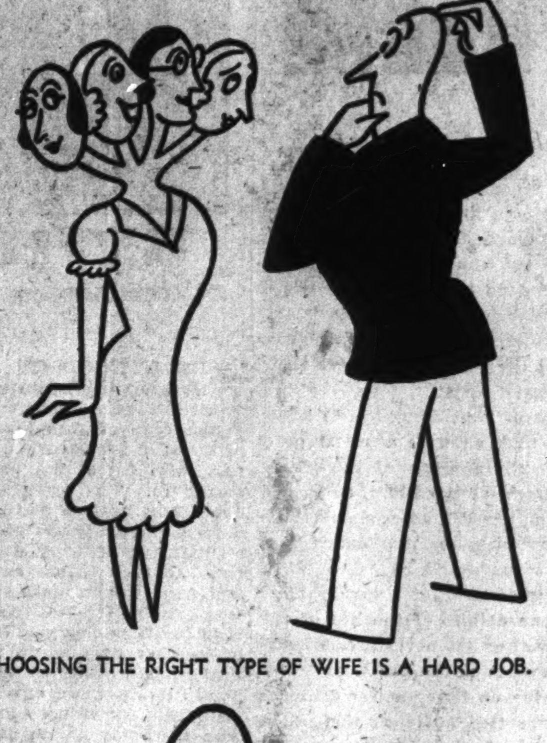
AND now let's suppose you have, but hope you haven't, married a girl who nags. Anne devotes a good deal of space in meeting this issue.

"Nagging is a form of mouth work that can become a miserable habit and eventually wreck your marriage," she writes. "There are almost as many ways to nag as there are women. If you married a woman who 'don'ts' you about tracking up the house, and reminds you two or three times to empty the garbage bucket, and wants to know definitely when you intend to put up the jam shelf, may heaven help you! She's a nagger!

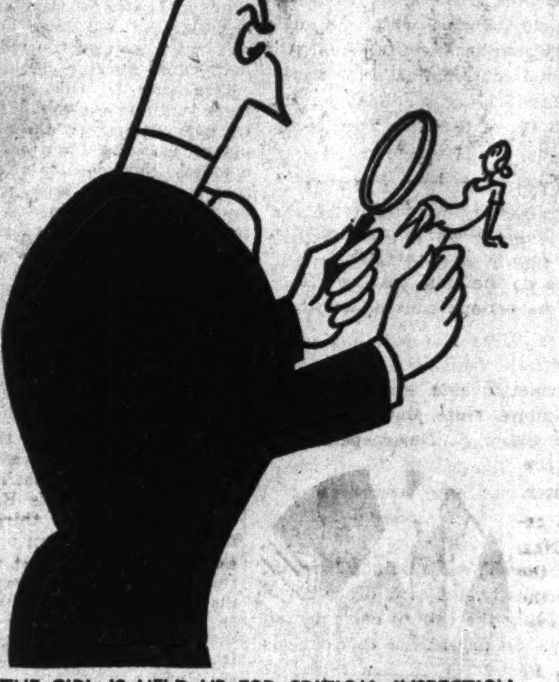
"This is one of the hardest problems to handle. You'll need the diplomacy of a Washington Brain Truster, the soft paws of a pussy for walking lightly, and the silver tongue of a poet to put over your reform. But don't air your troubles at the time she nags, or all will be lost. Take the gal out. Buy her a corsage or a new dress, and give her a good dinner; then, when she's simply gushing with love for you, shoot your anti-nag gun. Explain that husbands leave home, not because of love for another woman, but because the other woman doesn't nag."

In a chapter on "pet peeves" Anne discusses the little annoyances of married life and what to do about them. For instance, your wife's habit of yanking on her girdle is about to drive you to drinking something stronger than fizz water. Instead of blowing up, kid her out of it by laughing and remarking every time she does it, "Why don't you nail it down or take it off, Toots?" Or maybe her mother doesn't happen to be just what you'd call a model mother-in-law. Play up to her and win her over by fair means or foul, for as Anne points out, "a good-natured mother-in-law makes a swell repository for potted plants, Scotty dogs, canaries or even babies, when you want to go away for a few days and forget that you are a family man with responsibilities."

And if you don't want to come home some night and find a note on the pincushion instead of your wife in the kitchen cooking supper, you'd better follow Anne Fisher's advice on how to behave when you become a husband, and remember that brides are like new shoes, because you can never tell how many places they will pinch until you try them out.



CHOOSING THE RIGHT TYPE OF WIFE IS A HARD JOB.



THE GIRL IS HELD UP FOR CRITICAL INSPECTION.

Now, Gloves for Every Occasion

FOLLOWERS of fashion whims have become accustomed to shoe wardrobes and hat wardrobes but the idea of a glove wardrobe is of this year's vintage. According to the latest rules of styles, even a St. Louis summer calls for gloves for every costume and every occasion. Shades as well as fabrics vary with the needs of the wearer.

The doeskin glove of white, chamois or certain new beige shades is considered the smartest for wear with town costumes but the woman who likes to wear tailored cottons for shopping will need a pair of simple "air-cooled" meshes. For active sports wear there are many different versions of the leather-palmed glove as well as perforated all-leather styles. Gloves of bright shades of leather also are being advocated for summer to match bags or footwear.

Mesh and other novelty cotton gloves are so varied of design and color that an entire wardrobe could be assembled from these. A crocheted model has flower motifs embroidered in colors on the back. Another has a unique back fastening. Ric-rac braid trims a third type, the braid extending around the cuff and down the back of the hand.

Evening Slippers

See that your evening slippers contrast with the shade of your frock, if you would demonstrate your alertness to the moods of fashion. Even the black dress calls for this contrast and the brighter the footwear, the more successful is the costume. Vivid tones of green or red are recommended for black or white dresses. Strap slippers that have thick soles are smartest at the moment.

THE ALIEN PROBLEM

By Elsie Robinson

DOES America give the foreign-born a dirty deal?

Laura Bujnarowski of Detroit says it does — and added much depressing data. We disagreed with Laura—and proceeded to heave a few data ourself. Before doing so, however, we paid sincere tribute to the fine people of alien birth who have respected America's vision . . . helped to carry her burden . . . given so abundantly of their own strength and culture. Such high-minded folk, said we, deserved our lasting gratitude and esteem.

But we felt no such enthusiasm—and we didn't give a hoot who knew it—for those who came here with no thought save self-profit . . . aliens who constantly expressed their contempt for American customs, standards and institutions, yet, at the same time, demanded all the rights enjoyed by the native-born.

Today, thousands, perhaps millions, of such unnaturalized aliens are living on American relief . . . sending their children to free American schools . . . enjoying privileges and profits which their own old-world countries would never grant them. So what?

Are we big-hearted Samaritans?

Or just a bunch of suckers, receiving the trimming we so richly deserve?

All of which we told young Laura. And immediately found we'd started plenty! Letters by the carload — some of them cheering us on, but many, alas, telling us where we could go and how to get there quickest.

Amongst the friendly is a gentleman whose work brings him in close contact with immigrants —Rudolph Reimer, District Commissioner, United States Department of Labor, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Ellis Island. Despite dirty looks and maybe a few bombs, Reimer still dares to believe that America should not be regarded as humanity's free flophouse. And he thinks it might be well to ask our foreign friends a few pertinent questions before we give them all the white meat and best blankets.

"Would it be unfair," queries Reimer, "to ask the alien who wishes to make the United States his permanent residence, just what he can contribute to America's welfare and happiness, or what he can add to our international and spiritual life, if granted a visa for permanent residence?"

A simple question, seemingly, but just stop and think it over. Let's forget that we are discussing a nation, and talk about houses instead.

Suppose, Bill and Mary, that you had built a big, new house . . . a beautiful house which had cost you, and your people before you, tremendous toil, sacrifice and suffering. But now, at last, you stood on its sill, ready to welcome others to your home—

And, from afar, you saw those others coming . . . a great, clamorous multitude, fleeing from the poverty and persecution of other lands . . . reaching, with frantic desire, toward the haven you had made possible, at so great a price.

And some who came, even though they wore rags, had noble faces, kindly hearts and honest, work-worn hands. And, entering your house, they walked gently—considerately — and in their shining eyes you saw a reflection of that vision which had inspired you and those before you.

And, seeing this, you were glad and welcomed them . . . and shared you heart and hearth with them willingly, gratefully.

But suppose that to every such a one who came with understanding, willing both to bear and share burden or bounty, there were thousands who saw only Gain as they rushed screeching across the sill . . . grabbing at all they could reach as they elbowed themselves in . . . consuming the reserves of food and money you had prepared for your children . . . seizing the protection you had prepared for your old and helpless . . . demanding, threatening, jeering, reviling——

What would you do, how would you feel?

For the house has been built—

And the multitude is advancing.

Shall we not even challenge their purpose . . . demand an accounting of "their contribution to America's welfare and happiness, their gift to America's mental and spiritual life"?

Or shall we let them in unchallenged . . . to defile the house we have built . . . to desecrate the vision we have seen . . . to demoralize the standards we have created. . . .

To turn a shrine into a flophouse!

Millinery Oddity

Ostrich tips adorn straw hats and supply one of the millinery oddities of the season. They are clustered at the front of a Watteau model of navy straw, their shades ranging from delicate pink to a deep rose tint. They also look striking when arranged around the crown of a rough straw sailor in the burnt tone that is so popular. Regardless of their arrangement color harmony is an important factor and invariably they are accompanied by a veil.

Correct Care Of Finger Tips

GROOMING should extend to the tips of your fingers. And that's more than a figure of speech, when you're talking about beauty. The manicure is about the best indication of the importance a person attaches to appearance. Here's some advice on care of the fingernails:

Choose your polish—if you wear it—with an eye to your costume. Unless you want to amaze and amuse, don't try gold nails tipped with emerald. Select instead one of the clover-toned or heather shades—to lend a fragile, feminine appeal. If your polish has thickened, add just a few drops of polish remover to it. Thick polish is likely to dry in bumps, thin polish in streaks.

Don't dig at the base of your nails with steel instruments. Gently work the cuticle back with a cotton-tipped orange stick dipped into an oily cuticle remover. You may moisten bits of cotton in the remover—and allow them to remain on the nails for a few minutes.

Try one of the new waxy bases before you put on your polish. Use a flesh-colored base for light tints of polish, a white base for brighter shades. Cover the moon and the nail tip, but leaving a narrow line bare around the sides and base of the nail. That's so the polish will cover the wax completely.

Silk Coats

The silk suit for summer has a companion in the silk coat which is a revival of the old black bengaline model of a generation ago. Thus far it is regarded as an adult fashion but we may see some of the white lace collar types that little girls once wore. A fitted version that is collarless and very simply tailored is featured of black, navy or brown.

About Town

BY DOROTHY COLEMAN

OUT-OF-TOWN exhibitors an judges at the Villa Duchesne dog show next Saturday are going to be surprised when they first meet the licensed superintendent of the show. It's not a middle-aged, hard-bitten professional man who tours the country putting on commercial kennel exhibits, but Abigail Gross, a young woman who turned 20 last February shortly after she completed her debut season. This is the fifth show in as many years which Miss Gross has run, almos single-handed, for the villa, from which she was graduated last June.

She started the show in May, 1934, when as president of her class she had to think up a scheme to help raise money for missions. Although the first year entries—only 90 in all—and judges were local, and spectators limited to students and parents, the class cleared $350, $325 more than their quota.

The coming show will be the villa's first one licensed by the American Kennel Club, the first one at which nationally-known judges will officiate, and the first one for entries from out of town. It looks now as if more than 400 dogs will be entered into this national point match, only 100 fewer than the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club shows attract after a quarter of a century. "And it's all grown from nothing but my dreams," the young woman exclaims with some wonde at her own success.

The household at 15 Portland place, consisting of Miss Abigail's mother, her five brothers and sisters, and her five assorted dogs, revolves for the time being entirely around the young impresario. Even plans for the June wedding of her older sister, Joy, are in abeyance until after the dog show.

A UNIVERSITY CITY residen reports the following conversatio with a repair man who had the usual difficulties in finding her house.

"Say, I thought all the streets out here were named for colleges."

"They are."

"Well, you told me you lived o Radcliffe."

"I do."

"What's the big idea, then? I been readin' the sports pages every night for years, and I never di hear of a team from Radcliffe."

—o-o—

A RECENT CONSULTATION of Emily Post's little brochure on decorum has revived doubts I have been harboring for some time about the proper procedure in certain social contacts. For instance, calling. Of course, your approach depend somewhat on your motives. Certai calls you feel obliged to make on newlyweds, bereaved families, elderly distant relatives, purely for the sake of the record. At other times, you have an honest desire to see friends, but because the curtains are down or you are out of beer, or your helpmeet wants to be able to depart when he gets drowsy, you think it would be sounder to go see them.

Now, in the first instance, I hav always contended—in the face of some opposition—that it is wiser, instead of telephoning first, to set out and make your call in person, hoping to find the party out. In that case, the outcome is completely happy. You simply leave your card and feel free as a bird about the matter. The trouble with telephoning and catching the person at home is that even if tonight doesn't suit, she or he or they may suggest a night later in the week. Then you're really hooked.

THE SECOND CATEGORY of calls presents another problem. If you really want to see certain people, it's folly to give them a chance to elude by telephoning first. No matter the etiquette, it's far safer just to barge on over, running the risk, of course, of being frightfully embarrassed. The pair may be pretty much in undress. The front room may be a shambles. Their icebox may yield nothing more revivifying than pineapple juice. Or you may walk in on a bridge foursome. Worse still, a formal dinner party for eight. It takes a Lucius Beebe to retreat under those circumstances with any sangfroid.

Sunday afternoon calls constitute a special problem. The chances of rousing people, either by a phone call or a personal appearance, from the inevitable siesta are great. is the possibility that the disturbance will put them in unsociable mood. Looking at the matter again from the callee's point of view, can see that people with places in the country must have an especially tough time, getting that relaxation they went out there for. They are too careless with their invitations to drop by some bright day, forgetting they've no escape from visitors, exposed as they are on a hilltop. If you telephone your rusticating friends they feel obliged to ask you to spend the day with them, or at least they'll have to suggest that you arrive in time for dinner, or stay for supper. That's embarrassing, too, when you honestly only want to stop by on a drive in that part of the world. The only perfect solution to these perplexing problems is to keep to yourself entirely.

Reasons for Golschmann's $30,000 Salary

Symphony Conductor's Pay Compared With Other Men's in Same Field.

By Thomas B. Sherman

JUDGING from the tone and content of letters received by the Post-Dispatch and the more informal expressions of opinion one hears among patrons of music in the city, it has been widely assumed that the reductions in pay suffered by members of the St. Louis orchestra was somehow caused by the increase of salary granted to the conductor, Vladimir Golschmann. The size of Golschmann's salary has also been the cause of more than a little surprise. One gathers that it is considered high, if not excessive, by many.

As for the connection between Golschmann's pay and that of his colleagues in the orchestra it is revealing no secret to say that the two arrangements were concluded separately. What influence one may have had on the other in the minds of the directors who were trying to balance a budget is known only to them and they have made no statement on the subject. The size of Golschmann's salary, however, can be discussed in relationship to certain established criteria.

Obviously the directors of the Symphony Society did not agree to pay him $30,000 or even $28,000 because he was a nice fellow and they liked him. They arrived at this figure, as they would have arrived at the price of any commodity or service affected by competitive bidding. In other words, Golschmann's pay has been determined more or less by the prevailing salaries of other conductors of the same general category throughout the country. It is the standard fixed by the market and is therefore the only one that has any objective meaning.

—o-o—

THAT BEING SO it becomes pertinent to inquire into salaries paid elsewhere. In Boston, for instance, Koussevitzky is paid $70,000 a year as against Golschmann's $30,000. Boston, a more important musical center, if not a larger city than St. Louis, is supported by richer music patrons and caters to a more populous metropolitan district.

But if one asks is Koussevitzky worth two and a third times as much as Golschmann one need not expect an answer that means anything. There is no way of reducing the matter to statistics. Boston is paying Koussevitzky that extremely handsome salary because the Boston directors think he is worth it and because they wouldn't be able to keep him if they didn't.

THE BOSTON ORCHESTRA, however, is obviously in a different category from St. Louis. The same may be said of New York and Philadelphia. They support the de luxe orchestras of the world and it is to be expected that they would pay their conductors more. The Pittsburgh orchestra, however, should rank lower if anything. That city has about the same population as St. Louis but its musical tradition is not so old and its orchestra was organized only last year. But in order to obtain the services of Fritz Reiner, whose adaptability to the Pittsburgh public is still to be determined, the Pittsburgh directors had to offer him $30,000 a year in his first contract.

Other cities with orchestras of the same rank as St. Louis are Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Minneapolis, Chicago, San Francisco, and Los Angeles. Of these only one pays its conductor less than St. Louis. All others pay the same or more. Obviously then, according to the only standard that has any economic validity $30,000 is not an excessive figure for a conductor who is an established success in his community and who is beginning his eighth year of service.

—o-o—

ON THE SUBJECT of whether any conductor is worth so much money much can be said pro and contra. A year's pay for Golschman is more money than Mozart had in his whole life. On the other hand, it is much less than Nelson Eddy makes for one month's work. Interpretive artists—that is, singers and virtuoso instrumentalists—receive, in general, much greater reward from the public than the creative artists who furnish the music to be sung or played. Composers have a notoriously hard time of it. These injustices, unfortunately, are not peculiar to the realm of music as everybody knows. A prize fighter is paid more than the President of the United States and the dewiest and most inconspicuous starlet in Hollywood pays her agent more than the United States pays its major-generals. So one gets nowhere rapidly by bringing in such comparisons.

Persons who have an idealistic view of music feel—and properly so—that music would be better off if artists accepted it as a way of life rather than a means of getting rich. But since idealism of that sort is not possible in a competitive world an orchestra that wants the services of a conductor of a certain quality will undoubtedly have to pay the price fixed by the market.

Baby

BY KAY THOMAS

BY their stripes, their wide girdles of smocking, their jumpers, their boleros and their checks and plaids will you know the little girls of 1938. For their styles have changed, too, and as usual this change has been inspired by the fabrics and lines adopted by their mothers.

Stripes in red or navy on white look very new. Smocking, instead of confining itself to the shoulders and bodices of little frocks, comes way down over the stomach now, suggesting in its own small way the lower waistline. Boleros, which match or contrast with the dress, are shown on little girls 6 to 12.

Jumpers in printed cottons over fresh white blouses look newer now than those Tyrolean things, but still they are quite peasant in feeling. Cotton dirndls, though, are available, as are those little classics—the linen princesse dresses.

In party frocks, ribbon lacing looks surprisingly new again. Yes, pink and blue or white ribbon is run through beading about the neck and sleeve bands, and mothers and nurses can struggle again to keep these ribbons in place.

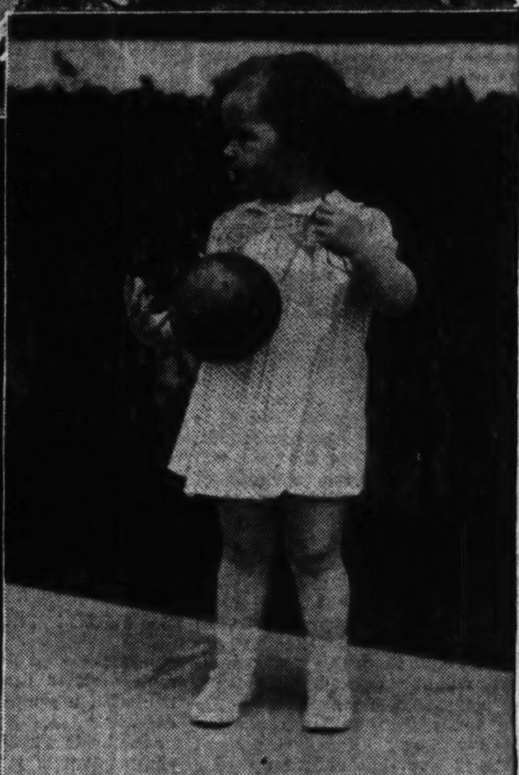
Sheer frocks, so ideal for parties, are popular, especially in stiff, starched, self-printed organdy. Dotted Swiss in all one color or with contrasting dots, get about, too.

Up to 3, while the pastel woolens with matching bonnets look cute and baby-like, checks in coats are more practical and a little more fashionable now. Some of these coats, so infinitesimally small, are double-breasted, even, and have inverted pleats at the back in a most grown-up manner.

For the girls from 3 to 6, all-navy is the most accepted color in coats. Some of these have lingerie collars and white buttons, and others look military with silver buttons. Monotone tweeds are practical, but remember, these don't look well with anything but felt hats.

If a little girl can have only one hat in the spring, then by all means get her a tailored leghorn—medium brimmed, with a dark band and streamers, if she insists. This she can wear with her dresses all summer. If she can get a tailored felt breton, though, nothing looks better with the navy and tweed coats, no matter how un-spring-like you think this looks. Balibuntl, with ribboned chin bows and flowers, will see the little girl through all her parties.

Her little gloves this year should be the one button cotton, not the gauntlet length—and white, of course. And as a relief from the black patent shoes, if she is under 6, you might try the red patent leather Mary Janes. Well dressed little girls are now wearing these with printed cottons, and with navy spring coats, even, and very proud they are of them, too.



Matching Coats For New Frocks

SPRING frocks that have their own full length coats of matching fabric will be among the practical leaders for late spring wear, judging by the early interest in these ensembles. Sheer materials, either plain or printed, are indicative of the trend.

Noted among the costumes that are new in St. Louis is one sheer dress and coat ensemble of navy blue, the fabric having a twilled texture. The dress is one of those acquiring the title of "basic" because it offers a wide choice of accent colors. High, draped neckline and a wide shoulder yoke suggest the addition of various clips, necklaces or brooches. The fitted coat has grosgrain ribbon binding, a cluster of wood violets on the lapel and a violet colored belt of suede.

Another costume that has an identical coat is made of brown and white printed material. The dress is of the shirtwaist type although skirt fullness is provided by unpressed front pleats and the neckline is finished with a scarf collar.

Gray Popular Among Late Spring Shades

GRAY is becoming more popular among late spring shades and is being featured for evening as well as daytime costumes. Not only does it appear in the solid color but as a background for multicolored prints, in striped arrangement with more vivid shades and in dotted motifs.

Marquisette and other sheer fabrics of dark gray one are employed instead of navy or black in the creation of interesting daytime ensembles. Nets, laces and chiffons are stressed for evening, usually brightened by some other color such as bright blue or pink.

NEW TREND IN EVENING SANDALS

THOSE thick-soled sandals which are being labeled as "stilts" are being accepted by fashionable young women for evening wear as well as for sports use. They are the most sensational of the summer footwear styles, all of which are sufficiently gay and novel to focus all eyes on the feet.

One reason that the girls like these stilted models is because they do make the feet look smaller. Another point in their favor, especially with short women, is that they add several inches of height as well as giving the wearer the sensation of being "up in the air." Colored leathers are being used extensively for these sandals.

Summer will be an "open" season for footwear, if the styles on display in the shops prove as popular as the designers anticipate. Toes and heels both continue to be ignored with soles and instep straps representing the bulk of the shoe. The only summer model, evcept the active sports type, which deviates from this rule is the square-toed and square-heeled pump that is finished with a wide flat bow and is named the "dancing-school" pump.

Many different fabrics and leathers are in vogue. Linens promise to be most popular of all the fabrics for summer and are shown in many shades, both dark and light. White linen that is trimmed with copper leather is a shade that many women will want for wear with their summer prints and with their colorful sports costumes. Brightly tinted suedes are combined with linen or gabardine and there are many leather mesh types that look cool and will have an appeal for hot-weather needs.

The all-white sandal of suede or linen is featured less extensively than the color trimmed variety but it adds lacy effects, novelty cut-out designs and other tricky details to supply a popular note.

Frocks for Dancing

Sheer frocks of street length are heralded as important for summer evening wear, especially for roof garden dining and dancing. In a recent fashion show, a shirred black chiffon frock was shown, its neckline cut low and square and the sleeves very short. A large black hat, also sheer of texture, completed this striking costume.

Matchstick Jewelry

Multi-colored matchstick jewelry ensembles are illustrative of the trend toward novelty in summer accessories. Made of metal and clustered together, these little sticks are used to fashion clips and bracelet ornaments. The bracelets are made of rows of colored braid or of metal cords.

Fabrics Cited For Popularity This Summer

All Have Cool Look That Women Demand in Warm-Weather Clothes.

DOTS, stripes, peasant effects and hopsacking types of fabrics represent the materials that are cited for popularity for practical summer frocks. All of these have a cool look that women demand in their warm-weather clothes and they also have a casual quality that adds to their charm. If they tub, so much the better, and this quality is being stressed this year along with non-crush features.

The dots always are fashionable for late spring and summer with black and white and navy and white combinations the standbys year after year. This summer there will be newcomers to consider, among them being the confetti dots on white backgrounds and the combination of white with luggage tan. Sheers and crepes are most effective in the dotted patterns while novelty cottons and old-fashioned dotted swiss are scheduled to appear in the one-piece and two-piece costumes.

The vogue of stripes changes with the seasons and the bold effects of the early spring are being replaced by cooler alliances. Floral designs that are worked in striped effects started a vogue several months ago. In addition to appearing on crepe grounds they are noted of dimity, pique and sheer synthetic materials. Awning stripes are being used for some striking sports costumes and those who like unusual costumes are combining boldly striped cotton skirts with vivid solid-colored blouses.

Hopsacking is being used for many different types of costumes now. Some of these are strictly tailored and have an appeal to the business woman for warm-weather wear. Suits, two-piece dresses and shirtwaist types are representative of the collection. Interesting colors are seen, many of these being the new desert tones. The natural string shade is effective as a contrast or for an entire costume that has trimming of the bright toned hopsacking.

Peasant linen is being handled similarly to hopsacking. Alliances of unusual shades result in dresses and suits that are gay and youthful. Three tones are worked together occasionally although the two-color theme is most prominent. Luggage tan and aqua are two that are typical of the trend.

Since pleated skirts are continuing into the summer, interest centers on the fabrics that have been processed so that they do not wrinkle easily.

Flower Trimming

The bandeaux of sailors and other brimmed hats show the importance of flower trimming. One navy blue straw sailor, for example, has a bandeau covered completely with white daisies. Another has a coiffure band of navy grosgrain that is covered with lilies of the valley. Violets, gardenias and roses are similarly massed to enhance the appearance of tailored models.

Youthful Costumes

The vogue of youthful fashions for spring has revived the interest in "mother and daughter" costumes. Bolero outfits are illustrative for the trend, the same color and fabrics being used for the little girl of six years as for her mother. Equally attractive are redingote ensembles combining printed and solid colored fabrics and designed identically for juvenile and adult sizes.

L M Suggest

BY JOSEPHINE WALTER

IT is impossible for me to leave the subject of my trip to the Southeast without a more detailed article on Williamsburg. I know I have written of it before, but it is such a completely amazing undertaking, and each season sees so many more places restored, that I would actually feel remiss were I to fail to devote some space to it.

There is no doubt that we all owe a tremendous debt to John D. Rockefeller Jr. for his foresight and generosity in restoring this old town. Even for the person with no interest in architecture and decoration, the restoration of Williamsburg cannot help but give a realization of our inheritance historically, culturally and artistically. As I heard one man remark, "After seeing Williamsburg I realize for the first time what it really feels like to be an American." And, of course, for the person interested in the domestic architecture of our country, this place is a veritable treasure house. None of us, perhaps, would care to copy any part of a Williamsburg house, item for item, and yet the seal adopted as the emblem of the restoration, "That the future may learn from the past," gives an indication that a trip to this development might be utilized by any of us.

—o-o—

I am merely going to give a passing word to the architecture of Williamsburg, as this phase would be a long study in itself. Probably no place else in America could a person interested in Georgian Colonial architecture find such a concentrated area of good design and probably no other spot has had as much of an influence on architecture all over the country in the past few years. The classic beauty and simplicity of the Colonial Virginia type of design is eminently suited to houses any place in this country.

● More interesting to the average woman, I believe, is the interior architecture of the Williamsburg rooms. I say rooms advisedly, instead of homes, for there is as much to be learned about this phase of interior design from rooms in the taverns and even the public buildings as there is from the homes themselves. Also, I say interior architecture instead of decoration, for that is the one phase of building that has been sadly neglected during recent years, I believe. We have become used to making attractive rooms from four barren walls and have more or less forgotten the aids to be obtained from good proportions, fine woodwork and interesting details.

One of the outstanding features of the Williamsburg rooms are their beauty of proportion and shape, and this is not based merely on size. Even a small room may be given a feeling of space and beauty by proper proportions and the early builders seemed to have a veritable genius along this line. Personally, my feeling about this was that there was a preponderance of square or almost square rooms, which on the whole are apt to give a feeling of better proportion than the long, narrow room which is so dear to the heart of the present-day architects.

—o-o—

Wood trim for interiors is a thing that might well be revived with happy results today, whether of the elaborate Williamsburg type or simplified adaptations. In most of these rooms, you have the feeling that draperies, for instance, are merely incidental or a framework to display to better advantage the handsome wood trim of the windows. Of course, I know that cost is a consideration in most buildings today, but I believe that the added cost for interior woodwork might be made up for in the simplification of decoration that would naturally follow.

● To me, color was one of the most intriguing and even surprising features of these Williamsburg rooms. We have come to think of color, especially vivid color, as an invention of the moderns, and yet the rooms on view are a liberal education in color schemes that would be perfectly suited to our present-day rooms. Combinations such as pale blue walls and burgandy draperies, a deeper blue combined with a bright crimson and all sorts of green ranging from Pale Georgian to a bright, vivid tone that is almost emerald, are to be seen at Williamsburg. But most fascinating of all, and a type of decoration that well merits revived attention is the marbleizing that is to be seen over and over again. It adds a character to an interior which would go a long way toward making up for the lack of interesting wood trim in our homes today.

The gardens of Williamsburg have, perhaps, excited more interest than any other phase of the restoration possible because they have opened up for us new ideas that we never suspected before. By and large, most of the gardens are of the patterned, formal type even when they grace the door-yard of a cottage. Our forefathers appreciated the necessity for plan and design in gardens as well as architecture, and we may all do well to study and profit by their example.

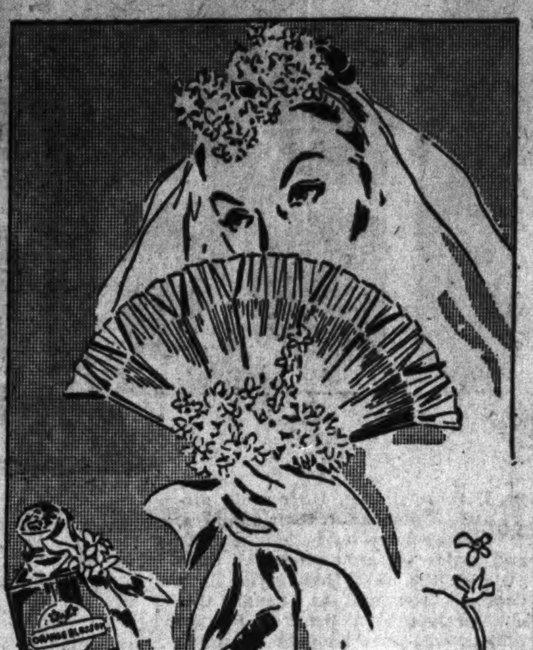
Beauty and the Bride

BY ALICE WADE ROBINSON



HERE'S A NEW BRIDAL BOUQUET — FAN WITH ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

SO, you're going to be married in June or soon or some time—maybe. That's enough to admit you to our today's conference. It makes no difference whether your trousseau is made or in the making. No matter either, if you haven't progressed beyond the hope chest period. Just to be marriage-inclined is your ticket to today's talk to the altar-bound.

We are all for beauty preparedness for brides. There's still a month for those of you who will wed this coming June. That's plenty of time to insure your good looks for the day itself, and for the rest of your life. In this speed-driven interval before the wedding, don't be speed-driven. Slow up. It's best to make haste slowly. Everyone expects a bride to be in a kind of luminous fog anyway at this exquisite moment of her life. Take advantage of the leeway: Do so much every day in the way of preparation, of greeting friends, of rearranging the pattern of your life . . . so much every day, no more.

Each morning after breakfast be alone with yourself for half an hour. Get in a comfortable chair, paper and pencil in hand and assign yourself certain necessary responsibilities and duties for the day. Check up on your trousseau, for instance. Allow yourself the minimum of party-going and their late hours. Get in a nap in the late afternoon. Let your family or your bridesmaids relieve you as much as possible of the routine shopping which still remains to be done. Pamper yourself—for your beauty's sake, for peace in your heart, and for solace to your nerves.

Modern brides are satorially daring this year, many of them are choosing wedding gowns in cosmetic colors. That's why makeup and nail polish must be harmoniously chosen. Don't be surprised to read that "the bride wore a tulle gown of softest flesh pink," or one in rose rachel or sea blue of palest lilac. White and ivory are still highly favored, of course. They are traditional, but some of those in pastel cosmetic colors are delicately unworldly-looking, fragile as a summer mist.

OLYMPE BRADNA MADE A BEAUTIFUL GARDENIA BRIDE IN A RECENTLY RELEASED SCREEN PRODUCTION.

As to the bride's bouquet: It's always white. This year's, though, is different in formation. Olympe Bradna's is a stylized, old-fashioned one of gardenia clusters. Like Olympe, wear matching flowers in your hair. Do this no matter if you choose a tulle fan, its base embedded in orange blossoms. Or, like maids of ancient Greece, you swing from your arm a rope of lilies-of-the-valley. How about a sheaf of calla lilies? They're a classic choice, stately, cherished.

Is your garden rich in white roses? Nothing is lovelier. White orchids are costly but you'll wear a bridal veil but once. Since ours is a flower season as to clothes, accessories and such, this year's weddings will be decked in blooms. They are perfume-conscious, too. Be sure to wear that fragrance on your joyful day which is the scent of the flower that makes up your bouquet.

Other hints:

Get your permanent two weeks before the wedding. You'll need at least two preliminary settings.

See that your hands are fair to look upon—white as your bouquet, soft as your gloves.

If the groom dislikes public repairs of makeup: repowdering, renewing lipstick, don't do it. Wear his choice in nail polish color. His re-education in acceptance of his wife's beauty ways is best done gradually, imperceptibly. Don't hurry it.

To the bridesmaid: How about a beauty shower? Learn the bride-to-be's cosmetic and perfume choices, then go to it.

To brother: Find out what cosmetics sister uses. Then present her with a white beauty traveling case.

The bride will like the new brush-comb toiletry. It is purse-size. Can be had in white. Under four dollars.

One house offers perfume to match your bridal bouquet. Comes in jasmine, white orchid, orange blossom, lily of the valley and gardenia.

Learn to do two coiffures for honeymoon convenience—a version of your bridal hairdo for evening, a very simple one for day wear.

Since the groom sends the bride her bouquet, let him know in plenty of time exactly what you wish.

The bride is responsible for the bridesmaid's flowers. So—it's up to you to have them charming and correctly harmonious.

Happiness to you both. Our heartfelt congratulations to your groom on his lovely bride.

Cream Butter Bread

One and three-quarters cups cornmeal.

One and three-quarters cups boiling water.

One-half teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons butter.
Three eggs, well beaten.
Three cups buttermilk.
One teaspoon baking soda.

Mix cornmeal and boiling water, add salt and butter. Combine eggs, buttermilk and baking soda. Add slowly to cornmeal, mixing well. Turn into greased baking dish and bake in moderate over (375 degrees Fahrenheit) one hour or until firm. Aproximate yield; Six portions.

Orange Prune Cups

One tablespoon gelatin.
Two tablespoons cold water.
One-half cup boiling water.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
One-fourth cup honey.
Eight large cooked prunes.
One package (three ounces) cream cheese.
Two large oranges.
Light cream.

Soften gelatin in cold water; dissolve in boiling water and add lemon juice and honey. Stuff prunes with cream cheese and put in serving dishes with sections of orange, free from membrane. Cover with gelatin solution. Chill and serve with light cream. Approximate yield: Six portions.

Bra-tops on slips are grand to wear under brief jacket-suits.

TOMATO HAM LOAF SALAD

Three cups tomato juice.
One small onion, minced.
One teaspoon sugar.
Salt.
Pepper.
Two tablespoons gelatin.
One-half cup water.
One cup chopped, boiled ham.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.
Two tablespoons mayonnaise.
One-half cup chopped gherkins.
One head lettuce.

Heat tomato juice with onion and sugar. Season to taste. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot juice. Strain and chill until slightly thickened. Put one-third of juice in loaf pan and chill until firm. Mix ham with mustard, mayonnaise and pickles. Add half of remaining gelatin and turn into mold on firm layer of gelatin. Chill until firm and add remaining gelatin mixture. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve on lettuce. Approximate yield: Six portions.

SPICY TOMATO SAUCE

One can condensed tomato soup.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Two tablespoons vinegar.
Eight cloves.

Combine ingredients and heat slowly to boiling. Strain and serve on meat patties.

JAMBALAYA

One large onion, minced.

One-fourth clove garlic, finely chopped.

One green pepper, coarsely chopped.

Two tablespoons butter.
One can (No. 2½) tomatoes.
Three cups boiling water.
One cup rice.
One teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.

Saute onion, garlic and green pepper in butter five minutes. Add tomatoes and water and heat to boiling. Add rice and seasonings, cover and simmer 20 minutes, or until rice is tender and moisture almost absorbed. Approximate yield, six portions.

If any remains after the meal, add a little minced fish, meat, fowl or ham, put in a baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven until well browned. Or use as a stuffing for green peppers or tomatoes.

Use fruit juices to cut the excess fatty taste of baked pork or ham. A 10-pound ham needs two cups of grape juice mixed with a third of a cup each of pineapple, orange and lemon juices. Baste every 15 minutes.

Rector Tells Of Dishes in New Orleans

Favorite Foods in Louisiana City Are Definitely of the French Type.

By George Rector

WHEN William Makepeace Thackeray stopped off at New Orleans he overstayed his visit for one very good reason—it was the food. New Orleans cooking is very definitely of the French type, but is generally called Creole cooking.

Thackeray had a lot of nice things to say about a certain dish known as lobster boillabaisse. The dish did not originate in New Orleans; it made its debut in or about Marseilles, France. All along the Riviera boillabaisse is featured on the menus of every little and big restaurant I visited. Bouillabaise is a fish and shellfish stew. It's not so difficult to prepare, but it does contain ever so many ingredients, particularly herbs and spices.

A few years ago I received a letter from a woman who wanted the recipe for bouillabaisse. She said that with her husband, they stopped at several places along the French Riviera and enjoyed the bouillabaisse very much. Well, anyway, I sent the recipe to her.

About a week later I got a reply and she went on to say that she jotted down the list of seasonings, such as tarragon, saffron, basil paprika, cayenne, thyme, sage, etc., and went to her grocer to make the purchase of these herbs and spices. The grocer looked over the list and became somewhat puzzled. He apologized and informed the woman he did not carry the items on her list, but suggested that she might get them down at the corner drug store. The druggist read the items carefully and after hesitating a short time, told her in all seriousness, "Madame, I cannot fill this order; but what I really think you need is a mustard plaster."

—o-o—

NOW FOR THIS RECIPE for bouillabaisse Marseillaise:

Three pounds fish.
Three pounds shellfish.
One quart fish stock.
One-half cup olive oil.
One tablespoon finely chopped onion.
One tablespoon finely chopped celery.
One tablespoon finely chopped parsley.
One teaspoon finely chopped garlic.
One teaspoon finely chopped sage.
One teaspoon chopped thyme.
One teaspoon saffron.
Two bay leaves.
Six tomatoes, chopped.
One teaspoon salt.
One-third teaspoon cayenne pepper.
One teaspoon paprika.
One cup dry white wine (sauterne).

Use fresh, firm salt-water fish and fillet them. Make a good stock from the carcasses, head and tail. Pour the oil into a large flat saucepan. When the oil is hot, put in the fish and shellfish. For the shellfish use live lobster, split lengthwise, shrimp and crabmeat. The lobster must remain in shell. Blanch the shrimp and remove shells. Add all the seasonings (herbs and spice) except the parsley. Stir around gently. All of this preliminary cooking should take not more than 10 minutes. Now add the fish stock and white wine, cover the saucepan and cook for 30 minutes. Sprinkle over the top the finely chopped parsley and serve in soup plates.

Every Friday this famous bouillabaisse was served in Rector's. Now go ahead and cook it if it sounds good to you, or as Paderewski said, "There's my piano, now go ahead and play on it."

—o-o—

RECENTLY I gave a recipe for standard French mayonnaise. In the meantime I ran across a salad dressing on the order of mayonnaise, but better tasting by far, I think. It calls for olive oil or the salad oil which you prefer.

Three-fourths cup oil.
One tablespoon sugar.
Two tablespoons dry mustard.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper.
Two egg yolks.
One-fourth cup vinegar.
Three tablespoons corn starch.

Pour oil in a mixing bowl. Mix and sift sugar, mustard, salt and cayenne. This is important, as dry mustard is usually lumpy and this thorough sifting will prepare it for smooth amalgamation with balance of ingredients. Add sifted seasoning to oil, also add the egg yolks, and vinegar, but do not stir. Add one-half cup of cold water to the cornstarch and stir until smooth. Now add another one-half cup of cold water and cook over low heat, stirring constantly until boiling point is reached and mixture becomes clear. Remove from heat and continue stirring for about three minutes. Pour hot cornstarch mixture on top of ingredients in mixing bowl and beat briskly with rotary egg beater until it's smooth and creamy like. Chill in refrigerator before serving.

"FREEDOM" for CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

THE telephone rang late in the evening. Granny wondered which child was ill as she hurried to answer. "It's me, mother. I'm calling to ask if the mountain hut is going to be used this next 10 days. If not I'd like to have it."

"Of course, Caroline, you can have it. But what's moving you to go there this time of year? Your garden just coming out, and all."

"Yes, isn't it too bad? But Helen is coming with the two children for the next two weeks and I don't feel equal either to fighting them or reforming her notions about training them, so I'm off to the hills. Don't you think you'd better come along?"

The two children in question were the children of professional people, well up in all the latest theories of the day, child training among the first. Both parents were firm about allowing the children freedom, and their notion of freedom seemed to center about the child's own wish and will. They must do what they wanted to do at the minute, and so, by some magical process, come to know what not to do. The fact that nobody concerned seemed to enjoy the process did not dampen their ardor one whit. "We don't expect any easy time while the children are growing up," said they, accepting martyrdom with the zealot's zest.

Joe and Joan began the day with uproar and met the night with the same unrestrained joy. They did not want to be dressed first thing, so they ran about as they were. Later, when nobody was free to attend to them, they insisted upon being dressed, selecting their own outfit regardless of its fitness. They rolled in a bed of tulips. They took their own sweet time in coming to the table at meal time. They caught the neighbor's cat, tied it in a bag and rolled the bag down the cellar steps. They carried and unloaded sand on Miss Turner's immaculate front porch.

They visited the garage two blocks down the street and mopped the floor with themselves. Then they climbed happily into the painted breakfast chairs that were the family pride and joy, and left smears on everything they touched. They pulled hair and spilled their soup bowls. They cheeked old Norah until she turned on them and ran them out of her kitchen. Their mother came to the scene and said, "Remember they are only children, Norah."

ANGELO PATRI.

"Yes, and it's that thought that amazes me. That children could be like this I never thought. They're being ruined for want of a good slap on their behinds."

This sort of thing is not freedom. It is bondage. Freedom is a matter of the spirit. Children need to be trained and taught the rudiments of living. They are not born with that knowledge. They are given a period of six years to become accustomed to living in houses with other people, to learn speech, manners and at least a glimmer of understanding, of consideration for others. It is our duty to supply that training and disicipline.

Freedom is not achieved in infancy. It comes as the result of a lifetime of self-discipline which is a ripening of the spirit. Children must be shown the way under wise leadership, under authority, if ever they are to arrive at the only freedom worth mentioning.

Angelo Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Making Plaid Gingham Do for Slip Covers in a Living Room

By Elizabeth Boykin

WE had to see it to believe it. Because if anybody had told us that plaid gingham would do for slip covers in quite a formal living room, we'd probably have smiled politely, but dubiously. But we saw them, and thought they were as smart as veils on spring hats.

The room has gunmetal walls and a pale beige rug to begin. Woodwork is ivory with jade green panels in the doors. A pair of small chests are painted jade green, though most of the furniture is mahogany. In the winter furniture coverings are in formal brocades, and so are the draperies. But for summer, the windows get off-white rayon curtains with a cellophane thread through them and the draped valances are of plaid gingham in jade green and off-white.

This same gingham covers the sofa and a pair of wing chairs. The other upholstered furniture is in a textured green with thick moss fringe in the seams. The lamp shades all got pleated white organdy petticoats over them for summer, tied with jade grosgrain ribbon.

Another unexpected but successful room for summer began with pink and white striped wall paper. It's winter rugs came up and white sisal rugs went down. Several of the slip covers were in quilted navy blue, a pair of chairs were in flowered chintz, predominatly pink, to match the summer curtains.

—o-o—

ONCE it wasn't considered quite nice to talk about money. Genteel women hid their poverty behind much-darned lace curtains and "paying guests," and people went around with those crack-the-face smiles because of the bills at home. More and more in the last few years this old tradition has receded and now we all seem to have a pretty healthy regard for budgets, which is mathematical magic that makes dollars sit up and talk. Here are a few rules for spending the family fortune so as to make both ends meet:

Always let your right hand know what your left hand is doing. And let the whole family in on the budget and give them a voice in working it out. Then agree that over-steps will be met with tolerance and The Kitty—an item all human budgets should include. It's a sinking fund, an anchor to windward for the times you'll miscalculate on the cost of that dinner bridge, or spend the milk money on a spring bonnet.

If you are a money-through-a-hole-in-my-purse sort of person and get your income weekly, while your bills come monthly, try the envelope system. Put so much for each oncoming bill in the envelope every week and consider that once you've deposited your money there, it's the same as paid out.

Keep an account as conscientiously as you keep house—in a pleasant spot to settle down for your home work. File bills and receipts carefully; balance your bank book and have a spike for day-by-day grocery slips, or better still, a day book for grocery lists. Here also you ought to keep lots of sharp pencils and crisp clean paper to figure on—it makes as big a difference in the enthusiasm with which you can tackle your arithmetic as a new tablet used to in the dear old golden rule days.

For buying-on-time items, remember to make a place for them in apportioning your weekly money. That will keep you from getting into trouble when payments that seemed so easy at first begin to look like major catastrophies every time their due date rolls around. Buying on time is a fine method for many of us to acquire big things, but unless the budget says "yes", those seemingly small payments may look like the war debt after a while. One safe rule is never have but one time-payment on your mind at a time.

Flour and sugar are sensitive to moisture. They should be stored in covered containers and kept in a dry place.

A Woman's New York

by ALICE HUGHES

NEW YORK, April 30.

THIS is what the folks in the Big White House on The Hill call "the little season" here. I suppose the gentry call it little because it begins with Easter and ends as soon as they can decently excuse themselves and scuttle away from New York — one tiny hop ahead of their appalling boredom, or is it vacuum? Anyway, they can't wait.

Neither can our eager youths and maidens, who rush off to the preacher as soon as Lent is over. Several tons of rice are being hurled here every day, right now, and the small clergy staff at "The Little Church Around the Corner" is booked absolutely solid for all the best marrying-hours of the day. Society can call it the little season—I call it the big season, for the rush of fashion shows has subsided until the Dog Days, praise be!

—o-o—

● ANYONE INTERESTED in seeing authors on the hoof can always chisel a bid to the regular teas of the Authors' League here. Why, writers walk around just as though they were human beings. Two or three are.

I stumbled into one of these literary debauches at the Ritz the other day, and there they were—all these magazine by-lines and book-jackets. I saw Martha Ostenso, Margaret Widdemer, Mignon Eberhart, and my dear pal Mary Margaret McBride, who looked lovely in black, with big white collar and cuffs. This is the Mary Margaret trade-mark-costume, and very becoming—for she has prematurely gray hair, pink cheeks and the snappiest of blue eyes.

—o-o—

The crowd of typewriter-slaves was large and very noisy, and the small talk of a crowd of authors is so tiny as to defy the microscope, for they are an egocentric and shop-daffy lot of people. Writers are very much like actors, that way—except that they do their acting on clean white copy paper. I left the orgy determined to buy some good 10-cent magazine and help support the trade!

—o-o—

● WILL YOU kindly lend me the old family shotgun? I'll only loose it off twice. Thanks. Spring comes to my neighborhood when all the bedroom windows are open wide, and some foul fiend across the courtyard turns on his radio prompt at 7:15 a. m. What do you think comes out every day—a xylophone solo. Word of honor! Who would play, or listen to, a xylophone at that ungodly hour? Why, the beast in the next apartment house! So just ship me that ole pump-gun and I'll bang a little birdshot into his window when I locate the snake!

—o-o—

NICE TO SEE Frances Starr around town. This noted Belasco star came in for a look-around from her Washington home, where she is Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson. I'd like to see her again in a swell play. . . .

—o-o—

John La Manna opened a theatrical bar (fie!) on East 48th Street not long ago, and asked his pals to dig up some good wall-mottoes. Christopher Morlew found this one in Shakespear's "Antony and Cleopatra"—"I have yet room for six scotches more!—and it now hangs in Johnny's pub. Six more! What an optimist! What a sucker! . . .

—o-o—

● FINAL income tax note—one local belle asked $400 exemption from the State for her dependent dog. She said the pet cost her that yearly, and couldn't earn its living. "Fooie" said New York State. But give the girl credit—it was a noble try.

—o-o—

IF NEW YORK'S spring clothes parades have taught me anything for '38, it is that our women have gone completely color-daffy. They get a color and simply beat it to death, with matching shades for suit, hat, gloves, bag, shoes and lapel flower. That's silly—a good rule is two matching color-accents, say hat and blouse, or bag and gloves. But this spring our girls just seemed to lose control.

—o-o—

We are still full of happiness because General Pershing was able to pull himself together and be present at son Warren's wedding. It reminds me that three unusually strong and colorful spirits have been able to pull themselves back from the grave's brink in the past year—the Pope, Marie of Rumania and the General. . . . And what a bride Muriel Richards turned out to be—even the bridesmaids squealed. She wore white satin, with a long court train, and two veils. One, of tulle, reached to the end of the train—the other, of rare lace, was short. . . .

—o-o—

GADGETEERS keep their brains on the hop day and night, seems to me—especially the lightsome lads who think up compact styles and tricks. The other day I was sent one which has a black moire cover, with a small but very practical clothes brush on one end to whisk away spilled powder from the clothing. Isn't that something!

Babe Ruth, the old baseball star, and his pretty wife, have just celebrated their ninth wedding anniversary. Babe, living on the money he saved, spends most of his time fishing and shooting golf, now. Nice family, with two big daughters.

Still More on Feeling Fine

CIGARETTE THROAT

I AM a constant smoker of cigarettes and, like other constant smokers of cigarettes, find that after the thirteenth or fourteenth one my throat becomes dry and tickly. About three months ago a veteran smoker told me he puts a slippery elm tablet in his mouth when his throat becomes dry. I tried it and it seems to work.

COLLAR BUTTON RELIEF

THE chief complaint in the matter of evening dress is the front collar button. The highly starched collar causes the button to press so tightly against the neck that it not only hurts but leaves a dent in the neck that doesn't disappear for many hours afterwards. There's a simple way out of it. Have your jeweler, valet, wife or best girl fasten a bit of white felt or layer of cotton to the back of the collar button and you will not be troubled any longer. This piece of advice alone is worth a thousand dollars; I am being, I reflect, grossly underpaid for this article.

TIRED FEET

IF YOU do a lot of walking and find your feet usually get tired and your shoes somewhat trying, buy yourself a white tallow candle for a nickel and, before you put on your shoes, rub the insides of them with the bottom of the candle. You will discover that thereafter you can walk miles and still feel like a gazelle.

HAVING twice in these pages confided various philtres, nostrums and odds and ends that have maintained me in the pink of health and eerie beauty and having thereby piqued so great public curiosity and correspondence that the national postal deficit threatened momentarily to go into the black, I am encouraged to pursue the topic further.

If you have overslept or underslept and wake up in the morning with eyes puffed like toy balloons and with more rings under them than a dozen circuses, don't make matters worse, as you doubtless habitually do, by soaking a towel in hot water and pressing it against them. Soak the towel in as cold water as you can get and in 10 minutes or so you will be ready to go out onto the boulevards again and wink the lovely ladies into a state of thrilled acquiescence.

One of the most foolish articles in a man's wardrobe, I hold, are suspenders. Or braces, as our British friends know them. If they don't pull down and chafe the shoulders, they saw against the back and otherwise discommode the upper anatomy. Get rid of them and either substitute a light belt for them or have your trousers fitted to the waistline. You will be surprised at the immediate sense of physical ease and freedom. I haven't worn a pair of suspenders since I was 17 years old and, though it is a little thing, I believe having abandoned them has made me feel a heap jauntier. I also notice that many men who wear them often gradually become round-shouldered. The shoulders seem to give in to their forward drag and pull. Furthermore, they contribute an unnecessary tightness and self-consciousness to one's being. A male population bound in suspenders is like a herd of goats in leather harnesses.

In a previous treatise, I expatiated on the efficacy of iced tea as a pick-me-up after a night with the boys. All kinds of letters from readers who tried it and found it not wanting testify to the wisdom of my evangel. In the meantime, however, I have discovered something even better, to wit, acidophilus milk. If you have been celebrating the night before and wake up feeling—in Irvin Cobb's old saying—like the kitchen floor of a Chinese restaurant, drink a glass of the cold acidophilus and then write in to my editor demanding that he raise my wages at once.

Everyone knows that brushing the gums with any save the softest toothbrush is dangerous, as it tends to make the gums bleed and in time, if the brushing is too vigorous, to cause them to recede. But what to do to exercise the circulation in the gums and yet do them no harm? Try, as I long have, rubbing them slowly with the back of the tooth-brush. They will thus get all the circulation they need and you will do them no slightest damage. I have mentioned this to different dentists on various occasions and, while they have observed that they had never thought of the trick, they have admitted that it has its points. That it has, I myself can attest after years of experience.

One of the little problems of any person who wears gloves during the cold season is keeping the fingernails clean. After a few days' use, a pair of gloves acquire a sediment of dirt in the finger tips which transmits itself to the nails and makes the owner take on the appearance of a worker in a licorice factory. Turn the fingers of your gloves inside out and rub a little white chalk or talcum into the tips. Thereafter your nails will emerge with such fresh and cleanly splendor that people at tables around will not be able to finish their soup for gazing at and admiring them.

If you are given to wearing four-in-hand ties, you probably are sometimes irked by their too-tight pull at the collar. You can handily avoid it by the simple process of winding the cravat twice, instead of the more usual once, before looping it. The strain and tug at the collar will thus be eliminated and, besides, the tie—unless it happens to be of very heavy material—will drape and look a whole lot better.

In conclusion, I gladden you with a suggestion concerning the matter of slipping around on the soapy tiling under the shower-bath and possibly falling and breaking a leg or two. Why take a chance, unless you are absolutely confident before you get under the shower that the hospital has beautiful nurses? Put a bath-towel on the floor before you hop in and you'll be as safe as a bug in a rug.

Ham Cornettes

Two slices ham, one-fourth inch thick.
Two-thirds cup sifted flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth cup corn meal.
One-half cup grated cheese.
One egg, well beaten.
One teaspoon honey.
One teaspoon melted butter.
One teaspoon grated onion.
One-half cup milk.

Grease hot spider with a bit of ham fat. Cut each slice of ham in three even portions and saute lightly until faintly browned. Place in small baking dishes. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and corn meal. Mix in cheese. Combine egg, honey, butter, onion and milk. Add to dry ingredients, mixing only until all flour is dampened. Drop a spoonful of batter on each piece of ham and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Lift out ham carefully and serve at once on hot plate. Approximate yield, six portions.

To make prune salad, stuff prunes with cottage cheese. Roll them first in salad dressing, then in chopped parsley. Serve three or four prunes on individual salads of watercress or shredded lettuce. Add French dressing.

Knick-Knacks To Brighten A Wardrobe

Among Them Are Flower Jewelry, Multicolored Belts and Bright Scarfs.

FLOWER jewelry, multicolored belts, scarfs of Hungarian inspiration, sunshades made of linen to match linen dresses, embroidered suspenders to wear with sports skirts and slacks, and enormous bags made of vivid fabrics and leathers are among the advance guard of summer knick-knacks that put new life into wardrobes.

The flower jewelry is one phase of the vogue for floral decorations which has resulted in every other costume being decked out with botanical decorations, whether real or artificial. Necklaces are the most numerous of all the jewelry items and there has been an attempt to present realistic themes including daisies, rosebuds, pansies, violets and forget-me-nots in their true colors. Necklace and bracelet sets are featured as well as pins, clips and earrings. Flower garlands for wear with evening dresses are so large that they practically cover bodices while clusters and sprays are scattered over evening skirts as well as adorning shoulders and waistlines.

The multicolored belts are designed primarily for sportswear although there are some types which young girls are selecting for wear with shirtwaist evening dresses and to adorn dirndl dresses that have a dressy appearance. Made of cord, leather, braid or heavy fabrics, these belts display as many as six different shades. The embroidered suspenders are equally as striking among the casual accessories while the scarfs are of similar Austrian inspiration. Incidentally, these scarfs are being used in many different ways other than as neckwear. Some are gathered into beach or sports bags, some are used as aprons and a good many are worn over the head.

The linen sunshades seem destined to be the favorites among the millinery types created for active sportswear. They have square brims that are cut so that they resemble bonnets and are stitched as intricately as the old-fashioned sunbonnet. Some even add ties under the chin. The absence of a crown is part of their appeal.

The summer bags look sufficiently large to serve as week-end cases, should the owner choose to use them in this fashion. Many are made of fabrics to match dresses or suits so the clever woman will see to it that her dressmaker saves sufficient material for a bag as well as for a hat. Novelty cottons, peasant linens and the heavier, ribbed silks are among the fabrics that are most successful in the designing of these smart accessories.

POPULAR BELIEFS ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS CORRECTED

By

Logan Clendening, M. D.

"THERE probably is no disease around which so many misleading statements have been made as about tuberculosis," says Dr. Bernard Hudson in the British Journal of Tuberculosis. He cites the following false proverbs:

"The blood comes from the back of the throat." Patients who have spit blood are told this two or three times with the idea that it will clear them up and, of course, sometimes the blood does come from the back of the throat, but by far the most common cause of blood-spitting is tuberculosis of the lungs, even though it may be in an early stage and capable of cure.

"You should be cured in the place where you will have to live." This has a superficial air of common sense, but it is easy to see that the patient should be placed in those circumstances where healing can best take place. By "healing" is meant the formation of fibrous tissue and the shutting off of the diseased areas of the lung. There is no reason why a lung that has been healed in one part of the world should break down when a patient returns to another. Of course, it is true that people go to climates such as Colorado and make a rapid apparent recovery. They do not realize that their cure is not complete, and when they do return to their own homes they are likely to break down again.

"You can be cured just as well on a balcony at home as in a climate." If this applies to large industrial towns as well as country places, it is not true. The smoke-laden air of towns can hardly be compared with the pure, thin, invigorating air of a mountain climate. Economic considerations enter in, and it should be said that with rest and a nourishing diet, there is hope for recovery anywhere, even though it be not an ideal climate.

"You should not go to an altitude if you have a weak heart." Young people, even wtih organic heart disease, do not suffer in a high altitude. I have known many patients who have gone to an altitude of more than 3000 feet in fear and trembling and have been amazed to find that they have become stronger and better in every way, even though they are supposed to have heart disease.

"You ought to go and sit about in the sun." People with tuberculosis of the lungs are frequently told that if they go to some sunny part of the world and lie about in the sun, they will soon be all right again. In some cases of tuberculosis, localized in the bones or joints, sunlight is beneficial, but in tuberculosis of the lungs, it is the general experience that sunlight does more harm than good.

MACHINELESS PERMANENT
The BEAUTY MIRACLE of this Age

● ● Let Zotos show you the easy permanent that so many other smart women now enjoy. With Zotos, there is no machinery, no electricity, no wires. A mere handful of light little pads—called Vapets—complete your wave. While you are free to walk about, or curl up in a corner, they automatically heat themselves to just the right temperature and gently bathe your hair in clean, colorless vapor.

● ● The real thrill of Zotos, however, is its sure, lasting allure. Each ringlet is precision-timed with the amazing "Guardian Eyes"—two watchful red discs on every Vapet. These "Guardian Eyes" are thermostatic indicators that signal your operator by actually changing color when your wave is completed. It is scientific assurance of a deep, definitely lasting permanent.

First Group Of Opera Principals

Eight Leading Ladies Named for Productions Of Anniversary Season.

FACED with an extraordinarily difficult casting problem in preparing for its twentieth anniversary season, Municipal Opera has signed up most of its outstanding prima donnas of the last six or eight years and again goes to New York's Metropolitan Opera for a young singing star of note.

The first principals announced for the season are eight sopranos—Margaret Carlisle, Gladys Baxter, Nancy McCord, Natalie Hall, Hope Manning, Ruby Mercer and Norma Terris, all of whom have been heard in the Forest Park in recent years, and Lucielle Browning from the Metropolitan.

When fully rounded out, the list of principals for the summer will include some 75 singers, dancers and comedians. Up to 1930, the stock company system prevailed at the opera, with the same principals carrying through week after week but inauguration of casting for separate shows proved so popular that the stock company system was abandoned. As a result, the list of principals becomes larger each year.

Chorus tryouts for local talent are set for tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday at the American Theater, beginning at 10 a. m. daily. Girl singers will be heard tomorrow, girl dancers seen Tuesday morning. Men singers go through their tests Wednesday morning and men dancers that afternoon.

Miss Browning, who has been at the Metropolitan for the last three seasons and appeared more than 80 times, was engaged especially for the leading feminine part in the revival of "Chimes of Normandy," which is set for the week of July 18. The top musical talent will go into the revival, which is scheduled for a place in the season's repertory similar to that taken by "The Bartered Bride" last summer.

Besides singing in opera, Miss Browning has had many engagements in radio, concert and oratorio fields. She is a native of Durham, N. C., won vocal contests in her home State and a scholarship at the Juilliard Graduate School in New York, where she studied under the personal supervision of Mme. Marcella Sembrich.

ANOTHER of the group who comes from opera is Margaret Carlisle, who since her appearances here in 1930, has sung at the Covent Garden Royal Opera in London, including a role opposite Lawrence Tibbett in the world premiere of "Don Juan de Manera," and on the London stage with Noel Coward in "Words and Music," an operetta. She will take leading roles in "Virginia" and "Show Boat' this summer. Her role of Julie in "Show Boat" is one she played with the Ziegfeld company on tour for two years.

St. Louisans will remember Hope Manning as the blond ingenue who was called Inez Harvot at the Municipal Theater in 1936. She returns in the leading feminine role of "Gentlemen Unafraid" as the personal choice of Jerome Kern, composer, and Oscar Hammerstein II, an author of the new operetta. Miss Manning is expected to play the feminine lead in the New York production of the work next fall.

Miss Hall has made her only previous appearance under the direction of the Municipal Opera in 1932, when she created the role of Roxane in the world premiere of "Cyrano de Bergerac." She will be seen at the Municipal Theater in "Knights of Song."

Norma Terris made her debut at the open-air theater in 1936 under auspicious circumstances, presenting what many have considered as the finest performances ever seen of Sari in Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet." The same season she contributed to the success of the American premiere of "Glamorous Night" in the park. She returns to play Magnolia in "Show Boat," a role she was starred in at the original presentation of the stage classic on the New York stage.

Miss Mercer, a member of the New York Metropolitan Opera Co., made her St. Louis debut at the Municipal Theater in 1935, and since then has annexed a widespread reputation in opera and radio. She also appeared in leading roles in 1936 and for two years has been under Hollywood contract. She is cast in "Chimes of Normandy.

Miss McCord was seen at the Municipal Theater in prima donna roles in 1931, 1933 and 1935. This year she returns to play the role of Stephanie in "Roberta," a part she took successfully three summers ago, and the feminine lead in "Lost Waltz." She sang principal roles during the 1937 spring series at the Metropolitan.

Gladys Baxter is another favorite of Municipal Opera audiences. She first came here in 1930 and has been starred in musical hits in five other seasons. This summer she will be seen in "White Horse Inn" and "Lost Waltz."

Amiable Kind of Musical Comedy at Ambassador

By Colvin McPherson

ALL that is necessary for pleasant diversion is to be found in "Joy of Living," at the Ambassador Theater. Even the title of the musical comedy is hardly an exaggeration. Lots of people imagine they are having that much fun, under the same circumstances.

For the plot involves only what the general public calls a large evening. Irene Dunne is a good-natured, hard-working Broadway singing star who has never learned how to play. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. is a vagabond millionaire's son who decides to teach her how. They spend an evening in roller-skating, pretzel-throwing and drinking $2 worth of beer. They get to feeling really gay and enjoy it so much that when they have sobered, they decide they will be married. That's the story.

Fragile and unoriginal, "Joy of Living" does have the advantage of new comic touches, trim bits of direction by Tay Garnett and excellent playing by Miss Dunne and Fairbanks. Few scenes in all the daffy comedies of the last three or four years have been as uproariously merry as the one prolonged romp in which Miss Dunne tries to catch onto the end of a whip-cracking line in a skating rink. Another scene in which she hurries to finish a song in a broadcasting station is almost as good and there are others throughout the picture to make it lively and winning.

More than that, there are several Jerome Kern songs, such as "You Couldn't Be Cuter" and "What's Good About Good Night?" that are used to advance the action in a way that has occurred in no picture since Jan Kiepura's "Be Mine Tonight."

Giving most of the performance credit to Miss Dunne, who is thoroughly established as a singing comedienne, the surprise is young Fairbanks. Unless I miss my guess, the gentleman is on his way into the big money in 1938. Blessed with his father's toothy smile, he also has the easy manners of the leading men of the screen today and a voice and sense of discretion suggesting Ronald Colman's. All these things should make him a big favorite and give him the popularity he assuredly deserves.

Among the droll features of the show are Warren Hymer's rehearsal of the part of a Crown Prince, opposite Miss Dunne, and Jean Dixon's beautiful reading of her ironic wisecracks. Alice Brady, Eric Blore and Lucile Ball are wasted in trivial roles.

"The Lone Wolf in Paris," the second feature, is so close to absurdity that if some audiences do not hiss the villain and applaud the hero, in showboat fashion, it will be by virtue of exceptional theater manners. From a story by Louis Joseph Vance, the melodrama tells of the smooth-fingered gentleman crook, Francis Lederer, and how he saved the day for Princess Frances Drake of Arvonne. The hairbreadth escapes and the devilishness of the opposition are of a kind that went out of style with pompadours and shirtwaists.

Four Men and a Prayer.

WICKEDNESS of a more modern sort is encountered in "Four Men and a Prayer," at the Fox, for here we see four stalwart sons of Col. C. Aubrey Smith chasing around the world to uncover the sinister munitions ring that caused the disgrace of their father and, in the course of the action, his murder as well.

The sons are George Sanders, David Niven, William Henry and the recently imported Richard Greene, new British discovery of Darryl F. Zanuck. Such amateurs are the boys at detective work that it is a wonder they are not snuffed out by the arms manufacturers before they persuade the president of Atlas Arms to call off everything.

The worst complication of all is that pretty Loretta Young, who would make a fine wife for Greene, is daughter of the head of the shot-and-shell peddlers. Her eyes are opened when she sees how the ring operates—for it sells to both sides and double-crosses even its best customers.

Some pleasure may be gleaned from the world travels of the Brothers Leigh and it is nice to be in India one moment and the Argentine the next but generally "Four Men and a Prayer" is not highly stimulating and does not arouse any great amount of sympathy for the poor devils who are shot to death from time to time.

In Major Bowes' "Transcontinental Revue," on the Fox stage, there are the several types of amateur talent—harmony singing, acrobatic dancing, "imitations," tap dancing, harmonica playing and attempt at grand opera. The satire on radio announcing by the team of Goldberg and O'Brien is something genuinely new and properly followed up, could be a great act.

Tip-Off Girls.

SOME time is spent with the highway pirates of California, in "Tip-Off Girls," at the St. Louis. Unless Evelyn Brent is twins, the title should be "Tip-Off Girl," for it is only Evelyn who helps the robbers discover what trucks are carrying silks, Scotch or cigarettes, J. Carrol Naish is the power behind the alibis, Larry Crabbe his first lieutenant, Lloyd Nolan the love-hungry G-man and Roscoe Karns his assistant.

After working himself into the good graces of the gang, Nolan meets Mary Carlisle, Naish's secretary, and then is not so lonely. Crime and law enforcement come to grips finally, in speedy truck rides around hairpin curves and a little gun-play.

"The Crime of Dr. Hallet" takes Ralph Bellamy to Sumatra to experiment with monkeys, to forge checks and to do almost everything to effect a cure for red fever. Josephine Hutchinson is a fellow scientist, William Gargan a faithful and admiring partner of Bellamy.

"Test Pilot," which has the inviting cast combination of Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore and numerous virtues as a picture production, continues at Loew's. For acting, for appreciation of human emotions, for getting underneath the surface of melodramatic material, "Test Pilot" is unsurpassed.

Technical flaws, wilfully or carelessly made, there probably are—an aviator pointed out three or four to me several days ago—but they pass unnoticed in the sweep of fine drama and thrilling aviation.

"In Old Chicago," the other holdover among the first-runs, is at the Missouri, and the Chicago fire burns as appallingly as ever. A new second feature, "Reckless Living," is entirely mediocre, except for Jimmy Savo's singing of "You're a Sweetheart" and that is hardly the equal of his "River Stay 'Way From My Door" in "Merry-Go-Round of 1938."

Helen Hayes as Portia In Summer Production

Helen Hayes, whose "Victoria Regina" ends its tour on June 25 in Los Angeles, has announced that she will take the role of Portia in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" at the County Theater, Suffern, N. Y., for the two weeks beginning Aug. 29. She has given several performances of "The Merchant of Venice" already on tour.

Moliere Comedy By Principia Students

A production of Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme (The Would-Be Gentleman)" will be presented by students of Principia College at Elsah, Ill., next Saturday night and at The Principia in St. Louis on May 21, under the direction of Frank Parker.

One of the most famous of Moliere's comedies, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" describes the follies of a socially ambitious man who takes lessons in philosophy, music, fencing and dancing, gives expensive gifts to members of the nobility and buys expensive and grotesque outfits of clothing for himself, only to become an object of amusement to his wife, daughter and servants.

Members of the cast are William Warren in the title role, John Timpson, Betty Anderson, Danah Hesser, Dora Dailey and William Johnston Timpson, whose home is in England, models his part after a representation of it that he saw at the Comedie Francaise in Paris. The dialogue of the Principia production is in English. Parker has added musical numbers to give the show something of its original character of comedy-ballet.

Amusement Calendar

Olympe Bradna in Fox Stage Show Tomorrow

Olympe Bradna, young French actress who was in "Souls at Sea," opposite George Raft, and will be seen next in "Stolen Heaven," with Gene Raymond, will make two personal appearances at the Fox Theater tomorrow, at 3:15 p. m. and 9:15 p. m., with the regular stage show, "Transcontinental Revue."

Miss Bradna, whose first name is pronounced "O-lamp," will be guest at a dinner of the Societie Francaise at the Coronado Hotel tomorrow evening and of the St. Louis Advertising Club at a luncheon at Hotel Statler Tuesday noon. She is accompanied by her mother, a tutor and a studio representative.

The young actress, now being boosted to stardom, is a member of a French vaudeville family, was a specialty dancer at the age of 8, in the French version of "Hit the Deck," joined the "Folies Bereger" before she was 14, and has been on the stage in most of the cities of Europe.

Broadway's Glory Truly Has Dimmed

Living Theater Takes Some Comfort in Finer Type of Shows Today.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.

BROADWAY producers, before they were harassed by talking pictures, radio and similar competitive entertainment, flaunted a program which has more or less disappeared in this streamlined era of today.

There are fewer plays and musical comedies now than there used to be in that lush period of 1920 to 1929. But, for the most part, the ones that have been weeded out are fragile, doubtful shows that shoestring producers used to fling like annoying confetti into the faces of first-night audiences in the hope that through some quirk of fortune, such as happened to "Abie's Irish Rose," the show might blossom into an inexplicable hit.

True, there still happen occasional inexcusably bad productions and performances, as witness the recent short-lived revivals of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "The Wild Duck," but rarely is the Rialto now afflicted with dull, mediocre plays that once managed to linger on week after week.

Audiences seem more aware than they did a decade ago of what is and what isn't good entertainment, and now it is sudden death for the show that isn't either literary or entertaining.

Time was when Broadway had a set formula and the season could be charted fairly accurately a year ahead of time.

There would be about two dozen lavish, expensive musical shows overflowing with semi-nude pretties, noisy comedians and extravagant settings. Most of them would be produced by Florenz Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll, George White and the Shuberts.

There would be 20 to 30 intelligent and frequently entertaining plays produced by the Theater Guild, David Belasco, Gilbert Miller, Arthur Hopkins, Jed Harris and a few others.

There would be 20 to 25 mystery melodramas and comedies which, while not literature, would provide entertainment.

There would be four or five "dark horse" hits which, because the authors were utterly unknown to Broadway before, would open quietly and overnight be sensations. Such a hit was "Broadway," and so was "Another Language."

The other 100 or more new shows of the season would be either out-and-out failures that folded quickly, or else dull shows that would struggle along for weeks either by cutting salaries or persuading new backers to finance further the run.

ALL that is changed. The program is no longer so pat. Indeed, it is often unpredictable. Ziegfeld is dead, and Carroll and White no longer bring out the annual editions of their "Vanities" and "Scandals." About the nearest to their type of glorified girly-girl show that now exists is in Billy Rose's Casa Manana and similar cabarets.

The Shuberts still carry on for they take Ed Wynn and similar stars and build shows around them, but they rarely try a musical folderol with untried performers any more.

Dwight Deere Wiman presents a smart musical show now and then, but he aims strictly for the sophisticated, society audience and ignores the bald-headed row on the alert merely for a dimpled knee. Too, he is equally successful as a producer of serious drama and no better example could be given than his heart-warming production of "On Borrowed Time" this season.

Belasco is dead. Hopkins only produces occasionally now, mostly directs. Miller is still producing and successfully so, although his center of activity lately has been in London.

Harris, after half a dozen hits that began with "Broadway" and included "The Front Page" and "Coquette," suddenly went into seclusion a few years ago, but this season he came back to Broadway and excitingly so with his fine production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" and his revival of "A Doll's House" with Ruth Gordon.

With the waning of the old formula and the passing of the Rococco type of productions, Broadway still has some zest for life. The old-timers, such as George M. Cohan in "I'd Rather Be Right," and Ethel Barrymore in "Whiteoaks," are scoring the major hits of their careers.

On the other end of the scale is that group of youngsters in their twenties, the Mercury Players. Their modernized version of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" has [illegible] them such ovations that the [illegible] and austere Theater Guild has invited them, and they accepted, [illegible] consolidate themselves with the Guild next season.

So again Broadway changes and changing, still is not stagnant.

WEW Dedicates Its New Studios This Afternoon

WEW will dedicate new studios and transmitting equipment with a continuous ceremony and program from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, and will remain on the air until 7 o'clock. The program also will mark the anniversary of the station, which was opened April 26, 1921, with a weather report by the Rev. William F. Robison, S. J., then president of St. Louis University, and Brother George E. Rueppel, who started the station, supervised it for most of the 17 years since and now is chief engineer of WEW, at the transmitter controls.

Today's dedicatory program will include a concert by the St. Louis University orchestra of 45 pieces, with F. Kenneth Albrecht, formerly first saxophone players in Paul Whiteman's orchestra and now a student in the university, conducting. The Very Rev. H. B. Crimmins, S. J., president of the university and acting Provincial of the Missouri Jesuitical Province, will make an address. Among entertainers on the program will be Miss Mariquita Moll, soprano; Bob Keenan and his Harmonica Lads; the Lowther A Cappella Chorus directed by Miss Helen Haines Lowther, the St. Louis Juniors; Walter Eberhardt, physical education instructor at the university; Jack Norder, comedian, and Miss Bernice Isbit, harpist.

The new studios replace those formerly used by the station on the top floor of the building, and include two sound-proofed studios, completely new transmitting equipment designed for high fidelity broadcasting and also new apparatus for broadcasting transcriptions, contained in one control room. In addition, WEW will have the use of the largest auditorium in the city devoted to broadcast purposes. This auditorium, which is to be redecorated, will be the scene of today's special program.

Radio at St. Louis University had its inception in 1912 when the science department installed a wireless sending and receiving set for verification of earthquake records on the university's seismograph. The call letters, 9YK, were used. During the World War, 9YK was used in training army operators.

In the winter of 1919, the station resumed broadcasting with the same call letters, transmitting weather reports for guidance of mail planes. July 16, 1921, the station, which was broadcasting livestock and grain market reports, transmitted its first musical program. A year later, it was named WEW, and was moved from the university's administration building on Grand boulevard to its present location in the School of Law building.

Today, WEW, of which the Rev. W. A. Burke, S. J., formerly of WWL, the Loyola University station in New Orleans, is faculty director, has a regular staff of 22 persons.

SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL, the Foreign Ministers of 11 Latin-American countries and the envoys to Washington of the other countries South of the Rio Grande have accepted invitations from the CBS network to take part in five broadcasts on "Economic Co-operation in the Americas." The series was arranged only after network officials had received assurances that the 20 Latin-American diplomats would make statements of solid importance instead of mere expressions of good will. The opening broadcast is set for 1 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, and will come from the Hall of the Americans of the Pan-American Union in Washington, where Secretary Hull will read a message from President Roosevelt and discuss the general subject of the programs. Immediately after Secretary Hull concludes his address, short wave pick-ups will be made of talks by the Foreign Ministers of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, Colombia and Cuba. The envoy from Costa Rica, speaking in Washington, will close the broadcast. The other four broadcasts are scheduled at 12:30 noon on Sundays, May 15, 22, and 29 and June 5.

Proceedings of the thirty-fourth international Eucharistic Congress in Budapest and the Papal Benediction which will conclude it will be broadcast as follows: opening of the Congress at 11 a. m. Wednesday, May 25; description of the procession of Cardinals along the Danube, at 1:30 p. m. Thursday, May 26, and the Papal Benediction closing the Congress, at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, May 29.

Time schedules for the CBS network's night time adult education programs have been fixed—Living History at 5:30 Wednesdays, Americans at Work at 8:30 Thursdays and Adventures in Science at 5:30 Fridays. The subject of the opening Living History program, set for next Wednesday, will be the expulsion of the Moors from Spain and Columbus' discovery of America. "The World Is Hungry" will be the topic of the first Adventures in Science program, scheduled for next Thursday. The America at Work program, the first of which was broadcast the past week, will include an interview with a railroad engineer in the cab of his locomotive.

INTEREST developing among listeners in Wayne Grub, who was mentioned from time to time as Teddy Barbour's boy friend, has caused Carleton E. Morse, the author, to bring him into the action of KSD's Wednesday evening One Man's Family serial. So many young actors failed to meet Morse's requirements in auditions for the role, that he was about to give up the idea when Sonny Edwards, an 18-year-old Hollywood high school student, a member of the juvenile team of Sonny and Buddy Edwards, who has played on the stage and in the movies, applied for a chance. Young Edwards' manner and voice so impressed Morse, that he gave the youth the part immediately. Edwards, who played Wayne for the first time in last Wednesday's broadcast, realized when he was introduced at the studios to Winifred Wolfe, who plays Teddy Barbour, that she was a fellow student in the Hollywood High School whom he had seen daily but never had talked with.

Young Edwards will represent California schools this week in the national high school dramatic declamation contest at Wooster, O. Reading the lines of the four principal male characters in "Winterset," he earned the California State championship, a trip East and a gold cup.

New Dramatizations on KSD Devoted to Highway Patrols

Programs Depicting Their Work, Scheduled at 9:30 Tuesday Nights, Will Be Written and Produced in KSD Studios—State Officials Co-operate on Programs.

A NEW series of programs, caled Trailing the Highway Patrol, which will dramatize the work of the State Highway Patrols of Missouri and Illinois, will be broadcast on KSD weekly from 9:30 to 10 o'clock Tuesday nights, beginning this week. Each of the programs will be written, directed and produced in KSD's studios with a cast of St. Louis actors.

The opening program set for next Tuesday night, will deal with the case of George McKeever, a North Dakota bank robber, who killed Patrolman Ben Boothe, June 14, 1933, near Columbia, Mo., when escaping with two other men from the scene of a robbery, and was later apprehended in Indiana and hanged. Sheriff Roger Wilson also was killed at the same time as was Patrolman Boothe. The role of McKeever will be played by Haskell Schwartzberg, who has been in the casts for several of KSD's recent dramatic broadcasts. Other roles will be played by Vincent Vernon, John Dawson, Lambert Kyman, Pauline Stievers, Lou Zimmerman, Nancy Fitzgerald and Joseph Kingsley. Harry E. Griffith, Safety Engineer for the Missouri State Highway Department, will take part in the program to endorse the series officially and deliver the first of the safety messages in a safe driving campaign which will be emphasized by this KSD series.

The motive for presenting the programs is to promote safety on the highways and to assist the public to a better understanding and appreciation of the work in its behalf performed by highway patrolmen. The dramatizations will be based on facts obtained from the record files of the Missouri and Illinois State Highway Departments. They will not be devoted exclusively to the combatting of crime and apprehension of criminals, but will also reveal the routine and operation of the highway patrols and the various types of public service which they render.

Plans for the broadcasts have been endorsed by many State and city officials, and the series has been made possible through active co-operation by Col. B. M. Casteel, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol; Dan Carr, Public Relations Counsel for the Missouri Highway Department; Claude Earp, chief of the Safety Bureau of Missouri; Ernest Lieberman, chief of the State Highway Department of Illinois; Walter Williams, Superintendent of Police of Springfield, Ill.; H. H. Harrison, safety engineer for Illinois, and others.

Tomorrow's Public Hero No. 1 dramatization, at 6 p. m. on KSD, will deal with the attempted robbery of the Smoky Hollow Mine payroll near Albia, Ia., and the capture of the robbers when a posse blocked all the roads from the mine and they crashed their car and surrendered.

ACTOR ON KSD

HASKELL SCHWARTZBERG, ST. LOUIS ACTOR, WHO WILL PLAY A LEADING ROLE IN THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF KSD DRAMATIZATIONS, SCHEDULED AT 9:30 TUESDAY NIGHT AND TITLED "TRAILING THE HIGHWAY PATROL."

How a dream, repeated hundreds of years apart, led to events which changed the course of Egypt's history will be dramatized by Robert L. Ripley at 8 p. m. Tuesday on KSD.

The Community Forum is scheduled again at 7 o'clock Saturday night on KSD.

Major-General Smedley D. Butler of U. S. Marines and Philadelphia police work fame, is expected to be a guest on A. L. Alexander's Stories from Life program at 7:30 p. m. Friday on KSD.

A talk by Miss Lillie R. Ernst, principal of Ben Blewett High School, in connection with the Missouri Library Commission, has been rescheduled at 4 p. m. Thursday, May 12, on KSD instead of Monday, May 9, as originally announced. The period from 4 to 4:15 Monday, May 9, will be occupied by a concert given by a chorus of 50 girls from the Incarnate Word Academy.

Cliff Barbour will meet his estranged wife, Ann, during KSD's One Man's Family broadcast at 6 p. m. Wednesday.

The Songs of Jean Carmen program is scheduled at 2:45 Wednesday and Thursday this week.

RUSH HUGHES, whose comment and interpretation programs are broadcast on KSD at 2:30 p. m. Monday through Friday, is the son of Rupert Hughes, the novelist. For a time he was an actor and then wrote short stories. He was a night clerk in a San Francisco hotel when he got a chance in radio as a substitute announcer for a dance orchestra, made good and soon was a studio regular. On the theory that he can talk better if he has seen or experienced what he is to talk about, he photographs his subjects and studies the films before going on the air. He supplements his picture taking with an elaborately indexed reference library and news clippings, and travels many thousand miles yearly looking for vivid scenes and human interest material. He also works on improving his diction and voice control with a Hollywood dramatic coach.

Ruth Schmidt Is Married to F. J. Cornwell

Candlelight Ceremony at 8:30 P. M. in First Presbyterian Church Attended by Several Hundred Guests.

THE chancel of the First Presbyterian Church was banked high with woodwardia fern and lighted by scores of white cathedral tapers for the wedding last night of Miss Ruth Louise Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Oliver Louis Schmidt, 316 Bompart avenue, Webster Groves, and Franklin Jackes Cornwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Cornwell, 536 Overhill drive. The Rev. Dr. Roy Calvin Dobson officiated at the candlelight ceremony at 8:30 o'clock before several hundred guests.

The green and white motif was repeated in masses of huckleberry foliage which concealed the choir pews and in two large vases of white snapdragon and white stock which adorned the altar. The aisle down which the bride walked was softly illuminated by tall white candles tied with greenery and white satin ribbon, arranged at each pew.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attired in white satin designed with a low square neckline frilled with Alencon lace. Short sleeves were secured above the elbow by a band of shirring and the skirt, the front composed of godets, flared into a four-yard train. The white tulle veil was held in place at the back of the head by a wreath of white lilacs. She carried a semi-shower of lilies of the valley tied with white tulle.

Miss Sara Ervin was maid of honor and Miss Margaret Cornwell, debutante sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. David E. Ward and Mrs. H. Edgar Kelley Jr. were bridesmaids. Miss Ervin wore ash rose and the bridesmaids were in bonbon pink. Their filmy chiffon gowns were made alike with low square necklines edged by narrow rows of shirring. More of the shirred bands defined the high waistline from which fell full floor-length skirts. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of Picardy gladioli and blue dephiniums and bouquets of bridesmaids were of Picardy gladioli.

Hugh Adair Logan was best man for Mr. Cornwell. W. Clark Schmidt, brother of the bride; Ivan Lee Holt Jr., Harry Deckert, Charles D. DePew Jr., Maxwell Waldsmith and Dexter M. Stephens were ushers.

After the ceremony a small reception for the bridal party and the immediate families was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt. Low bowls of white spring blossoms decorated the mantel before which the receiving party stood. Flowers were arranged in bouquets about the rooms, and the reception table, centered by the wedding cake, was also flower-trimmed.

Mrs. Schmidt was gowned in dark blue marquisette, embroidered with coral. She wore a corsage of peach-toned African daisies. Mrs. Cornwell, mother of the bridegroom, was in aqua chiffon and lace with which she wore mauve orchids.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding included: Miss Helen Cornwell, who came home from Sweetbrier College in Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Robertson, Glencoe, Ill., and their three children; Miss Margaret Wiley, Chicago; Miss Julia Campbell, Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Warren S. Miller, Kansas City.

Mr. Cornwell and his bride will spend their honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga., and on their return will live in St. Louis. The bride, granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Niedringhaus, attended Washington University, where she became a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Cornwell prepared at the John Burroughs School for Dartmouth College, of which he is a graduate.

Miss Jane Kentzler To Be Married in June

AT a small tea yesterday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, the engagement of Miss Jane Kentzler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Kentzler, 61 Aberdeen place, and John P. Dazey Jr., was announced. The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Dazey Jr., 75 Lake Forest.

Jeanne, the young sister of Mr. Dazey, stood at the door of the Kentzler home with a large basket of pink roses. As the guests arrived, each received a flower to which the news was attached.

Miss Elizabeth Ann Kentzler and Miss Suzanne Dazey assisted their mothers at the tea table. Decorations were spring flowers.

Miss Kentzler attended the University of Missouri, where she was pledged to Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Dazey is a graduate of Florida Military Academy at St. Petersburg, Fla. He later attended Washington University and is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Plans are being made for a June wedding.

Bridlespur Show To Have Variety

FOUR unusual classes — the Handy Hunter, Combination Hunter, Scurry and Gay Nineties—will add interest to the all-day out-of-door horse show to be given by the Bridlespur Hunt Club Sunday, May 15, in the blue and white enclosure back of the clubhouse in Huntleigh Village.

In the Handy Hunter, the horse must walk to the first jump, trot to the second and canter to the third. He must then jump into a "pig pen," jump out at the side and canter to the last jump, where he must be stopped to permit the rider to lower the top rail before jumping. In the Combination Class, the horse must be taken over a series of jumps and then driven to a suitable vehicle. Each of these classes offers a test of showmanship.

Jumps in the Scurry are similar to those in point-to-point races across country. Entrants will ride against time and only faults that endanger their lives will be counted. Costumes in fashion 50 years ago will be revived for the Gay Nineties class, in which Missouri mules will be represented.

The show will start at 9:30 o'clock and continue until dark. Hunters, jumpers, polo ponies and saddle and harness horses will compete. One feature will be school competition for the Challenge Cup, an old English wine cooler donated by Donald Scott Sharpe. The class was designed with the hope of increasing interest in horses among students, and the award will be won by the school totaling the largest number of points. For permanent possession it must be won three times by the same school.

For the first time working hunters will compete against each other, and all horses in this event

R. A. Dubuques Issue Wedding Invitations

INVITATIONS have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Amedee Dubuque of Spoede road for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Celeste Mary, and Benoist Langdon Carton, Saturday noon, May 21, at the St. Louis Cathedral. Cards were also inclosed for a breakfast and reception at the Dubuque home afterward. Mr. Carton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo de Smet Carton of Longueuil, Squires Lane, Huntleigh Village.

Additional parties have been planned in honor of the prospective bridal pair. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Robinson Pirrung will entertain at cocktails tomorrow evening from 5 to 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. Pirrung's mother, Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord, 816 South Hanley road.

Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. W. Bates, 7525 Buckingham drive, and Mr. and Mrs. Millard W. Smith, 18 Oakleigh lane, will give a dinner at Bridlespur Club. On Sunday, May 15, Mrs. Auguste B. Chouteau Jr., 4943 Laclede avenue, and her sister, Mrs. W. Milner Donovan, 4900 Pershing avenue, will be co-hostesses at a cocktail party at the latter's home. The hostesses are the bridegroom's cousins.

Late this afternoon Miss Dubuque will share honors with several other of the past winter's debutantes at a cocktail party Mr. and Mrs. Carton will give at their home. About 100 contemporaries have been invited to call in honor of the bride-elect, Miss Nancy Houser, Miss Frances McPheeters, Miss Eleanor Carter, Miss Mildred Bakewell and Miss Katharine Randolph. Miss Augusta Langdon Connett and Charles W. Disbrow Jr. Are Wed in Home Service

Reception and Supper Follow Nuptials of Fourth Daughter of Old St. Louis Family—Bridegroom, Who Formerly Lived Here, Will Take His Bride to Boston After Wedding Trip.

THE wedding of Miss Augusta Langdon Connett and Charles Wesley Disbrow Jr. of Boston, St. Louisan until a few years ago, took place late yesterday afternoon in the presence of their families and a small group of contemporaries gathered at the Connett home, 4422 Lindell boulevard. The bride is the youngest of four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connett III, and her husband is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Disbrow.

Candles lighted the way as the bridal party moved in procession through the long dining room and living room to a floral altar built against the front windows. Tall tapers burned in flower-tied candelabra connecting the long, white ribbon aisle, and were scattered through the foliage of feathery fern and palms backing Easter lilies, white snapdragon and white larkspur at the altar setting.

Three young women attendants preceded the bride and her father to the bower of flowers where the Rev. Alfred G. Thomson of the St. Louis Cathedral performed the ceremony, and five ushers in addition to the best man, completed the group. Miss Nancy Connett was maid of honor for her sister, and Miss Josephine Fusz, whose engagement to their brother, William C. Connett IV, was announced last week, and Miss Eleanor Schlafly, a cousin, were bridesmaids. Two brothers, Francis H. Disbrow, best man, and John Randolph Bland Disbrow, with W. C. Connett IV, Berkley Jones, Abbott Thomas and Charles Ebsen of New York, attended the bridegroom.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore long, very full white tulle skirts with lace bodices in sharply contrasting colors—Miss Connett's American beauty red, Miss Fusz' turquoise blue and Miss Schlafly's canary yellow. Lace Eton collars encircled high necks and the short sleeves were slightly puffed. Lace coronets to match their bodices were worn on their hair, and they carried armsful of roses to harmonize.

The bride wore white satin trimmed with rose point lace which had adorned her mother's wedding gown. Lace fashioned the bodice, was appliqued on long satin sleeves and formed a coronet from which a long tulle veil cascaded to the end of a train built into the princesse skirt. A shorter modesty veil covered her bouquet of white lilacs and lilies of the valley.

The bride's mother, who, with Mr. Connett, headed the receiving line after the ceremony, was gowned in dusty pink lace, an afternoon frock, with which she wore orchids. Guests filled the hall, which was garlanded with greenery, and the dining room where all white flowers predominated. After the reception, the wedding party, with the bride's other sisters, Miss Jane Allen Connett and Mrs. John Disbrow; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dennig, the bridegroom's brother-in-law and sister, and John Clayton, were seated for dinner in the second floor living room around a table decorated with snapdragon, larkspur and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Disbrow left last night for an unannounced destination for their honeymoon, and will live in Boston.

The bride is a graduate of Villa Duchesne, and studied at the Convent of the Holy Child in Rome. She was a debutante and a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball last season. Mr. Disbrow is an alumnus of Jackson Academy here and of Culver Military Academy.

Junior Leagues To Meet May 16 At Pittsburgh

NEW YORK, April 30.

PLANS are nearing completion for the eighteenth conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, to be held in Pittsburgh May 16-20. An increase in the number of delegates is due to the recent admission of three new chapters, Butte and Great Falls, Mont., and Durham, N. C., voted in last February.

Mrs. Peter L. Harvie of Troy, N. Y., president of the association, said: "A series of special discussions is planned for delegates. They will attend a special meeting at which speakers will discuss effects of various types of present-day government. James G. McDonald of the New York Times has chosen 'Types of Government and Their Effect on the Individual Citizen,' as his topic. Others will speak on 'The Citizen's Responsibility to the Community' and 'The Junior League's Contribution to the Community.'"

This meeting will be an innovation, inasmuch as it will mark a departure from routine reports.

Following the board meeting, Monday, May 16, the delegates—two from each of 148 leagues in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Hawaii, totaling 32,000 women—will be registered. The opening dinner, at which Mrs. Harvie will preside, is scheduled for the following evening at the William Penn Hotel. At Wednesday meetings, to be held at the Twentieth Century Club, Henry Pringle, instructor at Columbia University's School of Journalism, will be the principal speaker. Miss Helen Leovy of Pittsburgh, treasurer of the association and presidential nominee, will preside at a general meeting Thursday, when Rabbi Solomon Freehof will speak on "What Characterizes the Cultured Man of Today." A series of regional dinners, the delegates divided into groups according to location of their chapters, will be held Thursday night.

"Education" is the subject for Friday morning's discussions, to be held in Pittsburgh's "Cathedral of Learning." After luncheon in Stephen Foster Memorial Hall, the

Frances Chapman Is Bride Of John Roger Hollister

THE wedding yesterday afternoon in Memphis, Tenn., of Miss Frances Lathrop Chapman, and John Roger Hollister of Beverly, Mass., is of interest to St. Louisans. The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Burr Chapman, chose as one of her bridesmaids, Miss Carroll West Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones, McKnight road.

The Rt. Rev. Robert N. Spencer, Bishop of the diocese of Western Missouri, read the service at 4:30 o'clock at St. Mary's Cathedral,

Dance Dress Style Show To Be Given Tuesday

DURING luncheon at the Junior League club room, 4932 Maryland avenue, Tuesday, a dance dress fashion show will be given.

The young women modeling, will dance to show how the gowns will look on the dance floor. The Viennese waltz, tango, fox trot, rumba, bolero and valse moderne will be performed by the following members: Miss Betty West, Miss Jane Johnson, Mrs. John Valle Janes, Mrs. Carl J. Koehler, Miss Grace White and Mrs. Lee I. Niedringhaus.

St. Louis Women To Sponsor Events At Triennial

THE delegates' and visitors' dinner and the "first round-up branding breakfast," the latter to be sponsored by the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, are two major activities in which clubwomen of Missouri will participate when the General Federation of Women's Clubs convenes in Kansas City from May 10 to 17, inclusive, to hold the triennial meeting of 1938.

Mrs. Foster Brown of St. Louis, first vice-president of the Eighth District, is in charge of arrangements for the delegates' and visitors' dinner, which will be held the evening of Tuesday, May 10, in the Trianon Room of the Muehlebach Hotel at 6 o'clock. Mrs. William Samuel Scott of New York, authority on the theater, is to speak. A musical program will be presented by Mrs. John Wright of St. Louis, with Mrs. Irl Johnson, Eighth District music chairman, as her accompanist.

The dinner will conclude at 8 o'clock so that delegates may go to the Auditorium in time to see the production of an historic fantasy, "Turn, Wheel, Turn," in which more than 500 Missouri clubwomen will appear.

Mrs. Ruth Kelso Renfrow, president of the Eighth District, is chairman of the Missouri night program. Mrs. Florida Watts Smith, poet laureate of Missouri, will be entertained at the "first round-up branding breakfast," which will be held at the Women's City Club of Kansas City at 7:30 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday, May 11. As a part of the program, Mrs. Lee Mountjoy of Kansas City is directing a women's chorus and Mrs. Irl Johnson of St. Louis has written an original musical story.

General Federation officers, Missouri State board and Eighth District board members, as well as all Missouri clubwomen have been invited to attend the breakfast. Mrs. Renfrow will have as guests the Missouri district presidents.

Mrs. Joseph T. Davis, 7165 Kingsbury boulevard, St. Louis, chairman of special guests, will accept reservations for the Eighth District breakfast. The Committee on General Arrangements includes Mrs. Charles M. Hay, Mrs. G. Brandt Leitch, Mrs. W. C. Fisher, Mrs. Roy Steele and Mrs. Edwin H. Sager. Mrs. J. C. Ingham and Mrs. H. W. Schmale, as co-chairmen, are in charge of the Ticket Committee, which will include Miss Lenore Link, Mrs. George C. Griffith, Mrs. C. W. Nystrom, Mrs. George Dietz, Mrs. A. S. Hinchey and Mrs. John Zahorsky.

Mrs. Jasper Blackburn as chairman and Mrs. Alex Walther, Mrs. J. F. Shaffer, Mrs. J. H. Krabbe, Mrs. F. M. Plake, Miss Margaret Strassberger and Mrs. W. G. Hunt will comprise the Committee on Decorations. Mrs. Freemont J. Hoehn and Mrs. C. H. Nieman are making arrangements for the place cards, while Mrs. Edward P. Huck and Mrs. Edgar A. Robinson will have charge of badges. The program arrangements are to be made by Mrs. Abraham L. Brown and Mrs. Charles E. Luntz. Mrs. Johnson will have charge of the music. Mrs. Arthur J. Kreuger, chairman of the Committee on Costumes, will be assisted by Mrs. Victor Kern, Mrs. R. D. Williams, Miss Drusilla S. Gregory, Mrs. O. W. Kenton, Mrs. Robert L. Hughes, Mrs. E. R. O. Mueller and Mrs. K. C. Chora.

Hostesses who will assist at the Eighth District breakfast and dinner and will preside at the Eighth District headquarters at the Robert E. Lee Hotel are Mrs. Joseph Jamison and Mrs. W. Clinton Taylor, co-chairmen; Mrs. J. Handley Caldwell, Mrs. Leslie C. Post, Mrs. W. C. Fisher, Mrs. Eli F. Rottman, Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin, Mrs. Harry H. Seidell, Mrs. Allen D. McKinney, Mrs. E. P. annual meeting of the association will be held. The three chief executive officers, president, secretary and treasurer, will be chosen, together with regional directors for four regions, and a Canadian representative.

Two former St. Louisans are included in the conference arrangements committee, which is headed by national officers. Mrs. John Kennedy Beeson, the former Miss Dorinda Kennerly of St. Louis, is chairman of the Pittsburgh Junior League Committee, with Mrs. Bernard Shea Horne, who was Miss Kathleen Sheldon of St. Louis, as one of the two vice-chairmen.

must have hunted with the Bridlespur Hunt at least seven times.

In addition to the set schedule of events, guests will be permitted to see the Bridlespur hounds, a pack of 40, including white English dogs and smaller brown American ones developed in Virginia and Kentucky. Four red foxes which will be put out in dens this spring and hunted in the fall, along with Missouri gray fox, will be on view in cages.

William Lee of Mexico, Mo., will judge saddle horses and Grove Cullum of Santa Fe, N. M., formerly a member of the Olympic team, will judge hunters and jumpers.

decorated in white gladiolas and lighted by tapers burning in candelabra.

Mr. Chapman gave his daughter in marriage. Her white satin gown was designed with cowl neck and long sleeves. A tulle veil fell over the dress train and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Williams Kent and Miss Lila Burr Chapman were honor attendants for their sister. Their red sheer crepe gowns were designed similarly to the bridal dress. Red monk's caps and a bouquet of snapdragon completed the costumes.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jones, Miss Althea Merritt, Bridgeport, Conn.; Miss Judith Colt, Pittsfield, Mass.; Miss Mary Margaret McAlpine, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Peter Peck, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. Andrew McBurney, New York; Miss Levin Ransom, Hughes, Ark.; Miss Lucia Thompson, Miss Patte Evans and Mrs. Martin Condon III of Memphis. With their red costumes they carried bouquets of blue corn flowers.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Hollister of Oshkosh, Wis., had his father for best man. The ushers were: Seymour Hollister, William Hylan, J. Robinson Duff Jr. and Herbert Smith, all of New York; Sherman Farnham and Allan Macomber of Rochester, N. Y.; Roy Chapin, Robert Lay and MacIntosh Brown of Detroit; Samuel Lynde and Francis Fabian, Chicago; Don Dayton, Minneapolis; Robert Gillespie, Stamford, Conn.; Theodore Broxmire, Lake Forest, Ill.; Albert Mallory, R. E. Wilson III and Vance Alexander Jr. of Memphis.

After a wedding trip to Havana, the pair will live in Beverly. Mrs. Hollister attended Sarah Lawrence College. She is a member of the Junior League and was queen of the Cotton Carnival last year. Mr. Hollister prepared at Lawrenceville School for Yale from which he was graduated.

Kahl, 7250 Normandy place, and William Douglas Christian, which will take place at 5 o'clock the afternoon of Friday, June 17, at Normandy Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Herman G. Heuser, pastor, will read the service.

Mrs. Paul Zey of Louisiana, Mo., will be matron of honor, and Eugene F. Abbott Jr. best man. Other attendants will be selected soon. The families and a few close friends will greet the prospective bridal pair in a reception after the wedding at the Kahl home.

Mr. Christian, who has made his home in Normandy the past few years, is a son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles Harvey Christian of Fulton, Mo. A graduate of Westminster College in Fulton, the bridegroom-elect received his master's degree from Washington University. He is a member of Theta Kappa Nu fraternity.

Miss Kahl, after her graduation from the University of Missouri, was awarded a master's degree at Washington. Her sorority is Alpha Gamma Delta.

Friends were told informally of the betrothal.

Virginia McCormick To Be Wed May 14

MISS VIRGINIA DOROTHEA McCORMICK, daughter of State Senator and Mrs. Raleigh McCormick, 645 Elmwood avenue, Webster Groves, has chosen May 14, as the date of her marriage to George Marsh Worthington, son of Mrs. Ada Worthington, 7817 Grove avenue, Webster Groves. The ceremony, for which invitations have been issued, will be performed by the Rev. Walter J. Tucker at 9 o'clock in the morning at Our Holy Redeemer Church in Webster.

Miss McCormick will have as attendants her cousins, Miss Dorothy Jane Henderson and Miss Betty Parrish McCormick. Jean Louis Mutrux and Frank T. Drake will act as groomsmen. Robert P. Cummings Jr. and Joseph Corley will be ushers. Miss McCormick will be given in marriage by her father.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at Norwood Hills Country Club for the bridal party and the immediate families.

Miss McCormick attended Nerinx Hall and was graduated last June from Webster College with a Ph.B. degree. She was a member of Lambda Alpha Lambda sorority. Mr. Worthington attended the University of Missouri where he was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha and Tomb and Key fraternities.

Miss Viola Oschrin To Be Married Today

THE marriage of Miss Viola Oschrin, 5821 Clemens avenue, and Dr. Daniel Bisno, 5590 Pershing avenue, will take place at 11 o'clock this morning at the bride's home. Miss Oschrin is the daughter of Aaron Oschrin of Newark, N. J., and the bridegroom the son of Mrs. Bertha Bisno of Kenosha, Wis.

Leo Oschrin of New York will give his sister in marriage. Rabbi A. E. Halpern will perform the ceremony. The bridegroom's brother, Kenneth Bisno of Racine, Wis., will be best man, and his mother, Mrs. Bisno, will attend the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Columbia University, New York, and now is director of the Sommers Children's Bureau of St. Louis. Dr. Bisno is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of Johns Hopkins University. He is a member of Phi Epsilon Pi and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

After a wedding trip to New York, the pair will make their home in St. Louis.

Miss Virginia Wulff And Louis Hinrichs Jr. Wed in Church Service

SPRING pastels were worn by the four young women who attended Miss Virginia Wulff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Wulff, 6227 Northwood avenue, when she became the bride of Louis Hinrichs Jr. last evening at 5:30 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, pastor, conducted the service at the Second Presbyterian Church.

White tapers marked the center aisle. Miss Marguerite Reiter, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown of chartreuse net had a V-neckline and short-ruffled sleeves. The skirt, which fell full from the waistline, was banded with rows of ruffles. Wistaria velvet ribbon banded the chartreuse net poke bonnet and she carried African daisies.

The bridesmaids, Miss Alice Hinrichs, his sister, Miss Cordes Heritage, and Miss Dorothy Diesselhorst, wore similar gowns of wistaria net. A velvet bow held their short, matching veils in place and each had a bouquet of yellow daisies.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. The high neck of the bride's white satin gown was marked by a rolled collar, edged in scallops, and fastened by a diamond pin, the gift of Mrs. Wulff. Tiny buttons trimmed the long sleeves to the elbow and were placed in a row from the back of the collar to the waistline. A coronet of satin and net held the long tulle veil in place. The bride carried lilies of the valley.

The ceremony was performed before the chancel, banked with woodwardia and decorated with urns of Easter lilies.

The families, wedding party and out-of-town guests attended a reception and supper afterward at the Park Plaza. The line formed in the Venetian room before a bank of ferns and lilies. Mrs. Wulff wore deep beige lace with a hat of brown and beige and a corsage of talisman roses. Mrs. Hinrichs wore powder blue lace with navy accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias.

For supper, a U-shaped table was set up in the banquet hall. Decorations there were bowls of white stock and snapdragon alternating with white candles in silver holders.

After a motor trip through the East the pair will return to St. Louis to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Capron and their son, Richard, of Kansas City, and Mrs. John Stalm of Memphis, Tenn., were among the out-of-town guests.

The bride, vice-president of her graduating class at Washington University, is a member of Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Zeta Pi, and Sigma Lambda Epsilon sororities. Mr. Hinrichs, whose parents live at 4950 Northland place, attended Washington University. His fraternity is Sigma Chi.

McKinley Alumni Reunion.

The McKinley Alumni Association will hold its annual reunion at the school Thursday night at 8 o'clock. After individual class reunions, officers will be elected.

Miss Anne Jarvis Becomes Bride of Glenn L. Moller

MISS ANNE JARVIS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jarvis, 402 Tuxedo avenue, Webster Groves, and Glenn L. Moller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Loren Moller, 537 Clark avenue, Webster Groves, were married last night at Memorial Presbyterian Church. The Rev. James W. Bell of Seattle, Wash., friend of the bride and bridegroom, performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock, assisted by the Rev. G. H. Murch of St. Louis, who married the bride's parents.

Ferns and candelabra were used to decorate the chancel, and candles lighted the church aisle. The bride wore ivory satin, made with an Elizabethan collar of old lace from her mother's wedding gown, while points of lace over her hands were also from her mother's gown. The bride wore a tulle veil attached to an elaborate headdress of pearls and fresh orange blossoms, sent from Pasadena, Cal., by her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Montague M. Wadey. She carried lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Ethel Jarvis, attending her sister as maid of honor, wore pale pink net matching taffeta. The bridesmaids, Miss Ann Lindsay, Miss Merle Holthaus, Miss Elsie Sante and Mrs. L. Bryant Moller, were in light blue net. Their gowns and the blue net frock of the flower girl, Suzanne Knowlton, cousin of the bride, were made alike, with puffed sleeves, bouffant skirts and short bolero jackets. Miss Jarvis carried deep pink roses and pink snapdragon, and the bridesmaids' bouquets were of lighter shared snapdragons.

Mrs. Jarvis wore aqua blue crepe and Mrs. Moller was in pale blue crepe. Both wore orchids. Mrs. Louis Peter Schleicher, grandmother of the bridegroom, was gowned in lavender crepe and wore gardenias.

Mr. Moller was attended by his brother, L. Bryant Moller, as best man, and ushers included Robert Moller, also a brother, Harold Thomas Jarvis of Hartford, Conn., brother of the bride, Bertram Tremayne, Don Ellinger, Edgar Isaacs, Jerry Manning and Howard Elder.

A reception was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Le Roy Sante, 308 Orchard avenue, aunt and uncle of the bride, and afterward Mr. Moller and his bride left for a wedding trip to the Gulf coast. They will live at 5874 Plymouth avenue in St. Louis.

Among those here for the marriage were Mrs. R. Frederick Goodnow and Mrs. Carl A. Hope, aunts of the bride, Miss Dorothy Butler, her cousin, of Lakewood, O., and Mrs. Edward R. Witte of Tampa, Fla., and St. Paul, Minn., at whose wedding Mrs. Jarvis was a bridesmaid.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, April 30.

WASHINGTON possesses a number of historic beds. The first in interest, of couse, is the Lincoln bed in one of the state chambers at the White House.

A bed a king was to have used is at 2020 Massachusetts avenue Northwest, owned by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean. It was intended for use by King Leopold I of Belgium when he was to visit the United States as the guest of Mrs. McLean's father, the late Thomas F. Walsh, mining magnate. It has a canopy of heavy gold satin.

Mrs. George Barnett, widow of the World War commandant of the United States Marine Corps has a bed in one of the guest chambers at Wakefield, her country home in Virginia, in which the Duchess of Windsor always slept when she was a guest at Wakefield during her girlhood.

In every administration there have been periods of special interest about the fatigue of constatnt handshaking for the occupants of the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt did not break any precedent in her recent press conference when she commented on the fact that handshaking is hard on the upper right arm and that standing in line to receive callers is a torture to one's feet if too prolonged.

The history of handshaking in the White House from Washington to Franklin Delano Roosevelt shows many contrasts in methods of greeting. President Roosevelt has a hearty hand shake and a quick smile as has Mrs. Roosevelt in greeting guests and neither shows the slightest sign of the fatigue they must feel at times in doing so.

George Washington bowed to his visitors with dignified mien, keeping one hand on the hilt of his sword and the other behind his back and would not shake hands even with his closest friends at state levees. Mrs. Washington also did not shake hands.

Jefferson shook hands with all. Madison bowed so much at receptions that he complained of a "crick in the neck." While President Theodore Roosevelt was ready with a hearty hand shake for each guest Mrs. Roosevelt always carried a bouquet.

A hobby show is to be given by the St. Albans School for Boys, covering many subjects from stamp collecting to art work.

A hobby that has reached professional status is the printing of rare books and pamphlets on his own press by Prof. Stephen A. Hurlbut, instructor of Latin at St. Albans. Prof. Hurlbut sets up all the type personally for the books. His most recent volume, "Hortus Conclusus," a collection of medieval Latin hymns, is on exhibition in the curator's office in Washington Cathedral close and at the Cottage Herb Garden, conducted by All Hallows Guild.

Miller-Wallenberg Wedding in Church

MISS STELLA WALLENBERG became the bride of James Eugene Miller yesterday morning at Holy Redeemer Church in Webster Groves. The bride is the sister of Mrs. Donald James Henderson, 4342 De Tonty street, and Mr. Miller the son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Miller, 647 Amelia avenue, Webster Groves. The Rev. Walter J. Tucker performed the ceremony.

Thomas Wallenberg gave his sister in marriage. She wore ivory satin combined with lace, the neckline of the gown high and close-fitting, and sleeves puffed at the elbow. Her veil was fastened to a coronet of tulle, and she carried white angelus roses and baby's breath. Mrs. Henderson, her matron of honor, was gowned in peacock blue net, made bouffant. She wore a matching net turban, trimmed with a cluster of fresh flowers to match her bouquet, which was of talisman roses and blue delphinium. Mrs. Miller was in a light gray crepe ensemble, with pink roses at her shoulder.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, John T. Miller, as best man.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Miller home, where the house and bridal table were decorated with calla lilies, smilax and small white feverfew blossoms.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. Miller and his bride will live at 909 St. Rita street, Clayton.

MISS ALDINE NESSLAGE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Nesslage, 630 Clark street, and Alfred Fehr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fehr, 208 Perry street, were married April 23, in the Immanuel Lutheran Church by the Rev. Frederic Niedner.

The bride's gown was of white satin with a lace overdress. Her veil was caught to the head by a crown of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Norine Nesslage, who wore pink taffeta and carried carnations of a lighter tint. The bridegroom's brother, Vernon Fehr, was the other attendant.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The pair will be at home at 310 North Kingshighway.

Miss Violet Maxey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Maxey of Overland, and Clarence Maxey, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Maxey, were married April 20 by the Rev. Champ Ellis at Kingshighway Baptist Church. Afterward a wedding supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Burke, Mrs. Burke being a sister of the bridegroom. The bride wore a blue traveling suit.

One hundred and fifty persons attended the St. Charles Lindenwood College Club tea, given by the St. Charles club at the library clubrooms of Lindenwood College, Friday afternoon. The tea was given in honor of the senior girls of high schools throughout St. Charles County. Mrs. O. W. Dueringer, president, was in charge. The committee in charge of table arrangements was under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Salveter with Mrs. Marie Ferguson and Miss Vivian Becker assisting. Spring flowers were placed about the rooms. Informal talks were given and Miss Alice Belding, and Miss Mary Ahmann played the piano.

The St. Charles Country Club gave its spring formal dance in the club ballroom last night.

Miss Joan Braufman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Braufman, 1500 Watson street, returned early this week after four days at a National Youth Convention at Louisville, Ky.

Weddings and Engagements

Meader-Warrington

THE wedding of Miss Grace Warrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Warrington, 4104 Hartford street, and Herbert Meader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Meader, 4106 Arsenal street, took place Friday night, April 22, at 8 o'clock, at Oak Hill Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Smylie performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white silk net over taffeta, and carried lilies-of-the-valley. Her long tulle veil was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms.

Miss Audrey Warrington, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, with Mrs. Charles Kahn and Miss Patricia Jane Graf as bridesmaids. Their gowns, also of white silk net, were made bouffant. Miss Warrington wore a cluster of silk grapes on her head, shading from pale pink to peach, and carried blue delphinium and peach gladioli. Bridesmaids wore grape clusters shading from light to deep blue, and carried bouquets. Mary Louise Raft, acting as flower girl, wore blue net over peach taffeta.

Mrs. Warrington was gowned in columbine blue lace with gardenias, and Mrs. Meader wore dusty pink lace, also with gardenias.

Norman Meader was best man for his brother, with Harvey Warrington, brother of the bride, and Arthur Cramer as groomsmen. Gus Earnie and Mr. Kahn were ushers.

A reception was given afterward at the home of the bride's parents, who celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary that day.

Mr. Meader and his bride are spending their honeymoon at Biloxi, Miss., and will live in St. Louis at 3974 Bowen avenue.

Guests from out-of-town for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Wilson of Memphis, Tenn., H. A. Nelson of Dyersburg, Tenn., C. B. Nelson and C. B. Nelson Jr. of Little Rock, Ark.

Flynn-Haley

Miss Rosemary Haley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hartnett, 4216 Hereford street, and James E. Flynn, son of Mrs. Mary Flynn, 3964 Russell boulevard, were married Saturday morning, April 23, at 9 o'clock at St. Mary Magdalene Church. The Rev. W. F. Mullally officiated.

The bride was attended by Miss Estelle Leiber and Mrs. B. J. McKernan. Mr. Flynn's attendants were James Jepson, Dr. McKernan and James Schalig.

After the wedding, breakfast was served at Forest Park Hotel. Mr. Flynn and his bride are touring the South on their wedding trip.

Serenco-Sklower

Informal announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Babette H. Sklower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Sklower, 737 Limit avenue, University City, and Lester H. Serenco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stern, 6257 North drive, University City.

Carton-Geeser

Louis Geeser, 6022 Bartmer avenue, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Bertha Geeser, to Frank E. Carton. Mr. Carton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carton, 723 Westgate avenue.

Dameron-Zukas

Mrs. Hal Painter of Granite City has announced the engagement of her sister, Miss Helen Zukas, to Vic Dameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dameron of Granite City.

Mr. Dameron is a sophomore at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo.

Polsky-Glassman

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Glassman, former St. Louisans, and now of Kansas City, Mo., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Zelda, to Dr. Morris Polsky of Kansas City. The wedding will take place this June.

Seidel-Harris

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Harris, 5595 Page boulevard, have recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mae, to Jesse Seidel, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Seidel, 6255 Clemens avenue, University City. The wedding is planned for early summer.

Guckes-Urban

Miss Marie Urban, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Urban, 2625 Oregon avenue, has chosen Saturday, May 14, as the date for her marriage to Louis W. Guckes. Mr. Guckes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Guckes, 3020 Minnesota avenue. The ceremony will take place at St. Lucas Lutheran Church at 7:30 o'clock in the evening with the Rev. George Majoros officiating. Miss Urban will be attended by Miss Elvera Pilat, and Miss Ethel Schuricht. Her nieces, Patricia Klik and Barbara Urban, will be flower girls. Harold Hartmann and John Dinga will attend the prospective bridegroom. A reception will be held at the Urban home after the ceremony.

Alpha Phi Alumnae Officers.

Mrs. Joseph Noh, 319 North Taylor avenue, has been elected president of the St. Louis alumnae chapter of Alpha Phi sorority. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. M. F. Hubbell, 15 Edwin avenue, Kirkwood. Other officers elected are: Mrs. Dick Whitehead, vice - president; Mrs. Schuyler Smith, secretary; Miss Hazel Ludwig, treasurer, and Mrs. William I. Pixley, corresponding secretary. The next meeting will be May 16 at the home of Mrs. W. H. Garrett, 6683 Kingsbury avenue.

Visiting Parents.

Miss Margaret Lieber is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lieber, 5614 Waterman avenue. She recently returned from an eight-month professional dancing trip through the East.

Fontbonne Horse Show Features Announced

A FEATURE of the Fontbonne College spring horse show, to be held Friday and Saturday at Missouri Stables Arena, will be a Western quadrille, with riders dressed in chaps and colored shirts, and their mounts in gay trappings. Eight horses will prance around the arena to Western tunes, under the guidance of Miss Valerie Brinkman, Miss Betty Ann La Barge, Miss Emily Ochman, Miss Katherine Burmeister, Miss Nancy Lee Sparks, Miss Joan Steinlage, Miss Rosemary Ward and Miss Helen Marie Badaracco.

Also scheduled is a performance by Miss Harriet Burkart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Burkart, who will show her five-gaited black gelding, Peavine Dare. Frederick J. Berkley will explain technicalities of Miss Burkart's riding while she demonstrates principal features of correct and incorrect riding.

Miss Charlotte Lowther, director of the physical education department of the college, has planned several games, among them a marshmallow race, which will be a competition of alumnae riders of Fontbonne College and St. Joseph's Academy. Participating in the event will be Miss Martha Hatch, Miss Gladys Kietzker, Miss Betty James, Miss Virginia Martin, Miss Lorraine Korte, Miss Mary Alice Burmeister, Miss Jean Roach, Miss Katherine Mercurio, Miss Mary Catherine Forrestal, Miss Marie Balsamo and Miss Nannie May Payne.

Advanced class riders from both schools will hold a ribbon raid Friday night. Miss Virginia Shamleffer, Miss Hope David, Miss Doris O'Connor, Miss Emily Ochman and Miss Virginia Schuler will fly colors of Fontbonne, while Miss Mary Jane Becker, Miss Virginia Pease, Miss Jean Heiss, Miss Aileen Black and Miss Patsy Dietrich will ride for St. Joseph's.

A button race will be held between Miss Margaret Nelson, Miss Charlotte Bussman, Miss Marian Murphy, Miss Jane Briston and Miss Anne Grace of Fontbonne, and Miss Evelyn Hurley, Miss Marilyn Heneghan, Miss Jane Royal, Miss Eleanor Gallagher and Miss Dorothy Mercurio of St. Joseph's.

Tea for Sorority Alumni.

Mrs. Sidney R. Stanard, 486 East Big Bend road, Webster Groves, will be hostess at a tea Saturday to the afternoon group of St. Louis Alumnae Association of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. Mrs. E. L. Shrader, Miss Alice Lockwood and Mrs. E. A. Doisy will assist. Officers will be elected and plans made for this chapter's part in the international convention to be held June 27 to July 1 at the Seigniory Club, Province of Quebec, Canada.

GERMANY TO OFFER MANY ATTRACTIONS

Summer Visitor Has Choice of Festivals and Music or Metropolitan Centers.

Visitors to Germany are being offered a wide range of attractions this summer from kermessen and village festivals to music, opera and drama, sporting events, and vintage festivals in the fall of the year.

Bayreuth is offering opera during July and August commemorating the 125th anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner. Open air performances of Wagner's "Ring" will also be held at this time at Zoppot, while Munich is presenting a combined Wagner-Mozart program. The German Gymnastic and Sports Festival is scheduled for the latter part of July at Breslau and a Contemporary German Art Exhibit is to be held at Heidelberg beginning June and ending in August. There are to be people's festivals, held in the traditional manner and in traditional dress, in every village and hamlet.

Metropolitan Centers.

The traveler to whom rustic beauty and quiet do not appeal will find many centers of metropolitan life with museums, galleries, parks and zoological gardens. Berlin, the capital of the Reich, is naturally the most important of these centers.

Berlin originated from the old twin towns of Belin-Kolln. Both towns are mentioned in documents that date back to the first half of the thirteenth century. In 1701 it became the residence of the first King of Prussia, that of the German Emperor in 1871, and the capital of the Third Reich in 1933.

In the middle of the Spree Island stands the Schloss in which every style of Berlin architecture is represented, from late Gothic of the Electors of Brandenburg, to the more simple classic. North is Museum Island while on the south old Kolln still retains its quaint characteristics.

Despite the modern note of present-day architecture, Berlin still retains its medieval heritage. In old Berlin, on the east bank of the Spree are St. Nicholas Church with tombs that constitute a record of history; St. Mary's Church with the justly famous "Dance of Death" frescoes. Late Gothic dwellings and taverns and examples of baroque architecture are plentiful in Berlin.

Unter den Linden.

The most famous street is the well-known Unter den Linden, an avenue 197 feet wide with the Schloss at one end and the Tiergarten at the other. Wilhelmstrasse is Berlin's Downing street, with its numerous ministries, some of them housed in palaces dating back to the first half of the eighteenth century. The Tiergarten, which should not be confused with the zoological gardens, was once the hunting grounds of the rulers of Brandenburg. It covers an area of more than 500 acres and is beautifully landscaped with old trees and idyllic pools.

The Reich Sports Field, with its huge arenas, stadia and fields, was inaugurated on the occasion of the Olympic games in 1936. The field is dominated by the bell tower rising to a height of 248 feet and surmounted by the Olympia bell, which weighs more than 20 tons.

Guides and interpreters are numerous in Berlin, with a great many students functioning in this capacity. Policemen with a knowledge of foreign languages may be found in railway stations and central points, wearing armbands marked with the name of the language spoken. Special cab stands for foreigners are also maintained near railway stations. These drivers wear a red armband to indicate that they speak English or French.

AMERICAN TRAVEL HERE AND ABROAD EXPECTED TO BE VERY HEAVY

Decided Spurt in Steamship Bookings as War Clouds Dissipate.

The urge to go somewhere in the summer, a trait deeply ingrained in the American makeup, is already beginning to make itself felt and the month of May is expected to clarify where and how Americans will travel, according to a survey made recently.

While the situation in Europe a few weeks ago may have caused some Americans to change their minds in favor of cruises elsewhere and vacations at home most trans-Atlantic steamship lines report a decided spurt in demands for accommodations. Some note only normal activity while others predict a longer season.

In May Europe will present its exhibitions and begin its summer pageantry. On May 3 King George will officially open the Empire Exhibition at Glasgow. On May 12 Oslo in Norway will open its Exhibition of Norwegian Life. At the end of the month Catholics from every country in the world will flock to Budapest for the Eucharistic Congress. The Shakespeare Festival at Stratford-on-Avon is already under way, and during this month Leipzig and Cologne will present festival weeks of opera to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the birth of Wagner.

The "Nieuw Amsterdam" which became the official flagship for the Holland-American line on April 23 in a ceremony near the Maas lightvessel in the North Sea will make her maiden voyage to the United States in May. The Norwegian liner "Oslofjord" will make her ocean trials during the first 10 days in May. Her maiden voyage to the United States is scheduled for June 4. The Swedish line expects to launch its naw "Stockholm" during the month of May.

National parks are also looking for a record season. Glacier opens June 10, five days ahead of schedule. Yellowstone is expected to be opened about June 13, while Mount Ranier will begin its season June 15. May skiing is promised in parts of Canada. Railroads are adding extra cars and practically all pasenger trains are being air-conditioned.

MANY ART TREASURES FOUND AT ST. GALL

Canton in Switzerland Once Center of Art and Culture of Country.

St. Gall, one of the best known towns in Switzerland, owes its name and its foundation around the year 615 A. D., to the traveling Irish missionary Gallus. From a humble hermitage near the river Steinach it grew under the guidance of the Abbot Othmar (720-759) into a Benedictine monastery which, by the middle of the ninth century, became a center of art and culture.

Art Treasures Well Known.

The Abbey Library, a rococo building of 1760, houses the treasures which date back to St. Gall's golden era of art. There are theological, music-theoretical, and chronicle works; hymns, compositions and poetry; ivory carvings, illuminated books and manuscripts dating back as far as the seventh century. The oldest known German-Latin dictionary, credited to the monk Kero, was compiled in those early days. The exhibits include marvelous specimens of ninth century book-art, such as Folchart's Psalter and the Psalterium Aureum, both with gold lettering on purple background. One of the manuscripts on display has late-Roman ivory tablets for its covers, and the so-called "Evangelium longum" reposes between Tuotilo's famous carved ivory tablets. The library also possesses one of the three most important MSS of the Niebelungenlied, as well as one of the two existing MSS of Parsifal.

The Abbey Church or cathedral was rebuilt in the baroque style from 1755-69 and its spacious interior is decorated with delicately colored ceiling frescoes by Christian Wenzinger and elaborate rococo stucco-work. Two crypts remain from the original structure, but only the one on the west side, dating back to the tenth century, is accessible. The huge main altar and six side altars are of impressive design, and a magnificent wrought-iron choir screen stands as a perpetual monument to its creators. Especially noteworthy are the choir-stalls, exquisitely carved by Josef Anton Feuchtmayer, and depicting in a series of reliefs the life of St. Benedict. By Feuchtmayer, also, are the 16 artistic confessionals in the nave.

Interior Simple.

The exterior of the Cathedral is comparatively simple, its most ornate feature being the two towers on the east front. A realistic relief of the artist Feuchtmayer used to adorn the gable of the centerpiece between these towers, but in the march of time it gradually became a victim of the elements. During the recent careful renovation of the east facade of this church, a Zurich sculptor, Alfons Magg, recreated this practically vanished relief most successfully.

Among the many well preserved medieval landmarks of old St. Gall are the Town Hall, with its historical frescoes, and the Kaufhaus, onetime merchant's hall. A large number of private dwellings, too, betray their age through their quaint architecture, their delightful oriels and such features. Several churches, besides the Cathedral, as well as museums, and public and private schools give eloquent proof of the intense spiritual, cultural and intellectual life in this historic city today.

When St. Gall came into being workers at various trades soon began to settle around the abbey, and thus it came about that linen-weaving was introduced in this district in the eleventh century. This art has since been cultivated and developed to a rare degree of perfection. In more recent times embroideries and laces became another vital source of livelihood for the inhabitants, but since these industrial activities are either carried on in the outskirts of St. Gall, or in the homes of the peasantry, the beauty and proverbial cleanliness of the city are by no means impaired.

AMERICA IS SHRINKING!

MORE FUN TOO

THANKS TO THIS NEW HOSPITALITY SERVICE

When vacation time is limited, it's especially important to make every minute count. That's why we've established, at our Official Information Bureau, 505 West 6th St., Los Angeles, a unique new service to help you plan your fun when you get here. Visit this Bureau after you arrive; its services are FREE.

Shorter travel time by all methods of transportation has cut the time to Southern California so drastically that even a short vacation is ample. In 2 weeks, for example, which is 16 days counting the week-ends, you can have a choice of transportation and be actually here at least 12 days. The trip itself is part of your vacation. Costs here average 22.8% under those of 20 other leading U. S. resorts.

The 26 FREE services offered at our Information Bureau (see samples at left) eliminate all fuss and delay in deciding how and what to do and see while here—beaches, mountains, islands, sports, night life, celebrities, cities like Hollywood, Pasadena, Long Beach, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, Glendale, Pomona—in this playground of cool nights and rainless summer days.

By visiting this Bureau and using its services, you'll be sure to pack the most possible fun into your visit.

Capitalism in Germany: Business Which Helped Put Hitler in Power Ends in Slavery to Nazi Planning Economic as Well as Social System Subordinated to Nazis' Political Aims of a Greater German Empire.

From a Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian in Germany.

WHATEVER we may think of Herr Hitler's foreign policy, of the breakup of German democracy, or of the sweeping changes the Third Reich has carried through in the cultural sphere, we have been given a timely warning. As far back as 13 years before its rise to power the Nazi party published the 25 points of its "irrevocable" program of action. Abolition of the peace treaties and establishment of the Greater German Empire, return of the colonies and reintroduction of conscription, social elimination of the Jews, and a "national" education. The whole political and cultural order of present-day Germany was then postulated in crude but unmistakable language.

The only items in this remarkable document which apparently have been discarded deal with a fundamental reorganization of the economic system. All unearned incomes, we read there, are to be confiscated, all big concerns nationalized, and the large estates expropriated without compensation. This sounds very different from the program Herr Hitler enunciated in March, 1933, on the occasion of his first governmental declaration: "In the future the economic interests of the German people are to be furthered not by following the devious path of bureaucratic centralization, but by mobilizing personal initiative on the basis of private ownership."

How are we to interpret this "breach of promise" towards the Socialist followers in the Nazi party? Did the ruler simply throw overboard the bait which had lured the masses to the Pretender? Or is Socialism to follow after all, once nationalism has won its ultimate triumph?

Middle Class Revolt.

To find an answer to this question, one must bear in mind that Hitler was swept into power not primarily by a proletarian movement, but by a social revolt of the lower middle classes in town and country and by the active support of those very landowners, industrialists and financiers whom his economic program threatened with confiscation. Thus it was only natural that he started by reassuring his partners in the original Government coalition, and not with words alone. Within a few months the big combines in banking, heavy industry and shipping, which under the pressure of bankruptcy had been taken over by the Bruning Government, were refloated and restored to private ownership. Even public discussion of the corporative state was made illegal, and Dr. Feder, its main sponsor and one of Hitler's oldest friends, was deprived of all official functions. Finally, in June, 1934, the hopes of a "second revolution" cherished by the extreme wing of the party and the S. A. were drowned in the "blood bath."

But while capitalism was winning such conspicuous victories over its cruder enemies, its most faithful advocate, Dr. Schacht, was all the time introducing and extending state planning. The Third Reich had inherited a rigid foreign exchange control established during the international credit crisis of 1931. When, however, the public works program and rearmament rapidly increased the demand for foreign raw materials, even stricter measures had to be introduced. In the autumn of 1934 the "New Plan" subjected the whole import trade to state regulation. It established, on the one hand, 27 control boards to supervise all details of every single import transaction, such as price, quantity and quality, selling terms and country of origin. On the other hand, the utilization of the many types of blocked marks and a most varied system of subsidies enabled the Government to extend control also to exports. Since 1935 practically the whole of German foreign trade has been administered as a state monopoly.

Control of Agriculture.

This, however, was only a first step towards the most daring experiment in economic planning that has ever been tried outside Russia.

In this connection a word must first of all be said about agriculture. As early as 1933 the "Agricultural Estate" was instituted in order to transform the doctrine of "blood and soil" into economic reality. Agriculture in the widest sense, from the primary stage of grain-growing and cattle-breeding down to the last baker and butcher, was withdrawn from the free play of demand and supply and reorganized in a kind of guild system. A strict scale of fixed prices was introduced, and quotas for delivery were assigned to every business unit on every stage of production and distribution. Along with the compulsory entailment of the farms these planning measures have de facto abolished private enterprise in this sphere. The results in terms of output are rather depressing. Domestic production is declining both in cereals and in edible fats, a development which led to even more rigid methods of control, such as the requisitioning of the entire grain crops last autumn.

Planning in Industry.

In industry, planning is for the present based on a much subtler principle. Business organization, technique of production, and diversity of output would possibly defeat any rigid scheme. Yet, without formally interfering with private ownership and private management, the state has seized a few strategic key positions from which the entire process of industrial production can be regimented. In this connection Germany's dependence on the import of raw materials provided a real advantage. Not much had to be done to develop import control into an elaborate system of centralized distribution of all basic minerals, textiles and chemical materials, whether imported or home produced. Since any conditions as to price, quantity and quality of product, or technical organization may be imposed in addition, the allocation of raw materials has become the most powerful instrument for the current supervision of each industrial firm.

This is supplemented by rigid investment control. In many industries the expansion of productive capacity is once and for all prohibited. In others it is strictly licensed, and the granting of permission is often dependent on the applicant's willingness to erect additional plant for rearmament purposes.

Prices Fixed, Profits Limited.

Rationing of raw materials and investment control have their equivalent in the finnacial sphere. A strict system of price-fixing and price distcrimination, reinforced by the establishment of compulsory cartels, attempts to adjust current supply to the official "regulation of consumption."

The private capital market is more or less closed by the de facto confiscation of all profits exceeding the maximum limit of 6 per cent for paid-out dividends. These sums have to be invested in Government stocks, and provide, together with taxes and short-term borrowing, the money for the financing of rearmament and of the four-year plan.

The organization with the help of which industrial planning is being carried through is extremely complicated. There is, on the one hand, the "Reich Industry Group," with seven "chief groups" and a thousand branch groups, a corporative body of industrial self-government with compulsory membership. There are, on the other hand, the Government control boards, administered by civil servants. But in many cases the lack of civil service ex-

England Proceeding to Nationalize Country's Great Coal Industry By Purchase From Private Owners

By ARTHUR E. MANN,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 30.

THE House of Commons has just passed the coal bill providing for the purchase of all the coal deposits of Great Britain from the private owners for $332,250,000. The bill has now gone to the House of Lords and their lordships are expected to give it their approval. When that has been done, the first half of the step will have been taken toward the complete nationalization of the coal industry of this country.

The sum to be paid was determined by a special legal tribunal after the Government and the coal owners had failed to agree upon a figure. The tribunal estimated the net annual royalty payments to the coal owners by the coal mining companies to be $22,150,000 and the total to be paid the owners was then worked out at 15 years' purchase of that annual royalty. The coal owners agreed in advance to accept the decision of the tribunal.

The coal bill creates a Coal Commission which is to be the administrator of the coal resources of the country after they have been purchased. The chairman and four other members of the commission will be appointed by the Board of Trade. The commission is empowered to issue stock to a total value of $382,250,000 for the purchase of the coal, the additional $50,000,000 being to cover extra expenses which may be involved.

As soon as the bill becomes law and the commission has begun to function, it will start valuation of the coal properties of the individual owners. The valuation is to begin Jan. 1, 1939 and is expected to be completed and the owners paid by July 1, 1942. On that date the commission will take full possession of all the coal in Great Britain and from then on the colliery companies will pay their annual coal royalties to the commission. The royalties range from about 10 to 12 cents a ton.

The bill requires the commission to set aside, out of its royalty receipts, a sufficient reserve to cover the cost of its administration and operation and interest and sinking fund charges on its stock issues. When that reserve has been reached, any additional funds may be used for the reduction of royalty payments by the colliery companies. Eventually, it is presumed that the commission will wipe out the debt created to buy out the private coal owners. Then, presumably, it will only charge the colliery companies sufficient royalties to cover its administration costs. When that date will arrive, however, no one in official or private life here is willing to prophesy.

That, in brief, is the most important and sensational part of the coal bill; the nationalization of the coal deposits of the country. What it means to the present private coal owners is that they will give up a total annual income from that property of about $22,150,000 in return for an income (assuming they invest the sum they receive in gilt-edged securities) of roughly $11,628,750. What the country gains, broadly, is greater efficiency and economy in the coal mining industry and the gradual extinction of the royalty charge on the coal mined, which will mean, presumably, cheaper coal for the consumer and better wages for the miners.

The successful operation of the Coal Commission in the next few years will undoubtedly give impetus to the movement in Great Britain toward the nationalization of those goods and services which are considered essential to the public welfare. The nationalization of unmined coal will have followed closely on the nationalization of the wholesale distribution of all the electric power in Great Britain through the Grid System, under control of the Central Electricity Board, and the creation of the London passenger transport monopoly under the control of a "public" company.

In the case of coal, the British have continued to avoid the old orthodox Socialist plan of control and operation by a Government department, with the bureaucratic drawbacks which such a practice is supposed necessarily to involve—the same avoidance shown in the case of London traffic, electricity, and the British Broadcasting Corporation. In fact, it was the British Labor party itself which introduced this method in the case of the London traffic combine. What conservative Laborites and left-wing Conservatives are now saying is that Great Britain will achieve "Socialism without tears."

But though the Labor party supported the principle of the coal bill in the House of Commons it was extremely critical of the bill in detail. It thinks the price to be paid the owners too high, though that is not its chief objection. As regards that point, however, Government authorities point out that the Royal Commission on the Coal Industry in 1925 estimated that $500,000,000 would be a "reasonable" price to pay the coal owners for their property.

In general, the Labor party says that the bill makes the administration of the coal

LaGuardia Discusses Problems Of Increased Purchasing Power And Uniform Working Conditions

New York's Mayor Not Afraid of Amending Constitution to Re-define Property and State Rights.

By SAM J. SHELTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WHEN Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York rode out to the West last week, he did more than visit an old World War comrade in Texas—he showed himself to an influential section of the country at an opportune time. Prosperity may be in the ditch, but 1940 is just around the corner.

He talked national affairs and depression problems in speeches and press interviews in the home State of the Vice-President, in Oklahoma and in St. Louis. His audiences extended beyond state lines and city limits.

Politics being what it is and LaGuardia ranking as a leading progressive, or liberal, the Post-Dispatch asked him for a considered statement of his views on the economic problems of the nation. In a long talk with this reporter, riding with him from St. Louis to Indianapolis as he went back to the worries of the New York City Hall, he stated basic principles of his political philosophy and described in some detail measures he thought should be undertaken for the country's welfare.

Two Fundamental Points.

Taking notice of what many others have said, that purchasing power of the masses will have to be increased, he stated these two fundamental conceptions:

First, that the existing economic system, which is capitalism, can be made to produce a widely distributed prosperity for as long, perhaps, as 50 years;

Second, that the country has become so definitely an economic unit that national regulation of many activities is necessary, including standards of labor, and if the powers of Congress in this direction are not now adequate under reasonable interpretations by the courts, he would favor amending the Constitution to make those powers definite, involving some surrender of states' rights and some limitation of property rights.

Speaking very earnestly, Mayor LaGuardia emphasized the gravity of the present economic crisis. He said the situation was more serious than when the country entered the World War in 1917. This was his deliberate opinion, possibly an under statement, he added, after meditation.

"The patient has been in the hospital for a long time now," he said, "and those who are responsible for its life and welfare have not yet got it out of the receiving room; they don't know what to do, they have not yet got out of the first-aid stage and haven't even made a diagnosis."

What LaGuardia Looks Like.

Although Mayor LaGuardia is 53 years old, he looks younger. His hair is black and wavy, his eyes a deep brown, his face smooth and round. He is short and stocky. As he talked, he lounged in a Pullman compartment seat, puffing a small, polished corncob pipe. Although he answered questions without hesitation, he spoke slowly, choosing his words. Sometimes he wrinkled his brow and worked his lips, or turned his flashing eyes to all corners of the small room as he phrased his views. It was obvious that he had given much study to the matters discussed.

In the lapel of his plain dark sack coat he wore the insignia of an organization of American World War aviators, having served with distinction with the flying forces abroad.

For a parallel to present national danger he went back to the World War; then the nation was united, fighting an enemy far away; we were in no danger of invasion; we had good reason to believe that the side that we threw in with would win; through united effort the military victory was achieved.

With the highest of ideals, President Wilson, he continued, undertook to establish the principles to which he had dedicated the country, but he lacked practical experience in diplomacy. The result is well known and no further comment was needed, he said.

Without a word of direct criticism of the New Deal he asserted that the national administration has failed to diagnose or solve our economic ills.

"I don't believe in name calling," he said. "It is a real lack of knowing what to do; there is nothing vicious about it. It is just bewilderment."

After a moment of deep thought, and with more than the usual deliberateness, he continued: "Democracy needs some of the spirit and philosophy of the Japanese. I mean the willingness to do hara-kiri."

"Do you mean that literally or figuratively?" he was asked. "Both," smiling; and then: "I mean especially the willingness to sacrifice self when one has failed; to step out and let some one who knows how take over the job."

"There ought to be more personal responsibility in our government," he said. "I have a way of blaming politics for everything, but in our party system we have no party responsibility, and no personal responsibility."

Passing the Buck.

He thought democracy was better served by the English system where personal responsibility dictates that a governing ministry that has lost the confidence of the people shall eliminate itself.

It was so convenient here, he added, to find a symbol, a party label, on which to shift the responsibility for failure.

"When conditions are good and we are on the upgrade," he said, "mistakes made in the name of the party in power do not hurt very much and there is no need to single out individuals for personal responsibility. Blunders of success are hardly noticed then, but we get no comfort out of them when we are on the down grade as we are now."

A requirement of recovery under the existing system, he continued, is an expanding economy, "not a curtailed economy, which is artificial."

More production of needed commodities, not less production, should be the goal, he said, so that living standards might be raised; it was absurd to say there was over-production so long as people were living in actual hunger and destitution, and when the normal wants of the great majority were so far short of being supplied at prices the people can pay.

Rejects A A A Idea.

He flatly rejected the restricted farm production policies of the Government's A A A.

"The farmers don't want to be paid for what they do not produce," he declared, "but they do want to be adequately paid for that which they do produce."

Here, in answer to the direct question: How can mass purchasing power be increased? he sketched his ideas, obviously the result of much thought because of the readiness with which he gave them.

First, establish "uniform labor standards throughout the country." This means short hours (just what he did not say), no overtime, abolition of child labor, limitations on employment of women in industry, adequate safety and health standards, an age retirement plan that would keep pensioners from taking jobs that should be filled by persons dependent on wages. But not wages, which he thinks are relative, varying properly according to conditions in localities.

It was his view that with the other factors standardized, employers would not gain substantial advantages in paying wages out of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Found F. D. R.'s Address Confusing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE recent address of the President to Congress on his spending-lending proposals, although evidently sincere, contained so many disputable premises that it is rather confusing than convincing.

He assumed that too many goods were produced in 1929; too few in 1933; just enough in 1937, and again too few in 1938—in spite of his effort to stabilize business by spending, as he expresses it; "giving buying power" to the unemployed, etc. He did not explain to us that he got the buying power he gave away by taxing those who produced it; nor how it can help an industrious man to compel him to support, not only his own family but another's; nor how it can help an employer to pay higher wages than his employes can earn; nor how trade can thrive when one or the other—buyer or seller—must lose by every one of its transactions; nor why an expedient which, tried in 1933, failed, which was again tried and again failed, should be tried over again.

His address suggests the defense of a woman charged with poisoning 12 guests: "I didn't want to poison all of them, but I had to, to get at her."

I. H. LIONBERGER.

One Industry That's Thriving.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH spring bursting into pristine beauty all about us, weary and discouraged men and women turn their eyes to nature and seek comfort of a rare kind. On every side in her kingdom, the greatest employer, nature, has put all hands to work. Night and day, their ceaseless labor goes on. Each morning sees new unfoldment and newer hope. All signs in this industry point to a fulsome year of harvest.

A PLAIN COUNTRY WOMAN.

No Special Punishments.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE impression that the administration is hostile to business, long prevalent, has deepened with the industrial letdown. For this, provocative utterances by administration spokesmen are largely responsible. The psychological effect has been bad.

The experience of the last few months made it clear that we need business in our business. Congress, on its own initiative and by things done, has manifested a determination to be helpful to business. That is as it should be. Every legitimate interest in the United States ought to be able to feel that the Government is its friend.

The Government's job is to promote and conserve the welfare of all the people. That does not mean that the Government should be the tool of business, or the tool of labor, or of any other interest. Special privilege to none is a sound sentiment, and, by the same token, so is special punishment to none.

A Striking Photograph.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the rotogravure section of your April 24 issue is a picture showing the bloody and mangled bodies of child victims of air raids by Fascist bombers. What sort of civilization is this, I ask? Not long ago, a well-known orator, in one of his talks over the air, stated that, if he were forced to choose between Communism and Fascism, he would choose the latter because it is the "lesser" evil. The picture I have just seen is a challenge to his statement.

A. WEISS.

Waste Through Excessive Speed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW we needlessly deplete our natural resources may be read between the lines of a report given out recently by the Illinois State Highway Department. This shows that to satisfy our craving for high-speed automobile travel, nearly twice as much gasoline is used as would be used at a reasonable speed of say 40 miles an hour, a matter which is of national importance when it is considered that it is now imperative to conserve our natural resources.

And this is not all. High speeds not only demand more lubricating oil, but they result proportionately in greater wear and tear on the car, the parts of which also originate in our national resources. And last but not least, more wrecks occur, more people are killed, more lives endangered, all as the result of a vicious and needless human perversion.

Mussolini—Christian Gentleman.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE letter in praise of Stalin, signed "Dohokcindaya," greatly surprised me. Stalin does not deserve to be mentioned in the same breath as Mussolini, who is a far-seeing, civilized Christian gentleman.

CYRIL CLEMENS.

As to Income Tax Exemptions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHY should a nice big slice of taxes be ignored? The taxers are hunting around and even wish to lower exemptions on the income of a lone individual who draws the fabulous amount of $500 per year.

But why overlook the exemption of state employes as to the Federal income tax and Federal employes as to the state income tax?

FAIR PLAY.

SAVE MISSOURI'S SUPREME COURT!

When Gov. Stark, in a dramatic speech before the St. Louis Woman's Club, called upon Missourians to save the State Supreme Court, he made it perfectly clear, although he did not mention names, what he was talking about.

"Today a sinister and ominous shadow is raising its ugly head in an attempt to destroy the sanctity of our highest court—our State Supreme Court—and ultimately to destroy our freedom and our liberties."

What is this sinister and ominous shadow? It is the Pendergast machine. And how does it intend to proceed? By nominating and electing Circuit Judge James V. Billings of Kennett and State Senator Albert M. Clark of Richmond to the seats now occupied by Judge James M. Douglas of St. Louis and Judge William F. Frank of Kirksville.

If the Pendergast machine is successful in this attempt, a majority of the Supreme Court Judges will be men who owe their election, in whole or in part, to Pendergast support.

At present, the balance of power on the court is held by four Judges—Frank, Douglas, Hays and Gantt—who either are under no political debt to the Kansas City machine or whose record in writing opinions has thoroughly demonstrated their judicial independence.

In order to preserve this balance, it will be necessary to turn back Judge Billings and Senator Clark at the August primary. "It is in August," says the Governor, "that the horse is stolen; not in November."

Who are the Pendergast nominees?

Senator Clark is a member of the reactionary group in the State Senate which for years has frustrated efforts to enact progressive legislation. It was he who handled in the Senate the Buford "mystery bill," written in the interest of the utility companies and defeated only after a State-wide outcry. Judge Billings is unknown to fame. He first came to the attention of the State a short time ago when he made a pilgrimage to Kansas City, announcing to the world his purpose of seeking Pendergast support for his candidacy. He had no trouble in obtaining Pendergast's hearty indorsement. In fact, the day before Billings made known his candidacy, Pendergast spokesmen revealed he was their man.

Judge Douglas was appointed to the Supreme Court by Gov. Stark to the vacancy left by Judge Collet's promotion to the Federal bench. As a St. Louis Circuit Judge, as well as a member of the Supreme Court, Judge Douglas has an excellent record.

As yet, no Democrat has filed to contest the candidacy of Senator Clark (Judge Frank is a Republican), but since the Governor has clearly stated the issue, it becomes of high importance that an outstanding member of the bar should make the race against him.

When we say that Judges Frank, Douglas, Hays and Gantt hold the balance of power in the Supreme Court, we have in mind that these Judges are commonly found voting together in cases involving political issues.

The most celebrated of these cases is the one involving the O'Malley compromise of the fire insurance litigation, by which only 20 per cent of the impounded premiums was to be refunded to the policyholders. In this case, a series of decisions has been handed down. These decisions usually have found Frank, Douglas, Hays and Gantt on one side; Leedy, Tipton and Ellison on the other.

It will be recalled that the O'Malley compromise had the blessing of Boss Pendergast. As the Post-Dispatch reported in a news story on Jan. 19, 1937, "There has been no indication that Pendergast's original support of the compromise has been withdrawn. It has been rumored in Jefferson City that his influence has been thrown to the plan even more strongly than before. It is even said that he has tried to exert it in the direction of the Supreme Court itself."

Judge Leedy acted as campaign manager for Francis M. Wilson, who died during the campaign. He later supported the candidacy of Guy B. Park, and was appointed to the Supreme Court by the latter. In the following year, he was elected for a full term with Pendergast support. Judge Tipton was elected in 1932 and was on the Pendergast slate of candidates. Judge Ellison, elected in 1930, likewise had Pendergast support.

It is not to impugn the motives or actions of these three Judges, or, indeed, of Judge Billings or Senator Clark, to say it is against public policy for any judicial candidate to incur political indebtedness to the notorious Pendergast machine. What the result is when that happens is shown in Kansas City, where it has been necessary for the Federal courts, in default of action by Pendergast-controlled prosecutors and Judges, to move against the election thieves.

Of all departments of government, the judiciary, guardian of the liberties of the people, should be most zealously protected against any possible domination. And when a threat to the court comes from a machine whose corruption constitutes a national scandal, Gov. Stark's appeal should rouse the people of Missouri to a crusading pitch.

SPEAKING IN CENTS.

That tax on gasoline of 18 cents a gallon which England has levied brings us head-on against realities. Those are figures we can all understand. When we read of vast armament programs and the enormous expenditures entailed, we are not greatly moved. Few of us can think in billions. But 18 cents a gallon is, in the idiom of the prize ring, a "wallop on the button."

Gen. Sherman will doubtless accept the revision that getting ready for war is hell. And distressing as our difficulties may be in the United States, Americans, as compared with many other peoples, are sitting pretty.

WHY LABOR THE OBVIOUS?

Representative Scott of California has thought up a device whereby the United States would incur the ill will of several nations without receiving any compensating advantage whatsoever. He has introduced a resolution calling on the President to name the Powers which have violated treaties to which they and the United States are signatories, notably the Kellogg Pact. Should this resolution pass, he would follow it with another calling for a semi-official boycott of the treaty-breakers.

The resolution would accomplish nothing except needlessly to stir up antagonism. In the first place, to name the treaty-breakers would be merely to underline the obvious. Everybody knows already who they are. In the second place, a boycott backed by the Government, even unofficially, would be a form of unilateral sanctions. To be effective, sanctions must be participated in by several of the principal Powers, and such a development is not even remotely in the picture. Finally, such a gesture of diplomatic aggressiveness would be entirely unsupported by any desire on the part of the American people to police the world single-handed, by either moral or military force.

The Scott resolution should die quietly and unmourned in committee.

THE MONOPOLY MESSAGE.

Mr. Roosevelt hits at a generally acknowledged evil when he denounces monopolies. What the President said in his Friday message ran something like this:

> A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. It menaces and, if continued, will utterly destroy constitutional government and the liberty of the citizen.
> We favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal laws, as well as the civil laws, against monopolies and trusts and their officials, and we demand the enactment of such additional legislation as is necessary to make it impossible for private monopoly to exist in the United States.
> We will employ the full powers of the Government to the end that monopoly shall be eliminated and that free enterprise shall be fully restored and maintained.

Those are not exactly the President's words. They happen to be the words of the Republican plank on monopolies in the national platform of 1936, on which Gov. Landon ran for the presidency. The plank was put there at the insistence of Senator Borah, who used, if memory serves, substantially the language of an anti-trust plank in a prior Democratic platform.

So we have had the anti-monopoly issue with us for a long time and both parties have agreed that something ought to be done about it. It has been like the weather. The parties have only talked about it. The policy, Senator Borah says, has been one of procrastination by both parties, and he doesn't cherish much hope of effective action as the result of the President's message. It appears to be too late for the passage of any anti-trust legislation at this session, except possibly the Glass bill, which embodies the President's meritorious ideas on bank holding companies, and by the time Congress comes into session again the President probably will have thought up something else for it to chew on.

Mr. Roosevelt's message, though it fades away when it comes down to the discussion of remedies, is a good statement of the evils of over-concentration of private power. It is likewise a good statement of what ought to be a constant policy—the encouragement of free competition, to the end that there may be, as the President says, "a more equitable distribution of income and earnings among the people of the nation as a whole." There can be only approval of that goal, and there ought to be no objection to the study which the President proposes should be made. It might, some day, get us somewhere.

But the President's message would be vastly more impressive if it were not for two things. The first is the fact that the message, coming at this particular time, wears the color of an attempted alibi for the current depression. The President seems to be trying to give the impression that monopolistic practices are to blame for it. And that alibi won't wash, for the simple reason that the business system now is exactly the same as it was during the period of the so-called recovery.

The second fact that detracts from the force of the President's statement is the fact that it represents no consistent policy on the part of the administration. Indeed, it represents a policy sharply at variance with that which lay behind the N R A. The N R A was an aid to monopoly. It carried with it the suspension of the anti-trust laws, and they would be suspended today if the N R A had not been knocked out by the Supreme Court. It was because of the disadvantage to which the N R A subjected little business in relation to big business that the industrial code system was fought so vigorously by Senator Borah and other believers in free competition. Yet the President has never confessed error with respect to the N R A except to say that it tried to do too much; to the contrary, he has more than once indicated that he still believes in its principles.

Mr. Roosevelt at times has favored policies making for concentration and control. Again, as now, he goes out for what has been called the "atomization" of great industries—their break-up into comparatively small units. To this effort to follow two diametrically opposed courses is due a great part of the confusion that has attended his recovery measures.

AN OLD-FASHIONED APRIL.

April spurned her favorite daffodils on one occasion to powder her hair with snowflakes. In freezing hauteur, too, she affected an icy mood. She flooded the honeymoon homes of the birds, and the complimentary greetings of the forsythia, and the lovely overtures of the dogwood and the perfumed salutes of the apple blossoms were all soaked to what seemed a fare-you-well. Such is the impressionist's audit.

But meteorology with its precise, statistical soul reports April followed the groove. She was somewhat dryer than usual. In her adventures she plumbed chillier depths than she is wont to do and now and then her temperature was feverish, but recapitulation says she was orthodox. Question: What would April have to do, or any month, to be condemned by the Weather Bureau as eccentric?

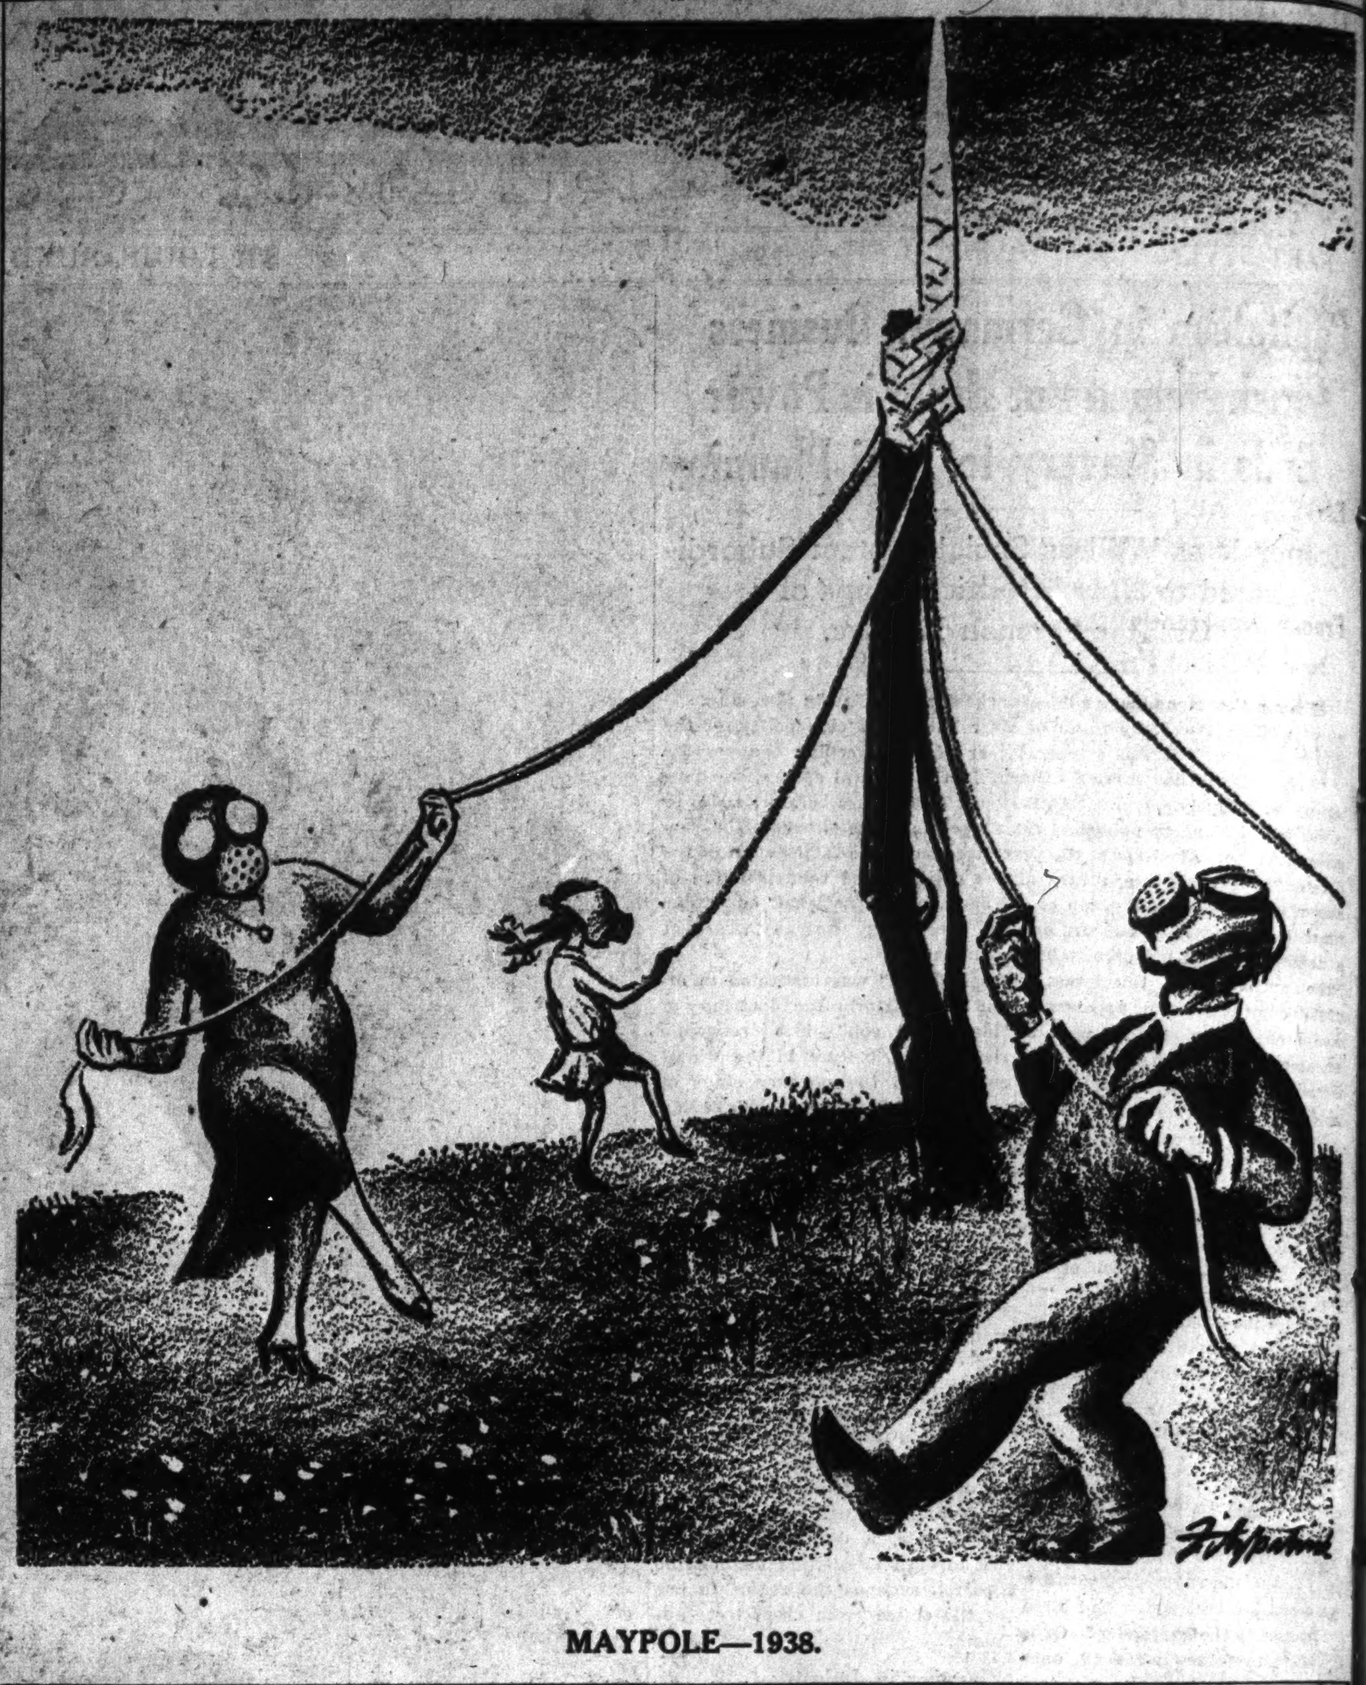
THOSE MAYFLOWER PASSENGERS.

President Roosevelt offended some of the Daughters of the American Revolution when he said in his informal remarks that his forbears and theirs were "immigrants and revolutionaries." One of the daughters tilted her patrician chin to observe that she and her sisters have been taught that their ancestors were pioneers who had come here to establish a good government, not to destroy it.

Girding on the peacemaker's sword, if such a bizarre metaphor is permissible, we venture to say that the daughters have no quarrel with the President. He is right, and they are right. Certainly those early settlers were immigrants. Certainly they were pioneers. Certainly they were fed up with the kind of government they had been getting. And certainly their descendants were revolutionaries when the Spirit of 1776 was writing authentic history.

What did they come here for? Felicia Hemans told us in a poem Young America once used to recite that "they sought a faith's pure shrine."

Right there is an excellent place to leave this incipient row.



MAYPOLE—1938.

The President vs. the Editors

Roosevelt's assumption that popular majorities he has received prove the correctness of his policies is questioned by editorial group; they point out that public opinion may be influenced by the fact that a million persons are on Government payroll and that other groups have been special beneficiaries of administration's policies.

George Morris, Washington Correspondent, in the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

AT their annual convention in Washington, members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors had an "off the record" conference with President Roosevelt. "Off the record" means something you can tell but not print, but if it is printed, you must not say the President said it.

Rumor has it that the President went to the mat with his visitors. He accepted them as being generally hostile, based on the attitude of their papers, which is a matter of more or less public record.

The editors are said to have stood their ground in insisting that their criticism of the administration is sound, and the President was equally definite and positive in asserting that public opinon is back of him. Instead of being a meeting of minds, the session has been described as a conflict of minds.

No doubt a great deal might be said on either side. If those in charge of directing newspaper policies are more or less agreed on the desirability or undesirability of a given policy, the indication is that their opinion is worthy of consideration.

A cross-section of public opinion among any group has significance, and editors are fairly representative of intelligence and integrity. They are not unlike others in some respects. Many are partisans and prejudiced. Some see only the good and others see only the evil in what the administration does. But on the whole, newspapers have less to gain, less to lose and more reason for accurate and unbiased conclusions than any other group.

There are two approaches to the issue between the President and the editors. The majority of the editors held to their conviction based on their own appraisal of questions involved. Probably many of them did not view the issues in which they were in conflict with the President as matters on which they should take a straw vote to decide which side they would take.

Taking the right side without reference to popular opinion is generally regarded as one of the functions of newspaper editors. The President's approach was from the direction of what he believes is majority opinion. If more persons believe in him than agree with his critics, then, from the political approach, the President is right.

A survey of the source of the President's support might disqualify some of his strongest supporters. A juror is supposed to hear the evidence and return a verdict in accordance with the facts. He is not permitted to serve if he has any interest in the case or is prejudiced against either side to the extent that he cannot return an unbiased verdict.

More or less suspicion is aroused when a juror describes himself as so fair-minded that he can lay aside an admitted bias and bring in a fair verdict. In some instances, he has been suspected of attempting to get on the jury.

The supporting sentiment of the President includes a million Government employes. The million on the payroll ought to be counted faithful or get off the payroll. The decision is simple. Then there are three or four members of the immediate family of every person on the payroll, to say nothing of relatives and friends with appreciation.

Anyone on the payroll who doesn't influence a group of voters has no business on the payroll and should make room for someone who has influence. They are picked for their influence in the first place.

There are some 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 heads of families on relief. Assuming they were entitled to relief and were not selected because of political allegiance, they would be guilty of disloyalty if they did not support the President. If they oppose the administration's policies, they should show it by refusing to accept relief as a protest.

Farmers in the midst of receiving benefits from the Government could hardly be expected to be impartial, nor could little business men to whom credit has been extended. Labor would be an ingrate if it did not support the administration's efforts to better its condition.

Considering the source, the editors are not convinced that the President's support, overwhelming as it seems, proves they are wrong. The President is equally convinced that they are wrong because they are a minority.

Abandonment of Railroad Lines

From the Dallas Morning News.

THE plight of American railroads is accented by the announcement that last year unprofitable branch lines totaling 1140 miles were abandoned. These abandonments exceeded by 992 miles the amount of new rail construction during the year. This was the seventh year, and the sixth in succession, in which abandonments have exceeded 1000 miles, according to figures compiled by George E. Boyd, associate editor of Railway Age.

In the last 21 years, American railroads have abandoned more than 20,000 miles of lines, or just about twice the amount of new construction. The largest abandonment in a single year was 1995 miles in 1934. Though most of the early abandonments affected only lines to mines and logging camps, general transportation lines have been torn up in recent years.

Abandonment of some duplicate lines following rail consolidation might result in greater transportation efficiency, but thus far most of the lost traffic has gone to trucks. The total 1937 revenue of American railroads from operations was only 78.9 per cent of that for 1930. Net income from operations was down to 67.9 per cent of that for 1930. Payment of heavy fixed charges brought the net income to the low figure of 18.8 per cent of that for 1930.

This situation makes the railroad problem one of the most serious of those now confronting Congress. The mere lending of more money to the ailing roads will not be enough. There must be consolidations and other changes to enable the carriers to get back on a money-making basis. Unless this is done, abandonments will reach even higher figures.

Disproving an Air-War Theor

From the New York Times.

A GHOST of a theory and of the ma who expounded it haunts the ruins o Spanish towns and the bomb-cratered rubb of Chinese cities these days. For the la Gen. Giulio Douhet, Italian apostle of vi tory by air, died too soon to see his theor written off the books of history by the i domitable spirit of the Madrilenos, by th persevering pertinacity of Chinese coolies.

It was Gen. Douhet's idea that air pow is of supreme importance in modern wa that armies and navies are but compleme tary and minor instruments of fightin power, and that "command of the air should be established and the war won b constant, terrific and unremitting aerial a tacks on the enemy's "vital centers," hi power plants, factories, railroad junctions arsenals, docks, reservoirs and cities.

This was a theory especially attractive t the so-called "totalitarian" states, most o them not equipped to conduct a long war o attrition, but it has met its Waterloo in th Iberian Peninsula and in the vast heart o China.

For in the first place, as Majors Dupre and Eliot have pointed out in their book "If War Comes," there is no such thin as "command of the air." One side ma have overwhelming air superiority, as th Japanese have in China and as the insur gents generally have had in Spain. B they do not "command" the air; by attack upon enemy cities and "vital centers," the expose their own cities and "vital center to retaliatory attacks which man does n know how to prevent completely.

In the second place, Gen. Douhet wou seem to have vastly overrated the pote tialities of the bombing plane and to hav underrated the stoic accommodation o civilian populations to suffering and terr and death. And in the third place, iro ically enough, the greatest results in Spai and in China have been achieved by th plane, not when it attacked targets behin the lines, but when it attacked troops.

To the irrefutable facts that Madrid ha long held out under incessant bombing that trains still roll across the bomb-pitte roadbed of the Lunghai railroad, Douhet en thusiasts will reply that no large-scale, com plete, pitiless test of the theory has bee made, either in Spain or in the East. Thi is true; but although no really first-class ai Powers have been operating either in Spai or in the Far East, conditions on a smal scale are roughly similar to what might b expected on a larger scale.

No doubt the Douhet theory will persi and flourish; its wings of terror will broo above our cynical civilization for years t come. But to those of objective mind an military experience, Spain and China canno but show its fallacy. That forlorn an hopeless ghost of Douhet must wander no disconsolate, aghast at the death and de struction a theory has done so much t cause, without even the cold comfort o knowing that the theory was right.

England Insists on Limit of 42,000 Tons, but This Country Opposes Setting of Any Figure.

France Apparently Intends to Hold Aloof From Consultations Between Other Two Powers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Consultations between the United States and Great Britain on the size of the new super-battleships which each will build have reached a deadlock, officials said today. Britain insists on a size and limit of 42,000 tons, but the United States continues to insist that, in the present state of uncertainty of Japan's intentions, no limit at all should be set.

The United States, as testified to before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, wants battleships of 45,000 tons each, but has not yet formally informed Britain of this fact.

The United States' consultants, Herschel V. Johnson, counselor of the London Embassy, and Capt. Russell Willson, naval attache, met once with the British following the formal announcement by both countries, dated March 31, of their intention to invoke the "escalator" clause in the London Naval Treaty of 1936 and build battleships bigger than the 35,000 tons which the treaty allowed. That meeting disclosed a complete disagreement.

The British are now awaiting the receipt of further instructions from Washington to the United States consultants before meeting with them again.

The question is under discussion here, but there is no indication of any change of attitude.

Britain wants battleships limited to 42,000 tons because that is the size Britain can build most effectively. Britain's largest battleship, the Hood, is just over 42,000 tons. Moreover, Britain prefers 14-inch guns to 16-inchers.

Naval engineers here say the 14-inch British guns are superior to the American 14-inch guns, while the American 16-inch guns are superior to the 16-inch guns of the British.

France apparently intends to hold aloof from further consultations between the United States and Britain. France formally stated March 31 that it would not build battleships bigger than 35,000 tons unless some other continental European Power did so, but France acknowledges the right of the United States and Britain to build larger ships.

REPORT ON CANCER SURVEY IN MIDWEST

Only 41 Cities in 13 States Found to Have Adequate Hospital Facilities.

Although deaths from cancer in 13 Midwestern states, including Missouri and Illinois, increased 13 per cent between 1930 and 1934 and still are increasing, only 41 cities in the entire area have kept pace with the disease by providing adequate hospital facilities.

This statement summarizes the report made on a survey by the Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital to the Women's Field Army of the American Society for Control of Cancer. In commenting on the survey, Alfred Fairbank, president of the hospital, said only 13 of the 41 cities have approved clinics for the treatment of indigent victims of cancer.

The states, Fairbank said, comprise an area of approximately 900,000 square miles, with a population of nearly 43,000,000. The average throughout the district, he asserted, was one city with a hospital meeting minimum standards for cancer treatment to each 21,000 square miles, and one city with a free clinic to each 66,000 square miles.

In Missouri, the survey showed, there are five hospitals with adequate cancer facilities, but fewer than 40 beds are reserved by those institutions for cancer patints. Only Kansas City and St. Louis have approved free clinics.

More deaths, or about 47 per cent of the total, were caused by cancer of the digestive tract and peritoneum than byb any other type of the disease, the report stated. Little difference was noted in occurrence of the disease in cities and rural areas. The only type for which the death rate did not increase in the four-year period was cancer of the skin.

"Although the paucity of cancer treatment facilities in the Midwest is shocking," Fairbank declared, "there are hopeful signs. Certainly we know by now that a great many cancer cases can be cured, if we make the facilities for treatment available. Records of Barnard Hospital show a great many more cures today than 20 years ago, some of them in cases which once would have been considered hopeless."

GOV. HORNER RECEIVES REPORT ON RELIEF, UNEMPLOYMENT

Business Men's Advisory Board Outlines Results of Eight-Month Survey.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 30.—Gov. Horner received from his business men's advisory board on relief and unemployment today a report covering its eight-month survey of public assistance agencies in Illinois.

Walter Gregory of Chicago, chairman, declined to make the report public but said it "deals with the integration of all relief services." He added the report was not concerned with recent relief fraud investigations, but dealt rather with broad phases of administering relief through old age and mothers' pensions, and aid to the blind and dependent children as well as direct relief. He said it covered overlapping functions of these agencies.

He left public announcement of the report and its recommendations to the Governor.

In a recent preliminary report confined to Chicago relief administration, the council said a test survey of 2000 relief cases showed about 5 per cent were not entitled to relief.

La Guardia Discusses Purchasing Power Problem

line with adequate living standards, that "cheap labor" would be so inefficient as to give no competitive advantage.

These measures should provide jobs for several millions at once, he said, adding their families to the consuming public able to buy something more than the barest necessaries.

Willing to Amend.

He thought that under interpretations of the Interstate Commerce clause of the Constitution as now established by the Supreme Court, Congress has the power to apply these standards nationally to a large part of industry; but there is a great mass of purely local industry and trade that could not be reached under the prevailing interpretations and rather than resorting to "legalistic fictions," "legal hypocrisy," to try to stretch the Constitution by cleverly worded statutes to cover it, he would prefer openly and honestly amending the Constitution.

This would require some surrender of states' rights, to which he could see no valid objections since the states are so nearly a social and economic unit, and some clarification of property rights. As to the latter, he thought the guarantees of property rights in the fifth and fourteenth amendments had been distorted for the benefit of corporations, but at the same time have not served to actually protect owners from a great deal of legislative impairment of rights over their property. He thought it would be better protection for property, for its rights, though limited, to be defined and recognized rather than to be surrounded by "legal hyocrisies."

Foreign Markets.

Second in LaGuardia's program for increasing purchasing power was the recapture of foreign markets for our agricultural and manufactured products, especially in South America. He thought policies of the present administration had enabled Japan and European nations to supply much of the market in South America that should be supplied by the United States.

Instead of curtailing agricultural production, he would have the Government guarantee producers against loss on that part in excess of domestic requirements, exchanging the product with other nations for commodities not produced here.

Although this would be in fact a form of subsidy, he thought the net cost to the country would be much less than is now being spent to take c e of the unemployed.

Ways to Increase Buying Powere.

These were his fundamental suggestions for increasing employment and purchasing power.

It is well known that he is a strong advocate of organized labor and would like to see peace between the A. F. of L. and the C I O.

He pointed out that he disagrees with some of those with whom he is associated in liberal political movements in regard to "big business."

"I am not opposed to large entities," he said. "In our complex economic system and with the vast extent of our country, we have to have large business organizations. But they must be regulated and controlled."

He took occasion to state his disbelief in a currently promoted theory that "decentralization" of industry—moving it in small units into rural areas—would improve conditions. He saw in it another way of taking advantage of and disorganizing labor. Under the guise of "training" workers, he said, these industries often procured labor at absurdly low wages; he knew of cases where as little as $2 or $3 a week was paid.

La Follette's New Party.

The La Follette new Progressive party movement was mentioned by the interviewer. LaGuardia showed that he was interested in it and following it very closely, but did not commit himself to it.

He said he did not care much for party labels, remarking that he went to Congress from New York City as a Republican, not because he was a party man but because he hated Tammany, and the Republican party at that time and place provided the best opportunity to fight Tamany. His political independence was well understood by the Republicans in Congress, he said, and he was never asked to line up as a party man. He made it equally clear that although he supported Roosevelt for President he is not to be considered a Democrat or a New Deal adherent.

Denies Political Ambitions.

When 1940 and presidential possibilities were mentioned, he disclaimed any political ambitions, saying he had had 35 years of public life and that was enough. The interviewer got the impression, however, that he would not decline a presidential nomination on a platform that met with his approval, and that it would not make any difference to him what party label was stamped on that platform. He speculated on the possibility that 1940 might find many reactionary Republicans joining with conservative Democrats to control the Democratic party.

Speaking of liberals, he wished it understood that he could distinguish between the real and the sham; the first were ready to take a licking for principle and the latter grasped at opportunism for the sake of keeping in office.

Opposes Wasteful Spending.

Government spending might help in present conditions, he said, but it could not possibly go far enough. He objected to wasteful spending, to the pouring out o. money just for the sake of getting it in circulation when those who received it were not doing productive work. All W P A work should be productive, he said. There are more than 145,000 W P A workers in New York City and he said all but a few were doing useful work. An exception is the white-collar group engaged in what he called "literary leaf raking."

"But we can't let them starve," he added.

Government spending is a fact and cannot be stopped suddenly, he said.

Speaking of the country's plight in general and of the gravity of the present crisis, he said that despite his seeming pessimism he was hopeful that the "country would be saved."

All his suggestions were based on the assumption of continuing the present economic system of capitalism. It was on that basis that he mentioned 50 years for the possible continuation of normally prosperous conditions under the adjustments that he proposed.

He deplored the lack of understanding by some of the "best minds" of the country. He had found the best understanding of the country's plight and needs among "young labor and big business." Those with least understanding were the "politicians, brokers, absentee landlords and the economically ignorant."

'Y' NATIONAL COUNCIL SESSIONS THIS WEEK

Meetings Here Four Days to Be Followed by General Secretaries' Conference.

The National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association, representing 1178 associations in the United Sates and Hawaii and a membership of 2,000,000, will meet Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Hotel Jefferson. The meeting will be followed by a three-day conference of the Y. M. C. A. General Secretaries' Association.

About 500 men, including outstanding lay and staff leaders of "Y" activities, are expected to attend the meetings. The sessions will be presided over by Judge Eskil C. Carlson, Des Moines, Ia., president; Cleveland E. Dodge, New York, chairman of the International Board, and William E. Speers, New York, chairman of the National Board.

The council and secretaries will discuss a projected national expansion program, the religious aspects of the "Y" program, current and national affairs, a world service program and local membership practices. Major addresses will be delivered by Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dr. Leslie Hill, president of State Teachers' College, Cheyney, Pa., and Dr. Rolland W. Schleerb, pastor of the Hyde Park Baptist Church, Chicago.

The conferences were called by John E. Manley, New York, national general secretary of the "Y," who wrote council members that "continued unemployment of young people, the confusion that characterizes average thinking, and the deep moral and spiritual needs of our times," were matters of utmost importance to be considered by the council.

COTTON CONSUMPTION SAID TO BE AT OR PAST ZENITH

Dr. Murchison, Head of Institute, Gives His Opinion to Manufacturers.

By the Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 30. — Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, told the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association today "Unless all signs are misleading, world consumption of cotton appears to have reached or passed its zenith."

Dr. Murchison, addressing the association's convention, said "Cotton is caught between the upper and nether millstones of rayon and paper with jute mopping up on the side."

Dr. Murchison suggested a three-point program for the cotton textile industry:

Scientific laboratory experimentation aimed at development of new fabric qualities and finishes, and the application of existing fabrics to new uses.

Improvement in merchandising, particularly those products used for apparel purposes and for household furnishings.

More effective effort in directing public attention to the values of cotton products.

EVANGELICAL CHURCH BUILT IN 1863, TO MARK EVENT

75th Anniversary to Be Observed With Special Services at St. Peter's.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the construction of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church, built during the Civil War on Riverview drive in Columbia Bottoms, will be observed next week. The congregation was organized in 1861 and the church of rock quarried nearby, was erected two years later.

The Rev. C. E. Hoeh of Kirkwood will speak at services at 10:30 a. m. next Sunday and a meeting at 3:30 p. m., to be addressed by the Rev. Richard C. Jahn of Chattanooga, Tenn., will be followed by a dinner by the Ladies' Aid Society. Meetings at 8 p. m. during the week will be addressed by the following speakers: Monday, the Rev. E. C. Kuehnert, Chicago; Tuesday, the Rev. C. W. Callies, Jackson, Tenn.; Wednesday, Prof. W. G. Polack, Concordia Seminary; Thursday, the Rev. H. Maack, St. Louis, and Friday, the Rev. R. Kassebaum, St. Louis.

Besides the pastor, the Rev. William Hepting, the Anniversary Committee is composed of Frank Toelle, Clarence Luecke and Arthur Rosenkoetter.

GOERING'S PAPER THINKS U. S. IS BEHIND BRAZILIAN DECREE

Terms Order Against Foreign Political Organizations "An Unfriendly Act."

BERLIN, April 30.—Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's mouthpiece, the National Zeitung of Essen, today termed the Brazilian order against foreign organizations of political character "an unfriendly act" and intimated the United States was behind it.

"For the first time we feel the long friendship between Brazil and Germany has developed a rift," the newspaper said of the decree promulgated April 19 by President Getulio Vargas. We cannot understand this for it is hardly imaginable this measure could in any way serve Brazilian interests. What we can well imagine is that 'the Big Brother' (meaning the United States) to whom the mere thought of increased European interest in South America is a nightmare, will rejoice."

After asking whether the idea for the decree originated within or outside Brazil, the newspaper said, "we shall have our own suspicions on the subject."

England Is Nationalizing Coal Industry by Purchase

property more difficult. It contends that the Coal Commission should own the surface of the land concerned as well as the coal beneath it and that the commission should also have the power to engage in coal mining, which is prohibited by the bill.

Labor leaders assert that the commission should have much more drastic powers of compelling the amalgamation of colliery companies than those given in the bill, and the power, also, to regulate miners' wages and working conditions, and methods of mining. These conditions, they say, the commission should have the power to write into the future mining leases they will grant colliery companies. Furthermore, Labor wants the miners' pay made a first charge upon the income of colliery companies. It would also like to see the Coal Commission have the power to take the initiative in utilizing the by-products of coal. Finally, Labor wants to see the miners directly represented on the boards of management of colliery companies. However, all of these powers may be conferred by future acts of Parliament.

Nationalization a Party Issue.

Though the Labor party took the initiative years ago in demanding the nationalization of coal, the Conservative party finally came to look upon that mineral as such an essential national asset, from the standpoint of industrial efficiency, employment, defense and the needs of the consumer, that it put a nationalization plank in its general election program of 1935.

A Government coal commission of inquiry in 1919 disagreed on almost everything else save the necessity of unifying coal royalties. Another official coal commission in 1926 came to the same conclusion, not only because it would have the psychological effect of satisfying a long-standing grievance of a large section of the population, but because it held that individual ownership of coal was inconsistent with economical mining. A couple of years ago, David Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister, included the nationalization of coal in a "New Deal" program which he presented to the British Cabinet.

Lord Gainsford, an important colliery owner, speaking on behalf of the coal owners in 1934, urged nationalization in the following words: "The antiquated provisions in many of the royalty leases ought no longer to exist, as they prevent the working of coal underground to the best advantage. Possibly it would be better if royalties were nationalized, or at any rate in the hands of one body, by whom the best terms could be given so as to secure the best underground working conditions and the most economical production."

These and numerous other opinions from non-Labor authorities in favor of the nationalization of coal finally made the Conservative Government take action. The political pressure of Labor was also a considerable factor in its decision. And finally, the Conservatives followed their usual philosophy of saying "it isn't Socialism if we do it."

How Amalgamation May Come.

The coal bill contains two further sections, in addition to that nationalizing coal. The Coal Commission is empowered to request colliery companies to amalgamate when it considers such action necessary in the interests of efficiency and economy of mining and marketing the mineral. If such amalgamations are not made voluntarily, the commission may then recommend to the Board of Trade that such action be taken. The board may then lay a report before the House of Commons recommending such amalgamations and make a provisional order requiring the colliery companies to act. If Parliament confirms the order, either with or without modifications, the order becomes law and goes into effect.

Finally, the bill extends certain provisions of the coal mines act of 1930. That act required the colliery companies in the respective mining districts into which the country is divided to organize a central selling agency in each district. The purpose of this requirement was to prevent cut-throat price-cutting competition between the individual coal mining companies which had been demoralizing the finances of the companies and depressing the miners' wages.

In return for this power of what amounted to district price-fixing, the colliery companies made agreements with the district miners' unions whereunder, after certain agreed items operating expenses had been charged against the companies' gross revenues, the remainder was to be split between profit to the companies and wages for the miners in the ratio, roughly, of from 85 per cent for wages to 15 per cent for the company, to 87 per cent for wages and 13 per cent to the company, according to the district involved.

Coal Commission, How Chosen.

The five members of the Coal Commission, who will be appointed by the Board of Trade, will serve from 5 to 10 years. They may not be members of Parliament or officers or employes of any organization of employers or workers in the coal mining industry, practicing mining engineers, or be directly connected in any manner with the industry. They may not own any securities or have any financial interest in any business of coal mining, coal selling, or the manufacture of coal mining, coal selling, or the manufacture of coal by-products or coal mining machinery or plant.

The Commission will appoint its own staff. It will be subject to the general direction of the Board of Trade in relation to matters affecting the national interest and, in particular, the safety of coal mines. This means that Parliament, though its power of voting the annual appropriation for the Board of Trade, will have a hold on the general national policies of the Commission. But in the day-to-day conduct of its business, such as the work of granting of its business, such as the work of granting new leases to mining companies or amending existing ones, the Commission will be independent.

Although the Commission may not engage in the business of coal mining, it may prospect and do boring in a search for new coal mines.

Subject to Income Tax.

Incidentally, the Commission will have to pay income tax on its revenue from coal mining royalties, just as the private coal owners now have to pay tax on such income. This requirement may have an important aspect should the Commission later be empowered to engage in mining, as then it would probably have to pay income tax on the profits from such business.

The significance of this taxation will be realized when it is recalled that one of the chief complaints of private electric power companies in the United States against "unfair" Government competition in their field is that the Government power authorities do not have to pay any taxes.

It must be kept in mind also that "the last word of Parliament is the law" there being no written constitution to restrict its legislative power or Supreme Court to invalidate its acts.

DATES ANNOUNCED FOR SOME OF FUND-RAISING DRIVES

Charities Bureau of Chamber of Commerce Asks Agencies to Avoid Overlapping.

Dates on which the fund-raising campaigns of various civic and charitable agencies will be held this year were announced yesterday by the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, which asked the agencies to avoid overlapping in their campaigns if possible.

Following are the dates of some of the campaigns: Jewish Welfare Fund, May 8 to 20; Salvation Army, Sept. 27 to Oct. 8; Central Institute for the Deaf, Oct. 11 to 22; Y. M. C. A., Oct. 11 to 23; United Charities, Nov. 1 to 20; and Tuberculosis and Health Society, Nov. 23 to Dec. 5.

The drives of the Y. W. C. A. and the Goodwill Industries are now in progress. Other organizations have not selected their dates. The bureau will publish a pamphlet in June listing all of the local charities which it regards as worthy of support.

CHINA RENEWS EFFORT TO STOP BUDDHIST RELIGIOUS SUICIDES

Pilgrims Looking Down From Sacred Mountains at Own Shadows in Clouds See "Buddha."

By the Associated Press.

CHENGTU, Szechwan, China, April 30.—With the coming of spring and the season of pilgrimages, the Government is making a renewed effort to prevent religious suicides at the top of Mount Omei, most famous of the five sacred Buddhist mountains of China.

Conducive to suicide, it is explained, is the astonishing phenomenon by which pilgirms, looking down on the clouds from a plateau of the 11,000-foot mountain, see the image of Buddha surrounded by an iridescent rainbow. Unaware that what they see is the shadow of themselves, a number of pilgrims, believing that Buddha himself has come to welcome them to Nirvana, throw themselves over the edge of the plateau in a transport of joy.

FITZPATRICK'S WORK TO BE SHOWN IN RUSSIA

30 Cartoons to Be Exhibited at Moscow's Museum of Modern Western Art.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOSCOW, April 28.—Thirty cartoons drawn by D. R. Fitzpatrick of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch will be shown here at the Museum of Modern Western Art, probably next month. The opening date is still uncertain because of the necessity of prepa ing a brief explanatory text for the Soviet public explaining topical American allusions, but probably it will be May 1.

The subjects include workers, machinery and political caricature. The exhibit was arranged eight months ago by the Moscow Union of Soviet Painters directly with Fitzpatrick, who was visiting the Soviet Union.

The Museum of Modern Western Art is a former aristocrat's palace, now used for the permanent exhibit of one of the world's greatest collections of French post-impressionist paintings and for occasional special showings.

ARCHITECTURAL FELLOWSHIP TO FREDERICK C. STERNBERG

James Harrison Steedman Award Given for Military Airport Design.

The twelfth annual James Harrison Steedman memorial fellowship in architecture, providing $1500 for a year of travel and study in Europe, was awarded yesterday to Frederick C. Sternberg, practicing architect.

Sternberg's design for a Pacific Coast military airport was selected by a jury of Eastern architects and engineers from five submitted in the final phase of the competition. Twenty architectural school graduates were entered originally in the contest, conducted by the Washington University School of Architecture.

The winner, partner in the firm of Reither & Sternberg, with offices at 3548 South Grand boulevard, was graduated from Washington University with a master's degree in architecture in 1933. He is 27 years old, unmarried and resides at 4461 Olive street.

JEWISH SOCIETY'S ANNIVERSARY

Chesed Shel Emeth 50 Years Old; Dinner This Evening.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Chesed Shel Emeth Society, largest orthodox Jewish organization in St. Louis, will be celebrated with a dinner at the Jewish Orthodox Old Folks' Home, East Grand and Blair avenues, this evening. Rabbi H. F. Epstein will deliver the chief address.

The society was formed in the spring of 1888 by refugees from Russian pogroms for the purpose of organizing a strictly orthodox cemetery. The society has expanded its activities to include all Jewish communal affairs and aid to Jews in foreign countries.

Mrs. Ella Lord Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Lord, 75 years old, 124 North Harrison avenue, Kirkwood, who died Friday of pneumonia at Barnes Hospital, were held yesterday at Kirkwood Methodist Church, 345 Clay avenue. Burial will be at Thayer, Mo., Mrs. Lord's former home. She was the wife of the Rev. Thomas Lord, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who preached for 44 years in Southeast Missouri before retiring in 1927. Also surviving are a brother and two step-daughters.

THE FAR EASTERN CONFLICT

WAR IN CHINA. By Varian Fry. Maps and Charts by Henry Adams Grant. (Foreign Policy Association, New York.)

THE INVASION OF CHINA BY THE WESTERN WORLD. By E. R. Hughes. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

BOTH these books, though differing considerably in approach, are timely and useful for the background material they present on the Far Eastern conflict. The first named, written for this particular purpose, deals with the war itself and the events that brought it about. The other does not even mention the war, having been written before it began, but gives a detailed account of China's reaction to Western ideas that helps explain the country's present position.

The Foreign Policy Association has for some time been publishing a series called Headline Books, written in simple, concise language that brings a new clarity to complex matters. The subjects treated are various phases of world affairs, particularly those in which this country is concerned. This book is the latest of the series, and marks the adoption of a new and more convenient format. . trade edition is being issued, by Modern Age Books.

The writer, Varian Fry, former editor of the Living Age, begins with the Manchu Empire and tells the tragic story of China, in broad outline, down to the immediate present. Essential facts as to trade and production are included, and the book is illustrated by a set of excellent maps and charts. The book concludes with an illuminating and impartial chapter on America's role in the present crisis, in which the writer discusses the various possible courses of action: sanctions, force, collective action, and isolation.

The author of the second book is reader in Chinese religion and philosophy at Oxford, and has had considerable personal experience in China. His is a work of scholarship, the eighth of the Pioneer Histories series. The writer's chief concern is with the cultural phase of China's evolution rather than with political developments, which are presented in the first chapter as a frame of reference for material that follows. The other chapters treat of the various Western influences that have altered the face of old China: the church, political philosophy, education, science, medicine, and literature.

These, the writer considers, have not been unmixed blessings in past Chinese history. Too often they were thrust upon China with force and violence by men of various motives, and too often the reaction was anti-foreign agitation, in which the Chinese used their own forms of force and violence. Neither side, Mr. Hughes thinks, did justice to its best traditions.

But the foreigners of character—consuls, business men, missionaries, and teachers—found a response in progressive-minded Chinese of all classes, until today China is adapting for itself the best of Western culture. In conclusion, the book notes the resultant growth of the new unity which is making itself felt today in the face of national disaster.

Mistaken Love Bred Evil

RACHEL'S CHILDREN. By Harriet Hassell. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

RACHEL IBSELL reached her sixtieth year with little but bitterness and disappointment in her heart. Of all her sons, the fruit of three marriages, only Jahn seemed worthy of her love or even her respect. James was a snivelling hypocrite who beat his puny wife; Henric was heartless and calculating; Zach a weakling haunted by his own inadequacies and superstitions. Rachel's love for Jahn was strong, but it was also jealous and possessive. Jahn had foresworn an education in order to manage the farm for his mother, while the other boys insisted upon every advantage their mother could afford. Rachel persuaded Jahn that he should allow her to deed him the farm's remaining 800 acres, stipulating only that he never leave her. James and Henric, though they had wasted gifts of money and land from their mother, were enraged at her bequest to Jahn, and plotted to invalidate it.

When Jahn brought Sue Hart home as his wife, Rachel felt that he had broken his promise to stay with her. She regarded him as lost to a "painted, red-fingered flippet" and fled the house, taking all the furniture with her. This situation was immediately seized upon by the avaricious brothers; they convinced Rachel that she should take legal steps to repossess her land. The mother, caught in a relentless web of circumstances, endured the agony of seeing her only beloved son made the prey of his jackal relatives. When she tried to halt the forces her consuming jealousy had set in motion, it was too late. She knew humiliation, despair, and defeat before madness and death released her.

Miss Hassell's first novel gets under way a bit slowly, and there are passages too heavily embroidered with rhetoric. Some of her Southern neurotics are suggestive of a wedding of the styles of William Faulkner and Mazo de la Roche, and the conversation of characters is frequently bookish and eloquent—to use the word with its derogatory connotation. Nevertheless, the patient reader who perseveres to the end will be richly rewarded and should be willing to forgive the novel's faults. Rachel Ibsell is powerfully represented as a woman of savage splendor. The macabre madhouse scene is of an arresting and compelling quality seldom encountered in American fiction.

Serious and Comic Sea Stories

THE SEALERS. By Peter Tutein. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

FIFTY SOUTH TO FIFTY SOUTH. By Warwick M. Tompkins. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York.)

BOWLEG BILL. By Jeremiah Digges. (The Viking Press. New York.)

WITH the skipper's profane urgings lost in the shrieking of the gale, Peter Tutein, young Danish author of "The Sealers," races along with his comrades over the tossing floes of the Arctic. Sometimes their legs sink into the mush ice; sometimes they nearly fall into the sea. For hours, as long as a seal can be found, the back-breaking, bloody toil of killing and flaying goes on. The men who do it are Scandinavians with the strength of horses. When they're ashore they indulge in Gargantuan revels that include such games as seeing who can down six tankards of beer first. But in the fo'c's'le, with the ice grinding, they're likely to shed tears of homesickness when someone plays "Traumerei" on violin or harmonica. Tutein, in direct, unadorned style, presents the life of the hardy seal-hunters with all its adventure and all its brutality.

Warwick M. Tompkins' "Fifty South to Fifty South" describes the remarkable westward voyage of the 85-foot schooner yacht, Wander Bird, around Cape Horn. The crew of 10 included the author's wife and two small children. Against gale and hurricane, adverse currents and dead calms, the 57-year-old ship finally made her way from Gloucester, Mass., to San Francisco. Tompkins is a real seaman and tells his story in straightforward and stirring manner.

A folk hero of Paul Bunyan caliber has been discovered by Jeremiah Digges, author of "Bowleg Bill, the Sea-Going Cowboy." Digges combed the Cape Cod region for material, and as a result we have the salt water rodeo in which the shanghaied cowpuncher turns the tables on the evil seamen, rides herd on the mackerel, lassos mermaids, doses the devil with horse medicine, and converses with the sea serpent on a matter of morals. There's a laugh on almost every one of the 180 pages.

Tale of Ancient Egypt

WINGED PHARAOH. By Joan Grant. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

LONG before the rise of the Greek world, Sekeeta ruled Egypt with her brother Neya. Together they constituted Pharaoh, and held the Crook and the Flail. Sekeeta was also a priestess, a seer, a winged one of Horus. When asleep, she could leave her body and wander through the past, through the world of her own day and through the place of the dead. Above all, she was wise in her judgments and had supernatural powers of foresight.

In "Winged Pharaoh," Sekeeta tells her own story, from before her birth at the time when the gods decreed she must again return to earth to work out her destiny, to her death 53 years later, when she found herself once more in the Light with loved ones who had gone before and who were to know together some eons of joy before new incarnations should be decided for them.

Joan Grant draws upon Egyptian history, religion, and legend to make her novel a living, beautiful work. Here the familiar, conventionalized picture of the ancient African kingdom is transformed by the introduction of the third dimension, and acquires warmth and depth.

Here also are the gods of the Nile region: Ptah, Horus, Anubis, Thoth, and the baleful Set. Certain other outmoded divinities—Zeus, Artemis and Poseidon—better known to the average person of today, make hurried bows, only to be brushed aside with good-natured ridicule tempered with tolerance. The reader takes a trip through the region of "The Book of the Dead," and is confronted with an unqualified belief in reincarnation.

"Winged Pharaoh" is a delightful novel which will appeal particularly to those who know Egyptian mythology. It opens up an enchanting new field of fiction.

First Appearance In English

MEMORY OF YOUTH. By Vilhelm Moberg. (Simon & Schuster, New York.)

"FREEDOM," wrote Herman Spector, "is a girl with tangled hair, throwing kisses from a necessary distance. . . ."

Knut Toring's childhood and youth were a constant struggle for freedom. Freedom from the heavy-handed discipline of the grown-ups; from the fear of death and the lurking Devil; from the backwardness and shyness of social inexperience; from the tyranny of the land; from the poverty, ignorance, and prejudice of village life.

Because Knut Toring was stronger than most men, he broke the chains. At thirty-five he was editor of a leading magazine, owner of a comfortable income, possessor of a handsome wife and two sturdy children. But his triumphs had the bitter taste of ashes, for in his success he had forged new chains—the slavery to routine, the deadening grind of a hack job, the responsibility of an unloved family and social position, the hard unfriendliness of the city; and in the transition he had lost the compensations of the country, the closeness to the soil and to growing things that he loved.

So Knut Toring, at 35, sat clutching his desk piled with manuscripts, thinking of his past life, trying not to scream as he felt himself cracking.

The story of Knut Toring will make up a trilogy of which "Memory of Youth" is the first volume. The author, Vilhelm Moberg, is well known in his native Sweden, having written five previous novels, two successful plays, and the book for an operetta; but this is his first appearance in English.

American readers who have thought of Sweden as a sort of near-Utopia, in which fear, envy, and similar social evils are being exterminated, may be surprised to find that the fundamental elements of human tragedy are present there as everywhere else. Miborg has written of them simply, feelingly, with profound understanding and sympathy.

A Fed-Up Star's Romance

ESCAPE TO THE ANDES. By Rupert Croft-Cooke. (Julian Messner, Inc., New York.)

IF a Hollywood producer were willing to accept Mr. Croft-Cooke's conclusion, he could make out of this book a better picture than "Lost Horizon." In the movie version of James Hilton's tale, the philosophy became almost farcical, and the screen improvements on th love-theme and the battle against the snows of the Himalayas had to atone for the travesty. But in "Escape to the Andes," the love-affair of Rey Landel, the movie star, and Sancha, the village lass of Corenil, is central; and the portraits of Corenil's worthy citizens would give every element of background necessary for interest.

Jose, the inn-keeper, has killed his wife and is afraid the law will catch up with him. Old Alcaya, the Indian of the pampas, has a grudge against Rey as a gringo interloper. Hector Garcia has had his boasting spiked by the mere presence of the Englishman, and wants his old place of pride in the village. Mauricio, once Sancha's lover, hates Rey bcause he has gained the girl's affections. With these four figures alone, a movie would be successful.

In addition to Rey himself, the idolized star, who flees to the Andes from fan-worship and the artificiality of acting, we have Sancha, an earthy, if attractive, counterpart of W. H. Hudson's Rima in "Green Mansions"; Father Ferrer, the priest, who controls the village with good counsel; and the crazy mother of Sancha, who saves Rey from the mountain. What philosophy is in the story would not trouble a producer, because it is on the surface; and he would find incidents in plenty.

Mr. Croft-Cooke has told his story simply, and with authenticity enough to call up a romantic yearning in the reader, all the way from the title to the disastrous end.

—Alexander M. Buchan.

One-Act Dramas

CONTEMPORARY ONE-ACT PLAYS. Edited and Selected by William Kozlenko. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

REVIVED popularity of the one-act play, which has given a new turn to the American theater, is due not only to Noel Coward's delightful cycle, "Tonight at 8:30," but to radio drama, to the Left Wing theater, and especially to William Kozlenko, who edits the One-Act Play Magazine and is engaged in building up a one-act play repertory theater in New York.

His collection of representative short dramas reveals the fact that the one-act play, as now constituted, has gone far beyond the neat plots of the past. He makes three classifications—radio plays, folk plays, and social plays.

Nothing here shows the dramatic skill that Eugene O'Neill exhibited in his earlier career, but there is great variety of scene, character, and attitude. The most forceful play, many will agree, is Langston Hughes' six-page "Soul Gone Home," in which the noted Negro author draws a picture of the misery of his race in the big cities.

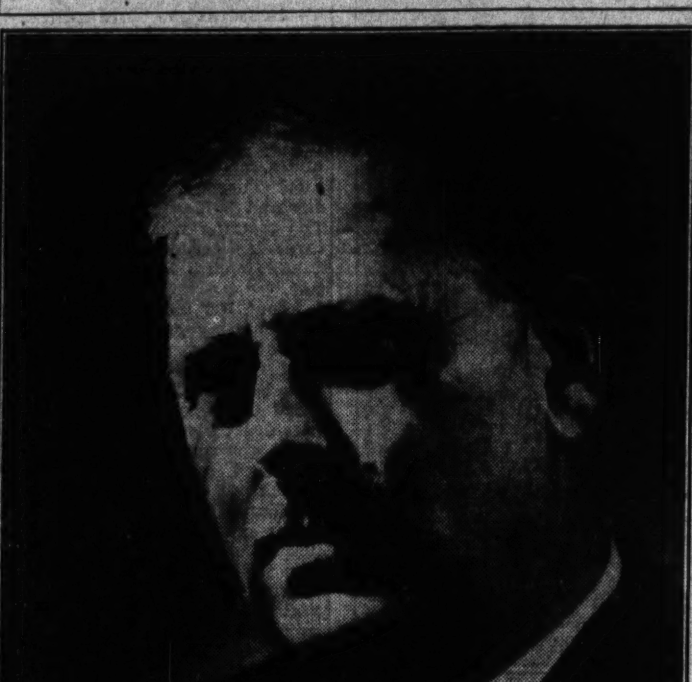
AN APOSTLE OF MEDICAL SCIENCE



PAUL DE KRUIF.

By the Author of "Microbe Hunters"

THE FIGHT FOR LIFE. By Paul de Kruif. (Harcourt, Brace & Co., New York.)

IN writing his latest book, Paul de Kruif apparently had two distinct purposes: first, to tell the exciting story of the very latest medical discoveries in what he calls "the golden age of death-fighting science;" and second, to exhort the people of America to take upon themselves the task of putting these discoveries at the disposal of rich and poor alike.

As a reporter of science for the layman, Dr. de Kruif has always had something intensely interesting and valuable to say. This time he tells in his dramatic way of the progress made in recent years in obstetrics, progress which, if properly used, he says, could cut to a negligible figure the national maternal death rate, which now stands at six out of every thousand. He has here the story of the painstaking, and often heartbreaking, research in infantile paralysis, which has lead finally to the discovery that the nerves of smell are apparently the only means of entrance into the human body for this dread disease, and to the hope—for it is still too early to call it a certainty—that immunization may be possible by "varnishing" these nerves with a solution of zinc sulphate. He tells of the fight that has been waged in Detroit against tuberculosis, of the new treatment of syphilis by machine-made fever, and of the discovery of sulfanilimide and the promise it holds for the cure of diseases formerly almost certainly fatal. De Kruif has performed a real service in providing a book by the aid of which the vague conjectures of the newspaper-reading layman regarding these new scientific discoveries may be turned into thorough understanding without undue mental effort.

It seems unfortunate that De Kruif has felt it necessary to add in this work, as he did in his preceding one, the roles of sociologist and evangelist to that of reporter. The result has been that both books are distinctly below the standard of his earlier ones, so far as the quality of the writing is concerned. Obsessed by his altruistic theories for the spreading of the medical gospel, he has allowed his emotions to lead him into repetition and extravagant statement which tend to weaken the effect for which he has labored so studiously.

Presidential Papers and Addresses

THE PUBLIC PAPERS AND ADDRESSES OF FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT WITH A SPECIAL INTRODUCTION AND EXPLANATORY NOTES BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT. Compiled and Collated in Five Volumes by Samuel I. Rosenman. (Random House, New York.)

SINCE a full reading of this 3600-page work is out of the question for current review purposes, an essentially descriptive report is in order. The set comes handsomely boxed, in stoutly-made volumes of blue-gray cloth. The presidential insigne is imprinted in gold on the covers, as is the familiar stub-pen signature. Typography and illustrations are a delight.

The plan of the work is quite simple. The first volume, which is called "The Genesis of the New Deal," includes Mr. Roosevelt's papers and addresses as Governor of New York and covers the years 1928 to 1932. The second spans the first year in the presidency, "The Year of Crisis." The title for the 1934 volume is "The Advance of Recovery and Reform." For the 188 items which go to make up the 1935 volume, the title is "The Court Disapproves," and the fifth volume, with 246 items out of the re-election year, is called "The People Approve." Subsequent annual volumes, it is announced, will record the similar materials of the current administration.

Here are the scores of speeches—campaign addresses, messages to Congress, fireside chats; here are the official acts, orders and promulgations; excerpts from the important press conferences; tributes to various notables whose deaths have been noticed with felicitous presidential statements. Here are the transcontinental tours; the campaign trips; the N R A, A A A, C C C, the Civil Service, and international affairs; the Harvard Tercentenary; the welcome for Admiral Byrd on his return from the Antarctic; the four-hundredth anniversary of the King James Bible, the celebration at Ste. Genevieve, etc.

But if full reading of the contents is out of the question, Mr. Roosevelt's introductory remarks in each volume can be read with ease. He tells us that many of his objectives and policies as President had their origin during his terms as Governor of New York. He does not detour around the seeming conflict between his view as Governor, that the States should oppose Federal encroachment, and the later entry of the Federal Government into what had been State fields. He seeks to "distinguish" cases, as a judge would say, and to reconcile the one with the other.

In the light of the recent past, the introduction to the volume, "The Court Disapproves," becomes especially noteworthy. After a 12-page review of the Supreme Court's rejection of the first phase of the New Deal, Mr. Roosevelt notes quite pointedly the decisions after "my message of Feb. 5, 1937," which "in many vital respects have abrogated the decisions and rulings and principles of law which the court expounded during this year of 1935 and the first part of 1936."

This change in the Supreme Court's point of view came about largely, so the President writes, "as a result of the outstanding political event of 1936—the election." He sets this change down as fortunate for democracy "because democracy cannot endure if courts, or any other agency of Government, continue to assume the power of a superlegislature to veto general principles within the broad framework of the Constitution."

The work of compiling and collating was performed by Samuel I. Rosenman, counsel to Mr. Roosevelt during his terms at Albany, and now Justice of the New York Supreme Court.

The Strange World Of Insects

LITTLE LIVES: The Story of the World of Insects. By Julia Clossom Kenly. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

THOSE already familiar with Mrs. Kenly's method of handling nature subjects will know what to expect of her latest book. She has developed a style that definitely identifies her work: a skillful blend of fact with fantasy, set off by a lively sense of humor. It is a style well suited to her subject, and one which has won for its author a considerable following of readers, young and old; for the appeal of Mrs. Kenly's writing is not restricted to any particular age level.

In describing the ways of insects, Mrs. Kenly follows the spirit of her own talents rather than the strict letter of science. She adheres to no cut-and-dried system of classifying species; but, much better for present purposes, she selects her material on the basis of interest and treats it accordingly. As a result, one gains the impression of actually visiting the world which she depicts and experiencing something of its life. The author's knack for personalizing her insect characters increases the vividness of this effect, and the fancied resemblance between many situations in the lives of insects and men gives rise to intriguing passages throughout the book.

Among the creatures described are bees, wasps, cockroaches, spiders, beetles, and a certain "green nightmare" called the praying mantis. Readers, of course, will differ in their preferences among the various characters that Mrs. Kenly presents in their activities of war and peace; but certainly few will fail to be interested in a rather gruesome chapter on the black widow, and another very lively one dealing with fleas in general and the flea circus in particular.

The trained scientist, no doubt, will find much to annoy him in Mrs. Kenly's work, and especially in her manner of dramatizing facts. She herself admits as much in her introduction and, possibly for this reason, has added a bibliography.

The Lamentations Of a Brigadier

FIGHTING FOOLS. By James E. Edmonds. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

IT'S a song of woe the author of this book sings. Our country, he believes, is unprepared to defend itself and its rights against foreign encroachment. The army is too small, its personnel, from privates to commanding officers, is inadequately trained; the military budget is insufficient for its needs.

This sad state of affairs is not new in our history, says Edmonds, a Brigadier-General of the National Guard. "Something like it has been so every time since 1775! And always it has meant lost training time, lessened efficiency in the field, sickness, and death." Our military history is one of "shameful, and often scandalous, avoidable defeats, and victory finally attained by happy alliances or brute force, the longest purse and usually cannily selected enemies." The same mistakes were repeated in the Revolutionary War, Civil War, Spanish-American War, the World War; and they are being repeated today, the author laments. A mere $978,599,340 for national defense was approved by Congress for 1938, he points out. More is spent each year for the care of the insane and criminals! And many billions more are being spent on relief for the unemployed. "In one American city, one agency of the Federal Government has disbursed through the depression and until the autumn of '37, nearly $2,000,000 on elaborate 'betterments'—everything from new structures to landscaping," while the National Guardsmen had to be content with insufficient horses.

The author makes it appear a sad indictment of civilization, indeed, that a government spends more for the care of its helpless and hungry, for constructive enterprise and beautification, than for munitions and battleships that shine in the Pacific sun. We must certainly agree with him that for the promotion of American imperialist aims a large fighting force is requisite.

What Women Want

YOU HAVEN'T CHANGED. By Margaret Culkin Banning. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

IN THIS short novel Margaret Culkin Banning gives her answer to the recurring question: What does a woman really want, a career or a home?

The author brings together three former chums who return to their alma mater, after 10 years, for a class reunion. Jenny, who married a man of wealth and social prominence, is sophisticated and fashionable. Looking at Edith, however, who put aside marriage to become a student and teacher of economics, she has pangs of envy for academic achievement which might have been hers, too. Sara, the wife of a country doctor, is comfortable and contented, and sees straight through the conflicting ambitions of Jenny and Edith.

Interplaying with this trio is young Elizabeth Christy, just out of school, with the choice between marriage and a profession immediately before her. Influenced by the happiness and heartbreak revealed in the lives of the older graduates, her decision is to marry the impatient young man who loves her, even though he is not interested in her mind.

Mrs. Banning's approach to the problem is sentimental rather than rational. Her implication is that after marriage a woman's mind goes into functional disuse; that she must either keep her heart and head intact, or lose them both. If this is true, women show a tremendous capacity for self-sacrifice.

JUST WHAT TOMMY NEEDED

AND POINTS BEYOND. By Percy Marks. (Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.)

THOMAS BEAMISH GRAY was in what might be called a devil of a fix. He had survived the plastic age that Percy Marks once wrote about. He was still young and healthy, had brains, congenial work, friends, money, and assured social position, but he was not happy. What was worse, he was enjoying his unhappiness. That is, he had reverted to the adolescence of his plastic age and was foundering in introspection. Thomas Beamish Gray told himself he was in a plight.

On top of everything else he had lost Freda. This Freda was beautiful, oh, so beautiful, but dumb. Tommy had been trying to make a lady of her and had done fairly well, but Oliver Fleming had come along and told Tommy it wouldn't do. He might make a lady of Freda, but she would be a lady with a sense of inferiority. That would spoil everything. The fact was that Tommy, as Oliver explained to him, was not cut out for a lady-maker. It took little Oliver to do a thing like that. So Thomas Beamish Gray nobly erased himself, and Oliver married Dumb Freda. That, not to mention Freda's later divorce from Oliver and her third marriage to Morton Ballard, left Gray dangling and restless. He took everything for it, poker, squash, concerts, dinner parties, theaters, balls and country clubs and, occasionally, girls; but it was no good. He knew he ought to get married again, but all the girls said was "damn" and "darling." He could not see himself being damned and darlinged all the rest of his life. Not after Freda. She was dumb, all right, but she sometimes said something.

Then, on a train from Springfield, Mass., to New York and points beyond, Mary Carter, commercial artist, plopped down beside Tommy Gray and told him the story of her life. Tommy fell for her in a way, in spite of her damns and darlings, but no, they didn't get married. That would have got Tommy out of his fix and ended the story too soon. But through Mary Carter he met Hollis Graham, and Hollis, it turned out, was just what he needed to make a new man of him. He slipped on her finger his great-grandmother's ring. . . . "Tommy," she breathed, "oh, Tommy." Tommy was himself again.

In spite of the conviction that what Thomas Beamish Gray needed was a few pink pills, this is an entertaining yarn in the modern manner, consistent with Percy Marks' previous performances in "The Plastic Age" and "A Tree Grown Straight."

The Deeps That Never Change

THE TIME OF CHANGE. By Lucile Grebenc. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., New York.)

THIS is the story of Molly Eldredge. Although it opens in 1814 and carries its action through the succeeding 10 years, it cannot properly be called an historical novel. Even the war with England and the bombardment of the town of Stonington on Molly's wedding day affect the story only by their unimportance; for while the men fight, their women stay at home to perform the more important task of milking the cows; and the life of the country goes on in its own unhurried indifference. "The Time of Change" is a book of common events, the day-to-day life of a woman in early New England, and even its infrequent moments of stronger dramatic action are absorbed in that quiet flow.

The strongest element in Molly's character is her kinship with the country and natural things. The book is saturated with an intimate sense of the earth and the things that grow from it: not plants only, but men and women—and ideals. Man's life is from the earth, and it is from the earth that Molly draws the slow inner strength which supports her through all the time of change. The days and the years flow past in slow movement; human life, too, moves inexorably from birth, through marriage, to death; and through it all Molly remains Molly. She adapts herself in some measure to changes in the world about her, but essentially she remains the same, as unchanging as the land itself.

Miss Grebenc has described with remarkable vividness and beauty the sights and sounds and smells of the New England country. More important, she contrives to induce in the reader the feeling of the entire pattern, as she herself feels it. This is not mere description; it is creation. For all these particular sensations come alive in the pages of the book and join themselves into one, into the full reality of Molly Eldredge's living.

"The Time of Change" is a work of true realism; which is not only an insistence upon details (though these, too, are presented with loving care) but an act of penetration, a searching out of the underlying design which gives to those details a meaning and an essential, immutable existence.

—W. L. Knickmeyer.

IN THE NAME OF COMMON SENSE. By Matthew N. Chappell. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

Dr. Chappell takes up in turn such manifestations of worry as anxiety and fear, fatigue, indigestion, wakefulness, pain, irritability, and marital unhappiness. Each is illustrated by cases in which correction of the difficulty was effected when the worrying was stopped.

Pictures a Whole Mode of Life

LIGHT OF OTHER DAYS. By Elizabeth Corbett. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

ALTHOUGH "Light of Other Days" may be described as a chronicle of family affairs, it is, in the final analysis, a great deal more. Here is a subtly shaded study in transition, picturing a whole mode of life and a portion of the many elements that have gone into the making of America.

Among the first emigrants from Ireland to settle in the newly formed Mid-Western town of Mount Royal were Terence and Mary Reilley, whose kindly generosity made their house the center of hospitality for all the Irish in the community. This tradition is carried on by Rufus, the eldest son, who, though always a bachelor, becomes upon the death of the parents the integrating force in the family. All the children, indeed, are strongly influenced by the warm Irish atmosphere of their childhood. Joey, the "smart boy" who becomes a successful business man in Minneapolis and marries a "society girl," is continually drawn back to the scene of his youth, while Kitty, the wife of an amiable failure, clings doggedly to her mother's principles though she has not half Mary's strength of character.

The third generation, on the other hand, has lost this sense of relationship with the past and, Miss Corbett implies, suffers from a lack of clearly defined background. Annie, whose father was Will, the black sheep, has been tragically warped by the misfortune of her early years. Sadie, Kitty's daughter, is too weak and indolent to realize disgrace when it comes to her; whereas her brighter sister, Monica, forgets her own ambitions in her devotion to Sadie's unwanted child. It is Joe's Claire who, though she shocks everyone by becoming a vaudeville singer, shows that she has inherited the spirit of Mary Reilley.

This is a very satisfying piece of work, particularly because of its naturalness. The characters are living individuals, for they have been allowed to develop in a completely normal fashion. The flavor and atmosphere of the book is not superimposed as local color, but is the direct outcome of character and situation. The style, too, is in keeping with the subject, for Miss Corbett uses a prose which is effective in its unpretentious simplicity, and her realism is softened by a gentle nostalgia for days that are past.

The Development Of Music

THE STORY OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. By H. W. Schwartz. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., New York.)

SCIENCE and art have played equal parts in the development of music as we know it today; for its growth has depended not only on the inspirations of composers and the skill of performers, but upon the inventive genius of instrument makers as well. If Theobald Boehm had not perfected the ring key system for woodwinds, we might have been deprived of the symphonic masterpieces of Wagner, Debussy and Strauss; or if Bartolomeo Cristofori had not invented the pianoforte, the world might never have heard the magnificent works of Beethoven and Brahms. But, if composers had not constantly striven for richer effects in timbre and tonal coloring, we might never have had the orchestra of today.

Thus Mr. Schwartz has endeavored to trace in an informal style the various influences in instrumental developments through the ages. Unlike Francis Galpin's "Textbook of European Musical Instruments," this work is not a treatise; it has no bibliography, nor does it attain a proper balance of thematic material; only two short chapters are devoted to stringed instruments, as against eight chapters on wind instruments.

However, the book has merit in that it presents certain thought-stimulating ideas not suggested in other works on the subject. There is a delightful discussion of the materials used in the production of musical instruments, and a chapter on how music is made.

WHEAT MARKET RALLIES FROM NEW 4-YEAR LOW

May Wheat at Low of 78 3-8 Is Down About 10c From First of Year and 53c Under Year Ago Basis.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 30.—After dipping to new four-year low levels, wheat prices rallied about a cent today to close at net gains ranging from ⅛ to ⅝c compared with Friday's finish.

Short covering prompted by a belief the market had been well liquidated for the time being and buying stimulated by references in two private crop surveys of increased abandonment in Texas and Oklahoma helped the recovery of prices. Then, too, the Liverpool market, partially reflecting drouth conditions in some sections of Europe, declined only 1¼c, which was less than expected in view of yesterday's late break here. The Winnipeg and Minneapolis spring wheat markets recorded gains of a cent or more, which induced sympathetic buying in Chicago.

At the close May wheat was quoted at 79¼@⅜c, July 79@79⅛c, September 79⅞@80c; corn was ⅛@½c lower, May 58⅛@⅛c, July 59⅝@¾c, September 60⅞@61c; oats ¾@1½c higher, May 28⅛@⅜c; rye 1@1¼c up, May 58¾c; provisions unchanged to 17c lower.

May wheat, which has lost about 10c since the first of the year and is 53c lower than a year ago, early in the session touched a four-year low of 78⅜c. After the close the Clearing House received notice that 900,000 bushels of wheat would be tendered and retendered Monday for delivery on May contracts.

New crop contracts, July and September, were stronger than May wheat despite the fact that one of two private estimates issued by crop experts indicated winter wheat production of 755,190,000 bushels, 30,000,000 larger than the latest Government estimate. Another expert forecast a crop of 719,000,000. Traders noted statements by both statisticians that the early April freezes had lowered condition in Texas and Oklahoma.

Hedging helped keep corn prices lower and notices were filed of intentions to deliver 883,000 bushels on May contracts Monday. No export business was confirmed but additional sales were believed to have been completed.

Strength in oats was credited to buying through houses with northwestern connections.

One estimate predicted a rye crop almost 7,000,000 bushels smaller than last year.

Declines in hogs this week affected provisions.

Provisions were slightly lower.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 30.—May wheat sold at 78⅜c today.

Liverpool wheat closed 1d lower after opening ⅞d off.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛c up to ¼c down, and early was ¼@1¼c off. The close was ¾@1¼c higher.

Argentine wheat closed ½@⅝c lower and corn net unchanged to ¼c higher. At the opening, wheat was ⅜c off and corn ⅛@¼c down.

Local wheat receipts, which were 18,000 bu, compared with 43,500 a week ago and 10,500 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 30,000 bu, compared with 51,000 a week ago and 27,000 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 16,000 bu, compared with 18,000 a week ago and 14,000 a year ago, included 8 cars local.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1½@2c lower. The small supply was mostly off grade. There was some inquiry, but it was for choice grain. Corn was unchanged. Supply was light and the demand fair, but with buyers and sellers apart some grain was carried over. Premiums were somewhat better. Mills, elevators and glucose makers were the buyers. Oats were ½@2c lower. Receipts were larger but a good demand cleared the offerings. Mills and elevators were the main buyers.

Boston Wool Market.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 30.—(U. S. Dept. Agr.) A fair amount of business on fine western grown wool was transacted by several Boston houses today. Spot buying was somewhat slower as a result of higher asking prices but this was offset by increases in sales of wools in the country through Boston houses. Fleece wools of quarter blood grade were fairly active at stiffening prices with sales including some spot wools and some lots offering direct from the country. Graded combing bright fleeces, spot Boston, were quoted from 27 to 29 cents in the grease for fine delaine, at 27 to 28 cents for half blood and at 26 to 28 cents in the grease for three-eighths blood and for quarter blood.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., April 30.—A better feeling was apparent in the week's horse and mule trade. Receipts, for one thing, continued limited, and demand, too, was a little more active. There was outlet for horses to both the South and East and chunks, mares and fillies were easily absorbed. More interest was shown in mules than for several weeks and colts, particularly, were well received. More colt mules and horses could have been sold had they been available. Commission arrivals of both horses and mules aggregated 300 head, of which there was an early clearance.

NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@150; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $90@110; smooth mouthed chunks, $65@90; large farm mares, $125@150; medium farm mares, $90@110; fillies, yearlings and twos; small, common, $30@50; good size, $60@85; extra size and quality, $120@150 (horse colts sell $15@25 per head less than fillies); good Southern mares, $75@100; small Southern mares, $40@60; small cheap horses, $30@50.

MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, small, $60@85; draft mules, $150@200; mine mules, 14.1 to 15.2 hands, $120@160; choice cotton mules, 14.3 to 15.2 hands, $160@200; small green mules over 3 years old, $50@85.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

Mississippi Valley Stockyards at St. Louis officially reports the market as follows:

HOGS—For the week: Light lights and pigs 10c to 15c lower; weights above 170 lbs., 30c to 45c lower. BACKWARD DRIFT MOST OF WEEK IN BOND LIST

Disposition to Cash in Profits Secured on Preceding Week's Upturn.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The bond market last week lacked the bullish tinge it wore during the third week of April under the influence of the Government's move to expand banking credit resources.

For most of the period a backward drift was in evidence, although losses were generally small. Traders who hopped aboard for a short ride when President Roosevelt disclosed the Government's expansion program on April 14 were disposed to cash in their profits.

New investment buying was discernible, according to market observers, but it was not marked by the lively bidding which distinguished the market in the previous week.

Movement of U. S. Governments, the outstanding leaders of the April upsurge, was a fair index to the general trend, up a little one day and down the next.

Rails came to the end of a short-lived rally, but investment circles were encouraged to note the market showed none of the distress signs which characterized it through March and early April.

It was the judgment of rail investment dealers that developments in Washington in the "save the railroads" program were a bit too intangible to stimulate any wide rebuying of carrier issues, although holders continued to look to the capital for a helpful program eventually.

Topping all other developments affecting the rails was the announcement of the Association of American Railroads in Chicago Friday that members would move for a 15 per cent wage reduction. Rail labor representatives said the workers would oppose any cut.

Utility loans did a little better on balance. Some gains were attributed to talk of progress in the negotiations between the T V A and private operating power companies for sale of facilities of the latter in T V A territory.

Industrial issues were mixed. Some declined rather sharply on unfavorable earnings statements and unimpressive reports on general industrial activity.

Bonds moved in a restricted range today, dealings reflecting the inertia which settled over most Wall street markets.

There were enough minor gains in domestic industrial and rail groups to lift the Associated Press averages slightly. But carrier liens also in some instances slid off for losses of fractions or more.

Traders generally were disposed to take to the sidelines to await new developments touching investment sentiment.

Most shifts in United States Governments were small, but in Treasury 2⅞s, 1956-59, 2¾s 1955-60, and 3⅛s 1949-52, there were gains ranging from 7-32 to 14-32.

Ahead fractionally at the close were New York Central 3¾s, International Hydro Electric 6s, Texas & Pacific 5s "C," 1979, and McKesson & Robbins 4½s.

Moderate losses were recorded by Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Erie 5s, 1975, Southern Pacific 4½s, 1981, and Western Union 5s, 1960.

In the foreign sector fractionally higher levels were established by Italian, German and Japanese issues.

Transactions of $2,187,000 face value were the smallest since Saturday, Sept. 4. The previous week's total was $4,226,075.

VEGETABLE MARKET

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE MARKET, April 30.—The following report on prices paid here today by produce dealers to purchasers of round lots of vegetables was made by the "St. Louis Daily Market Reporter":

Potatoes were quiet and unchanged. New stock was weak and lower. A fair volume of street trade was transacted and a few cars changed hands, but with the declining market, buyers limited their purchases.

Stock Market, Caught in Sluggish Currents of Trade and Finance, Shows Lower Drift Through Week

Unfavorable First Quarter Earning Statements and Additional Dividend Cuts and Omissions Mark Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The stock market drifted downstream the past week, caught in the sluggish currents of trade and finance.

The recent flareup of inflationary sentiment—ignited by the administration's proposals for priming the industrial pump with additional billions in loans and public works expenditures and expanding the credit supply—flickered out in a steady downpour of discouraging news from business sources.

First quarter earnings statements from several large corporations, chilling remarks of corporate executives and more dividend cuts and omissions obscured brighter visions of business prospects for the second half of the year painted by some analysts. A slow trickle of offerings cut into April recovery gains in leading industrial shares. Secondary bonds and major commodities followed them down.

Spring stimulus to industrial activity seemed to be fading without bringing into sight a definite turn away from recession. On the contrary, the Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity, after moving in a narrow range for several weeks, dropped to a new low for the decline at 66.8 compared with 68.3 the previous week and 107.5 a year ago. It was one of the sharpest falls of the swing down from the recovery peaks last spring and summer.

Shy Away From Buying.

In face of the drop in major business indicators, traders shied away from the buying side of stocks. Selling, brokers said, was done partly on assumption in professional ranks the market was due for at least a test of the March lows. Most stocks, however, retained a comfortable margin of protection from the March bottoms.

Leading the downdrift were motor, steel, electrical equipment and other industrial groups hit by slack business. Corporate statements revealed unfilled orders generally had fallen sharply, along with earnings.

Reports of United States Steel and Bethlehem, for the first quarter, published during the week, were greeted in Wall Street as better than expected, considering record-breaking curtailment of steel operations in the last eight months.

Among the big steel makers, however, National was the only one showing important earnings for the common stocks. United States Steel had to dip into surplus to maintain the regular dividend on its preferred stock. The figures revealed the leading producer had been selling more than it was making in the first three months, thus drawing upon inventory.

Idle Bank Funds Increase.

A further increase in idle bank funds—as expressed in surplus reserves—kept the financial district's attention on Washington's efforts to promote business recovery by increasing the supply of potential credit. The visit of Henry Ford to the White House and the pledge of a group of prominent business men to co-operate with administration recovery steps were interpreted in Wall street as part of a campaign to encourage private borrowers to use idle dollars.

More real to most Wall streeters, however, was the momentum of the deflation spiral in business and basic commodities. Lower prices for wheat, steel scrap and other key staples were seen in some quarters as forerunners of readjustment of quotations in finished and semi-processed goods unless the spiral is reversed in the near future.

Also reminders of declining prices and costs were additional wage cuts in textile mills and a move by the railroads for a 15 per cent clash in pay scales. Helping drag wheat down were indications of the biggest winter crop in many years.

Waiting Stock Market.

Not much more than a waiting market was apparent on the stock tape. Transactions on the "big board" again were back to around the 500,000 to 600,000 share turnover which was standard most of the winter before the market tumbled to new lows in March.

Aircraft shares continued to get better-than-average support and were quick to rally when offerings let up. British and French co-operative moves to speed rearmament helped keep the speculative spotlight on aviations. At the same time the first quarter reports of two big aircraft makers showed increased earning power as the result of lucrative backlogs of orders for military and commercial planes accumulated in the last year, both for home and foreign account.

The busy airplane industry made a conspicuous contrast with business generally.

APRIL STOCK AND BOND TRADE ONLY HALF OF 1937

Total of 17,119,534 Shares and $138,457,350 Bonds Sold.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Stock dealings on the New York Stock Exchange during April aggregated 17,119,534 shares, against 22,995,770 in March and 34,606,839 in April, 1937.

Bond transactions for the month totaled $138,457,350, face value, against $169,432,000 in March and $294,866,000 in April, 1937.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LIVERPOOL, April 30.—In slowing trading wheat futures were off ⅝ to 1⅛d at the close today, reflecting easy North American markets yesterday, expectations of a large American crop and favorable seeding rains. Cash demand was absent.

Cotton declined under Bombay selling and liquidation of May to end two to four points net lower. Buying was limited to a scale down.

London and Paris markets closed on Saturday.

ONLY 147,770 SHARES OF STOCK SELL IN DAY

Week-end Session Is Second Slowest in 20 Years—Changes Meaningless.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30. — Stocks muddled through the second slowest market session in 20 years today and price changes generally were regarded as meaningless.

The list moved narrowly and apathetically from the start, with the ticker tape frequently at a standstill for a minute or so. A handful of rails and specialties managed to emerge with minor advances, but small losers were plentiful and numerous issues were at the closing levels of Friday.

The turnover for the 2-hour proceedings amounted to 147,770 shares against 410,950 last Saturday. There has been only one lesser volume since 1918, and that aggregated some 113,000 shares on Sept. 1, 1934. For the week the total was slightly more than 2,000,000 shares, the smallest since early 1935.

Average Unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 38.2. On the week this composite was down 2.2 points. It registered only one modest plus sign in the six days, and that was Wednesday. It was the second consecutive week that the index finished with a loss.

Traders today found virtually no inspiration for taking a positive position on either side of the market. Industrial news was still cloudy and Washington developments furnished few if any trend clews.

The feeble last-minute rally of yesterday, which brokers attributed partly to a little buying and short covering following the defeat of the wage-hour bill by the House Rules Committee, played out at the start and led to a quick shift to neutral territory by the in-and-outers.

The President's monopoly message, which came after the close of the preceding session, apparently had little significance either way so far the market was concerned.

Word that a movement had developed in the House Appropriations Sub-Committee to allocate relief funds directly to agencies rather than to the President merely served to stress doubts the lending-spending program may be a long time getting under way.

Some Market Gains.

Bonds were quiet but some rails did better. Commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was up ⅛ to ⅝ of a cent a bushel and corn down ⅛ to ½. Cotton was 5 to 20 cents, a bale higher. The Associated Press commodity index hit a new low since 1934.

For the day modest gains were held by shares of Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, J. I. Case, Continental Can, Union Bag & Paper, National Distillers and Woolworth.

On the offside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Texas Corp., Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, American Smelting and du Pont.

Aside from political rumblings, analysts thought the week's flood of unsatisfactory earnings and prospects of scant pickup for the current quarter had much to do with the backwardness of markets. In March dividend reductions and omissions were estimated the largest for any month since the 1937-38 decline began.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY LOWEST SINCE DEC. '34

One of Broadest Setbacks of Year Is Recorded During Week Just Closed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Industrial activity slumped sharply this week, suffering one of the broadest setbacks of the year.

Measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted index, based on latest available statistics, the industrial tempo dropped to 66.8 per cent of the 1929-30 average. This was the lowest level since December, 1934, and compared with 68.3 a week ago and 107.5 last year.

Every component of the index declined during the week, automobile assemblies and electric power output falling to new low levels for the current recession.

Largely responsible for the curtailment of motor car production were strike tie-ups in General Motors' plants. Other principal producers cut assemblies only slightly.

Total freight loadings were sharply lower after seasonal adjustment. This resulted mainly from smaller coal movement, although miscellaneous loadings—the biggest industrial classification—also dipped moderately.

Steel operations were shaded for the second week, demand from primary consumers continuing at low ebb. Electric power consumption reflected unusually favorable weather conditions throughout the country.

The index with its seasonally adjusted components based on latest data and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest wk.	Pr. wk.	Yr. ago
Composite index	*66.8	68.3	107.5
Automobile Prod.	*40.9	46.2	104.9
Steel mill act.	42.9	43.4	123.9
Cotton manufacturing act.	83.9	85.6	129.8
Electric power production	*102.8	103.8	117.5
Residential building	45.5	46.2	68.5
Total carloadings	55.6	58.6	82.2

Sagging Price Tendency Marks Nonferrous Metals for Week

Drop in London Tin to Lowest Level in 5 Years, Is Feature.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—A sagging price tendency in non-ferrous metals last week was highlighted by a drop in the London tin market to the lowest level in five years. Spot tin in New York broke 165 points to 36.65 cents a pound. London's slump was laid chiefly to uncertainty concerning the status of the buffer pool scheme.

Zinc declined 10 points to 4.15 cents a pound, East St. Louis, without stirring up consumer interest.

Copper probably was the steadiest of the group, the domestic base holding at 10 cents a pound, valley, while the export market showed only a minor downward revision. Prospects for a renewal of the foreign cartel and a belief domestic consumption is exceeding bookings were helpful. Domestic consumption in March was placed in excess of 41,300 tons, or nearly 8000 tons over shipments, indicating consumers are drawing steadily on supplies.

Lead was unchanged at 4.50@4.55 cents a pound, New York. Consumers continued hesitant, despite the fact stocks are relatively low and a substantial portion of May requirements remain uncovered.

While the steel trade displayed more hopefulness, actually business remained slow, with ingot production rate holding at 32 per cent.

Chinese antimony declined ½ cent to 15¼ cents a pound, reflecting the combination of a slack demand and competition from French and Belgian metal.

WEEK-END CURB TRADE IS SLOWEST IN NEARLY 6 YEARS

Prices Quietly Slip Lower Though a Few Utilities Maintain Early Gains.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30. — The curb market quietly slipped lower today, although a few utilities maintained early gains. It was the slowest week-end session in nearly six years.

Gulf Oil, off 1¼ at 35, was one of the hardest hit. Losers elsewhere, mostly for minor fractions, included International Petroleum, at 25¾, American Cyanamid "B," at 17¼, St. Regis Paper, at 2¾, and Pennroad, at 1¾.

Ending a trifle higher were Pitney Bowes, up 6¼, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, at 64, Niagara Hudson at 6⅞, Pantepec at 5, and Aluminum Co. at 72¼.

Turnover totaled 34,000 shares, compared with 75,000 a week ago.

EXCHANGE MARKET IN MODERATE LIMITS

A Few Stabilizing Signs Appear in World Capitals During Week.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The foreign exchange market stayed within moderately narrow limits during the week as a few stabilizing signs appeared in world capitals.

Early in the week the French franc staged a sharp comeback when Premier Daladier spiked rumors of possible devaluation of the franc by announcement of free exchange within the tripartite agreement and a step-up in industrial production.

The rally in the franc extended to most other European currencies, sterling gaining ½ cent in terms of the dollar.

Release of the British budget message, however, calling for increased income taxes, had a chilling effect on the upward movement of most units and near the close of the week sterling had retreated to last week's closing level.

The franc held part of its gain and ended about .04 of a cent higher on the week.

Cabinet and budget difficulties beset the path of the Belgian belga and banking circles expected shipments of gold from Belgium would soon be necessary to correct the present low price.

Engagements of gold continued to taper off with $4,350,000 from Japan the only one reported. Last week's total was $5,800,000.

The foreign exchange market moved at a laggard pace today and few changes in terms of the dollar were recorded.

Sterling and the French franc were unchanged. Holland guilders and the Swiss franc each lost .01 of a cent, while the belga also was unchanged.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Foreign exchange closing rates were as follows: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, demand 4.98¾, cables 4.98¾; 60-day bills, 4.98. France, demand 3.06½, cables 3.06½. Italy, demand 5.26½, cables 5.26½. COTTON MARKET IRREGULAR IN A NARROW RANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Cotton moved irregularly over a narrow range today, but the tone held steady. July advanced from 8.73 to 8.78 and closed at the high, with final quotations 1 to 4 points net higher.

The market opened with easier Liverpool cables and light foreign selling balanced by trade buying and small domestic offerings. In mid-session prices dipped a few points under July liquidation and local selling. Week-end covering developed in the late trading, when additional offerings failed to appear.

Commodity Credit Corporation reported 4479 bales entered the cotton loan during the week, bringing the total thus far to 5,337,288 bales, exclusive of 153,661 bales repossessed by borrowers. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearince at the close of the week was estimated at 60,000 bales against 81,000 last year and 65,000 two years ago. Spot steady. Mids, 8.78 cents.

Commodities Drop to Lowest Level in Nearly Four Years

Weighted Index of 35 Important Wholesale Staples at 66.86 Per Cent Compared With 92.91 Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Commodities tumbled into new low ground once more this week, dropping to the lowest level in almost four years.

Measured by the Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale staples, commodities slumped to 66.86 per cent of the 1926 average from 67.76 last week and compared with 92.51 a year ago.

The latest figure was 32 per cent under the 1937 peak of 98.14, and the lowest since July, 1934.

Lack of demand continued to be the greatest source of weakness as heavy liquidation was encountered in only a few individual staples.

Seven commodities declined for each one advancing during the week among the 35 staples, the former numbering 20, the latter 3, with the remainder unchanged.

Both industrial and agricultural items were hard hit as prices followed the same downward course traced by stocks. Each slumped to a new bottom for the year or lower.

Industrial Raw Materials Off.

Wheat was heavily sold when private experts boosted estimates of probable winter wheat harvest from the 726,000,000 bushels officially forecast as of April 1 to around 750,000,000 bushels. This would be one of the largest harvest on record.

Other grains shared this weakness; including corn, rye and oats. Cotton also drifted lower. In this case, however, curtailed manufacturing activity contributed to the downturn as much as guesses of probable crop yield.

Livestock, however, set a course independent of other staples, being the only group to chalk up an increase over the previous week. Cattle and lambs rose while hogs dipped.

Not a single industrial raw material included in the index managed to break out of the declining trend of recent months. Rubber, bituminous coal, steel scrap, turpentine, linseed oil, burlap, antimony, tin and zinc were all marked down.

This reflected the continued slump in industrial production throughout the country, the Associated Press index dropping to a four-year low.

Food and textile prices also weakened slightly.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Raw sugar was unchanged today at 2.81 for spots with no sales reported.

Futures were easier in the No. 4 contract under increased liquidation and hedge selling, influenced by reports the international sugar conference had agreed to a reduction of 5 per cent in the export quota, less than had been anticipated. Final prices were 2½ to 4 points net lower as July declined from .91 to .90 and March from 1.03½ to 1.01. Sales of 6250 tons.

Refined was unchanged at 4.55@4.65 for fine granulated with a continued good withdrawal demand reported.

COMMODITY MARKETS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Prices quietly declined in leading commodity exchanges today under mild selling pressure. Wheat futures contracts at Chicago were an exception. After dipping to low ground for the year, prices rallied to finish ⅛ to ⅝ of a cent a bushel higher, with buying centered on new crop contracts. Corn lost ⅛ to ½c a bushel.

Cotton at New York lost 5 to 20c a bale, although the tone of the market held steady on trade buying.

The world sugar contract was sharply lower following reports the International Sugar Council had announced a quota reduction of 5 per cent, less than had been anticipated. The domestic contract was also depressed by the declining raw market.

Copper futures at New York dropped five to six points in wake of lower unofficial metal prices abroad. Tin lost around 1-3 of a cent.

Rubber futures were again a weak spot, off around ¼c, while others lower included wool tops, cocoa and hides.

Cottonseed oil moved up a trifle at New York, as did the Rio and Santos coffee contracts.

Hogs and cattle supplies at the Chicago livestock market were too small to indicate values. Late cattle trade showed a weak undertone. Lambs held steady.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale commodities with 1926 taken as 100, dropped to 66.84, the lowest point since July 10, 1934, and compared with 66.86 Friday.

Supreme Court Strips Itself And Other U. S. Courts of Power To Ignore State's Common Law

Justice Brandeis Reverses Justice Story's Swift vs. Tyson Doctrine After 100 Years —Again Dissents Become Majority View.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 30. — By abandoning a line of precedents begun almost a century ago, the United States Supreme Court this week stripped the Federal Courts, including itself, of the power to pass on the general common laws of the States.

The unanimous decision, written by Justice Brandeis, is regarded by several members of the court as one of the most significant in recent years but since it related to a technical jurisdictional question its effect will not be immediately evident.

In brief, the decision upheld the right of states to declare both through their legislatures and their courts the laws for their particular jurisdictions and protected them from "Judge-made" laws in the Federal Courts unless the State laws are specifically in conflict with the Federal Constitution or acts of Congress.

Swift vs. Tyson Reversed.

In technical language, the court reversed the often challenged doctrine expressed by Justice Story in Swift vs. Tyson in 1842, in which the court held that, despite the thirty-fourth section of the 1789 judiciary act which says "the laws of the several states . . . shall be regarded as rules of decision in trials at common law," the Federal Courts were not bound by the State laws where the interpretation and effect of contracts and other instruments of a general nature could be judged by "the general principles and doctrines of commercial jurisprudence" applicable to the nation as a whole.

From this precedent the Federal Courts, including the Supreme Court, enlarged their jurisdiction, even to damage suit cases, although the doctrine was of especial value to public utilities and large corporations which went into the Federal Courts in cases of diversity of citizenship. It was a damage suit case by a Pennsylvania citizen against the Erie Railroad, a New York corporation, which Justice Brandeis used as a vehicle to announce the court's rejection of the Swift vs. Tyson doctrine.

Circumstances of the Case.

Paradoxically, the usual roles were reversed in this case. The private citizen, Harry J. Tompkins, went into the Federal courts of New York against the railroad because the Pennsylvania common law seemingly was against him. A New York Federal District Court awarded him $30,000 damages for an injury suffered when struck by something that looked like a door on a passing Erie freight train while he was walking on a commonly used footpath along the Erie tracks.

The award was upheld by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and the Erie sought review by the highest court, challenging the doctrine of Swift vs. Tyson, and alleging that since Tompkins had the status of a trespasser, the decisions of the Pennsylvania State Courts should be followed.

"Because of the importance of the question whether the Federal Court was free to disregard the alleged rule of the Pennsylvania common law, we granted certiorari," Justice Brandeis said.

Issue Squarely Raised and Met.

In affirming the award by the District Court, the Circuit Court of Appeals cited Swift vs. Tyson and asserted because the question was not one of local but of general law "the Federal Courts are free, in the absence of a local statute, to exercise their independent judgment as to what the law is."

At the outset of his opinion, Justice Brandeis plainly stated that "the question for decision is whether the oft-challenged doctrine of Swift vs. Tyson shall now be disapproved."

After reviewing the language of Justice Story's original precedent and its continuous criticism, Justice Brandeis held that the recent researches of Charles Warren, the historian of the Constitution and the Supreme Court, had established that the construction given it by the court had been erroneous.

As an example, the opinion cited the recent decision of the court in a Kentucky taxicab case in which the court had approved the avoidance of the Kentucky common law by a taxicab company by reincorporation in Tennessee in order to get a Federal Court injunction which would not have been granted by a Kentucky State Court.

Political and Social Defects.

Such avoidance of local laws, Justice Brandeis said, had revealed political and social defects of the Swift vs. Tyson doctrine.

"Persistence of state courts in their own opinion on questions of common law," the decision continued, "prevented uniformity; and the impossibility of discovering a satisfactory line of demarcation between the province of general law and that of local law developed a new well of uncertainties.

"On the other hand the mischievous results of the doctrine had become apparent. Diversity of citizenship jurisdiction was conferred in order to prevent apprehended discrimination in courts against those not citizens of the state. Swift vs. Tyson introduced grave discriminations by non-citizens against citizens. It made rights enjoyed under the unwritten 'general law' according to whether enforcement was sought in the state or in the Federal Court; and the privilege of selecting the court in which the right should be determined was conferred upon the non-citizen. Thus the doctrine rendered impossible equal protection of the law. In attempting to promote uniformity of law throughout the United States, the doctrine had prevented uniformity in the administration of the law of the state . . ."

Constitutional Aspects.

On the constitutional, as distinguished from the jurisdictional phase of the case, the decision declared that "except in matters governed by the Federal Constitution or by acts of Congress, the law to be applied in any case is the law of the state."

Amplifying this, the decision continued:

"Whether the law of the State shall be declared by its Legislature in a statute or by its highest court in a decision is not a matter of Federal concern. There is no Federal general common law. Congress has no power to declare substantive rules of common law applicable to a State whether they be local in their nature or 'general,' be they commercial law or part of the law of torts. And no clause in the Constitution purports to confer such a power upon the Federal courts."

"Judge-Made" Law Condemned.

At this point, the decision quoted with approval the dissent in a Baltimore & Ohio case of 1895, in which Justice Field declared the majority had ignored the Ohio common law of fellow servant liability. This quotation, which condemns "judge-made" laws in no uncertain terms follows:

"I am aware that what has been termed the general law of the country—which is often little less than what the judge advancing the doctrine thinks at the time should be the general law on a particular subject—has been often advanced in judicial opinions of this court to control a conflicting law of a state.

"I admit that learned judges have fallen into the habit of repeating this doctrine as a convenient mode of brushing aside the law of a state in conflict with their views. And I confess that, moved and governed by the authority of the great names of those judges, I have, myself in many instances, unhesitatingly and confidently, but I think now erroneously, repeated the same doctrine. But, notwithstanding the great names which may be cited in favor of the doctrine, and notwithstanding the frequency with which the doctrine has been reiterated, there stands, as a perpetual protest against its repetition, the Constitution of the United States, which recognizes and preserves the autonomy and independence of the states—independence in their legislative and independence in their judicial departments.

"In No Case Permissible."

"Supervision over either the legislative or the judicial action of the States is in no case permissible except as to matters by the Constitution specifically authorized or delegated to the United States. Any interference with either, except as thus permitted, is an invasion of the authority of the State and, to that extent, a denial of independence."

In addition to the dissent of Justice Fields, the decision quoted from several dissents by the late Justice Holmes in subsequent cases, in which that jurist said that the doctrine rested on the assumption that there is "a transcendental body of law outside any particular State but obligatory within it unless and until changed by statute"; that Federal Courts have the power to use their judgment as to what the rules of common law are; and that in the Federal Courts "the parties are entitled to an independent judgment on matters of general law."

Adoption of the Dissents.

Commenting on these dissents, the decision concluded:

"The doctrine of Swift vs. Tyson, is, as Mr. Justice Holmes said, 'an unconstitutional assumption of powers by courts of the United States which no lapse of time or respectable array of opinion should make us hesitate to correct.'

"In disapproving that doctrine we do not hold unconstitutional section 34 of the Federal Judiciary Act of 1789 or any other act of Congress. We merely declare that in applying that doctrine this court and the lower courts have invaded rights which in our opinion are reserved by the Constitution to the several states."

Coming back to the instant case, the decision noted that the Circuit Court of Appeals had declined to decide the issue of State law. On this point the decision reversed the judgment of the court below. It also pointed out in a footnote that Tompkins had contended that he had been struck at the intersection of the longitudinal pathway and a transverse crossing.

"The court below found it unnecessary to consider this contention," the note observed, "and we leave the question open."

Victory for Charles Warren.

The court's reversal is a victory for Charles Warren and other students of Federal procedure who have insisted that the Swift v. Tyson doctrine had been one of great harm and a distinct factor in the increase of national power. In his scholarly work, "The Supreme Court in United States History," Warren made this critical comment on Justice Story's doctrine:

"Probably no decision of the Court has ever given rise to more uncertainty as to legal rights; and though doubtless intended to promote uniformity in the operation of business transactions, its chief effect has been to render it difficult for business men to know in advance what particular topic the Court would apply the doctrine; and the adverse criticism by judges and jurists, which have continued to the present day, have had much justification."

NEARLY 10 PCT. OF CHILDREN TESTED HAVE EYE DEFECTS

Report on 1937 Activities Given by Executive Secretary of St. Louis Society for Blind.

Nearly 10 per cent of 6500 children in 44 day nurseries and county and parochial schools who received eye tests in 1937 were found to have defective vision, Miss Emily M. Spencer, executive secretary of the St. Louis Society for the Blind, says in a preliminary report of the society's activities.

The establishment of at least two additional sight-saving classes in county schools is urged in the report. Miss Spencer declares that in one county school, with an enrollment of 284, the society found 22 pupils with uncorrected eye defects and 26 others, wearing glasses, who were in serious need of further examination.

In the absence of a broad community program of eye examination in schools, Miss Spencer says, the society is conducting tests in 110 schools in St. Louis and St. Louis County. Staff members last year made more than 2000 home visits, furnished glasses free of charge to 700 persons and paid for the nursing care of many indigents suffering from infectious eye diseases.

Operetta at Girls' Home Today.

Residents of the Girls' Home, 5501 Enright avenue, a private home for Protestant girls, will present an operetta "The Princess Who Was Not Interested" there this afternoon at 5 o'clock. The 80 girls who will appear in the production will wear costumes made at the home.

Capitalism in Germany; Business Enslaved by Nazis

perts has made it necessary to fill the leading posts of the supervising bodies with industrialists, a convenient method for big business to maintain its monopolistic power even under the state planning.

No doubt, the friction under which the whole system works is immense. Overorganization and sabotage waste a considerable part of the productive effort. Yet industrial planning has made it possible to concentrate all the human and material resources of the Third Reich on one aim—rearmament—and to do so without drifting into open reaction.

Rigid State Capitalism.

The economic system represents the boldest experiment in planning ever undertaken under the nominal rule of capitalism. From a purely legal aspect private ownership of the means of production and even private management have been kept intact. Apart from some undertakings in the sphere of power supply and of raw materials for armament purposes, the range of direct state enterprise has hardly been extended. But an indirect system of regimentation—compulsory cartelization, rationing of raw materials and recently of labor, price and investment control, the state monopoly of foreign trade, forced public loans, and a host of individual regulations imposed by military and civil authorities—has transformed the economic machinery into the most rigid form of state capitalism.

One must admit that, in the spirit though not in the letter, a good many of the original postulates of the party program are about to be realized. But it would be entirely wrong to assume that this transformation had been planned beforehand and devised according to any theoretical principles of social reform. As is well known, the leading personalities in charge of economic policy during the last five years, Dr. Schacht and even Field Marshal Goering incline to traditional capitalism rather than to collectivism. If nevertheless the actual result surpasses the boldest dreams of Nazi theorists, the reason must be sought for in the irresistible force of circumstances.

The Leaders' Plan.

The rulers of the Third Reich have indeed been pursuing on formidable plan all through, and have directed the material and spiritual efforts of the whole nation to its execution. Yet theirs is not an economic but a political plan aiming at the hegemony of the Greater German Empire over Central Europe and the Near East. All national activities, the religious no less than the economic, are subordinated to this purpose, and autonomy cannot be conceded to any sphere of life. If the doctrines of the Manchester school had served this ultimate purpose better than planning, the Nazi leaders would have applied them with equal thoroughness.

For the German business man it may be rather tragic that his present rulers decided in favor of regimentation and state control, but one must not overlook the fact that a good many of the steps in this direction were fully approved by industry and trade. For example, they acclaimed the enormous expenditures for public works and rearmaments because it revived business. But, as a necessary result, demand for imports increased, and to such an extent that foreign exchange control had to be transformed into a complete regimentation of foreign trade, and in the end raw materials had to be rationed. Or, to take an other instance, big business liked the Government's wage policy, which aimed at stabiliziing labor income scarcely above the depression level. But this was bound to reduce the prospective demand for consumers' goods. Therefore, the state, without waiting for a wasteful process of self-adjustment licensed investment and by compulsory loans, directed profits into those sections of industry which produce for public demand. In this manner every act of state intervention involved another one until private business has been reduced to the handmaid of bureaucratic planning.

Four-Year Plan.

The fact that the pressure of events, and not theoretical fanaticism, is bringing about economic collectivism does not make the prospect for the German capitalist and entrepreneur any brighter. Rather will he have to put up with yet larger inroads on his freedom of disposal and management once the Four-Year Plan is going full speed. Dr. Schacht had good reason when he offered strong though fruitless resistance to this project. It indeed marks a turning-point in the reconstruction of German economy.

Up to the beginning of 1937 rearmament, public works and the production of substitute materials had been carried through with the help of idle labor and equipment taken over from the last depression. The main problem had been one of redirecting these productive reserves according to the requirements of state demand. Thus planning had only to support and to accelerate measures which the low level of mass purchasing power and the high profits in the construction industries suggested also to the individual business man.

This situation was completely changed when, in the course of 1937, full employment was reached and also the capacity of the construction industries became more and more fully utilized. Henceforth production of armaments and substitute materials can be expanded only if some other current output is reduced—that is to say, if either consumption or renewal of equipment is curtailed. The normal expedient in such a situation, the further reduction of wages or the raising of prices, cannot be applied for political reasons. There is only one solution left; rationing, not only of raw materials but also of manufactures both for consumption and industrial purposes.

Plight of Capitalists.

The last report of the National Railway Co. points to the first symptoms of this development: the progressive wasting of the rolling-stock. If Goering and his Generals really carry the day the last vestige of a market economy and of a price system will disappear. Farmers and industrialists will be turned into mere employes of a huge state concern.

There is a popular slogan among Marxists, affirming that Fascism, and Nazism in particular, is only the political form under which monopoly capitalism exploits the working classes. One can understand that this denunciation appeals to the bewildered masses inside and outside the victorious dictatorships. By the irony of fate a similar interpretation of Fascism had long before been one of the strongest forces in bringing about its rise. Both in Italy and Germany leading groups of industry and finance had gradually come to regard some form of political dictatorship as a perhaps unpleasant but necessary and efficient instrument for the defense of the existing social order. After all, it is to the moral and material support of this "Upper-class Marxism" that Hitler owes his political power. Thus we may ask in conclusion: Does Nazism pay its capitalist sponsors?

An unbiased observer must come to the conclusion that to the bulk of German entrepreneurs and capitalists only one business function is left unimpaired—risk-bearing. And they do not even earn the net profits to compensate them for the burden of the present and the growing uncertainty as to the future. Even the low wage level has hardly made up for the increase in taxation, the export levy, and the innumerable "voluntary" contributions to party and welfare organizations.

The average rate of profits in 1936 was 5 per cent, compared with 6.5 per cent during the boom of 1928-9. There is a handful of big industrialists who, for the time being, enjoy vast monopoly profits. But where are they going to find safe investment for them?

"We are all in the same boat," said Dr. Schacht some time before he retired from official position. To all appearances it is not drifting towards blessed shores.

Certainly there is one sphere of economic life where big business has been fully rewarded for its succor of the Nazi movement. The working classes have been crushed and planning has introduced compulsory labor in the service of future construction, but not of general well-being and social justice. Even in its most perfect organization National Socialism has so far shown itself a tragic parody of Socialism proper. But if it enslaves labor and destroys capital, whom is it going to benefit?

Ford Says Politicians Are On Way Out But He Thinks Jack Garner Would Make Fine President

Then He Turns to Question of War and Observes, "Put Men to Work and You Will Have Peace."

By JOHN BRADFORD MAIN.
(Fourth of a Series.)
(Copyright, 1938, Boston Evening American.)

BOSTON, April 29.—"Who'll be our next President, Mr. Ford?"

Ford, hands clasped about one drawn-up knee, gazed into the fireplace in the old Wayside Inn at Sudbury and was silent. Long legs, has Ford. Many people, who have seen only pictures of him, have the impression he is a tall man. He is not. It is his long legs—Lincoln legs—that lend him that deception.

Seventy-five years ago—but that likewise is deceptive. Ford is a young man—not merely "hale and hearty" but young. His eyes are young—clear, quizzical, questing eyes. His mind is young—the restless, probing, ever selecting, ever discarding adventuresome mind of youth.

Neither mentally nor physically has Henry Ford any of the slowness of age. When you sit down with him, within five minutes you have forgotten completely that you are talking with a man almost exactly twice your years.

He is as friendly, as companionable, as reachable mentally, as open-minded and modern, as any of your own friends of your own age.

Why He's a Republican.

"I'm a Republican," Ford told this reporter, chuckling, "for the same reason I have two ears, a nose, a mouth and two eyes, and the name 'Ford.' My father had 'em—that was my father's name, and my father was a Republican—so I'm a Republican. Just born one. It's always been that way."

Politics? Ford suddenly became serious—very serious. Ford can change from the merriest lightheartedness to the deadliest earnestness in the twinkling of an eye. You have to be on your toes, mentally, every second you are talking to him.

"We've got to take a greater interest in politics," he declared now, slowly. "The politicians are on their way out. The people of this country are beginning to realize they'd better run their own Government.

"You see, what we've done, we've sort of drifted into the habit of letting politicians run our politics. There's a big difference between politics and politicians. Politics is something that should interest every one of us. It's—it's us—the way we live, the way we live today, the way we're going to live tomorrow. It's the laws we live by, the way we're going to run our businesses and our schools, the taxes we're going to pay, the things we're going to do and the things we're going to let each other get out of life.

"Politicians are"—Ford shrugged, and smiled quizzically. "Oh, well," he said, not finishing the sentence, "That's one way some people have of making a living."

"Too Much for Them."

He fell silent a moment. Then he said: "The politicians need help.

"This business they've made for themselves of running our business has gotten to be too much for them.

"We've got to begin to take a more active interest ourselves. We've got to begin to step in and say, 'look here, this is what we want to do—this is the way we want things done.'

"Mind you, I'm not criticizing—anyone or anything. What happens—whatever has happened—is for the best. It all adds to our experience. Perhaps — undoubtedly—we needed this experience. 'What are we here for? What is the purpose of our being here on earth?'—Remember, I asked you that. We're here to acquire experience. That's the whole substance of it."

Again, Ford fell silent, smiling. Again, the reporter asked him—pressed him for an answer. Millions of people, this reporter knows, will be interested in this one:

"Who'll be our next President, Mr. Ford?"

Ford responded: "Who've you got?"

"That's the question, isn't it?" said the reporter. "Who've we got?—the Republican party, that is, there doesn't seem to be anyone. They haven't got anyone. If they have, they haven't brought him out. Who——?"

Ford interrupted.

Garner for President.

Grinning like a small boy pulling a rabbit out of a hat, he said:

"Why a Republican? You've got a good man—a mighty good man—in Washington right now!"

"Who?" said the reporter, half not believing his ears. "Who?"

Plainly enjoying the reporter's confusion, Ford paused for a moment, then said simply:

"Jack Garner."

"But—but you're a Republican, Mr. Ford."

"Jack Garner," said Henry Ford, "would make a mighty fine President. He's got a mighty fine record. He's on the spot. He knows what's going on. He's got the experience.

"I don't say Jack Garner will be our next President, but, as things are, I don't think you could make a better choice."

On Man and Peace.

The subject suddenly shifted to war and peace.

"World peace," said Ford, "will come when we are ready for it. Put men to work and you will have peace. Busy, prosperous nations do not want war. It is only when men are idle and nations poor that their thoughts turn to war."

Ford tapped the arm of his chair thoughtfully. There is nothing dictatorial about the way he expresses his opinions. Rather, he at times seems curiously diffident, almost as though he were begging, not to be agreed with, but to be understood.

"Many times," said Ford, reverting to that strain of Emersonian mysticism that, apparently, runs through his character, "we have had civilizations equal to this—or better."

He repeated that "or better" several times, nodding his head.

"There've been wars," he said. "There's war now. Probably there'll be wars again. But peace will come when we are ready for it.

"Always, the experience has been valuable. All experience is valuable. It's what we're here for. Even"—and here Ford grinned boyishly—"even if you get into trouble, it's for the purpose of the experience.

"Always, something a little better grows out of it."

"Teach Our Children."

The reporter asked: "What can we do, Mr. Ford, to further the cause of world peace?"

The man who led the "peace ship" expedition more than two decades ago in a gloriously quixotic effort to stem the disaster that then was engulfing the world, said today:

"Teach our children not to be destructive."

He became cuddenly very, very earnest.

"This may seem to you to be a little thing," he said, "but it will show you what I mean—and, of course, it is not a little thing; oh, not a little thing at all——"

"Yesterday, I walked through the woods at Walden Pond. There is a cairn of stones there, and I put one on it—always I put one on it—and a bronze tablet to Thoreau.

"That tablet is all dented and scarred—dented and scarred by stones that boys have thrown at it."

For the first and only time during the interview Henry Ford became really excited. Angrily excited. His eyes flashed, his face, normally composed or smiling, flushed and became set in stern lines. Even his voice, so quiet otherwise, lifted.

"Destructiveness!" he said, hands waving for emphasis.

"Thoughtlessness, too, of course—but I can't help wondering what sort of parents those boys have.

"Parents should teach their children not to be destructive.

"Teach children to be constructive. Teach them to produce things. Teach them to respect the things that have been produced—the things that are useful.

"The boy who is brought up to respect and love the useful, productive things of life will not, when he is a man, have any use for war, which only destroys.

"Men"—and, his composure recovered, Henry Ford's eyes twinkled—"men are only little boys grown up. They say that, don't they? Yes, I guess that's true.

When He Was a Boy.

"When I was a boy, I carried a little block of metal, and a file, in my pocket. When I had spare time I spent it working on that block, filing it perfectly smooth, squaring it, trying to make it perfectly true.

"Useless? Nothing is useless—nothing that keeps the mind and eye and hands busy producing something, even though that something be only a rough little block of metal that you have made square and true.

"Teach your children to make things, not to break things. That is something we all can do.

CONCORDIA SEMINARY TO DEDICATE LOG CABIN

Structure Copied After One-Room Building in Which School Was Founded.

A replica of the log cabin which housed Concordia Seminary when it was organized 99 years ago at Altenburg, in Perry County, Mo., will be dedicated on the campus of the seminary in Clayton in services at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Constructed under the supervision of the Concordia Historical Institute, the structure is a faithful copy of the one-room building which Saxon Lutheran immigrants erected for a school soon after they had settled in Missouri in their search for religious freedom.

In its first years the institution was a combined academy for general instruction and a seminary for training of ministers. Two of the first nine students were St. Louis boys who lived in the small building, traveling more than 100 miles from their homes to the school.

To be rededicated next Sunday is the bell from the old building of the seminary at Jefferson avenue and Winnebago street, which has been installed in a log tower near the cabin in the area south of the seminary buildings.

The school was moved to St. Louis from Altenburg in 1850, occupying the Jefferson avenue site until 1926 when the present 72-acre campus was opened. The cabin and the bell will serve to link the old homes of the seminary with the new one.

On the program for the triennial convention of the Missouri Lutheran Synod, which will be held here June 15-25, will be a trip by the delegates to the first building in the little Perry County town.

SUNDAY ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH MAGAZINE

Printing News in the Home by Radio

By SELWYN PEPPER

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

Small Page Facsimiles of Type and Photographs Already Have Been Achieved in Broadcasting Experiments.

FACSIMILE broadcasting, heralded with great trumpeting for years and always "just around the corner," has arrived—far from perfect, it is nevertheless much better than early radio broadcasting of the twenties, the engineers say, and they have the evidence to prove it.

Four radio stations—in Des Moines, Newark, Cincinnati and Detroit—are transmitting small test newspapers directly into private homes in time for reading at the breakfast table. And besides these four, several other commercial broadcasters have been licensed by the Federal Communications Commission to experiment with facsimile. One of them is KSD in St. Louis. Besides the commercial stations, seven short wave broadcasters, including W9XPD of the Post-Dispatch, are licensed to experiment in the new field.

Thus after more than 15 years of laboratory study, facsimile has become a reality. Newspapers with pictures are being printed in homes by radio impulses. Later the radio papers may be produced in hotels, clubs and restaurants. Whether they will ever replace the regular newspaper is open to question—something for the future to decide.

Briefly put, facsimile works like this: Light and shadow on a printed page in the broadcasting station are converted into electrical impulses through the use of a photo-electric scanning device, popularly known as the electric eye. These impulses are amplified and modulated and then at the receiving end in the home or office are translated back to print and white space.

Receiving sets are smaller than most home radios, but much more expensive today than the average radio. The RCA Manufacturing Company at Camden, New Jersey, produces a receiving set for $250. Finch Telecommunications Laboratories, Incorporated, of New York has one for $125. The difference in price is due to the fact that the Finch device is merely an attachment for a radio, whereas the RCA machine has a radio in it.

Although the receiving set prices are high, it is anticipated that they will be much lower if large-scale manufacturing begins. Some estimate that the price will go down to about $40, which would put the sets in reach of as large numbers as radios today.

At the present time only the radio stations licensed to experiment with facsimile are buying the receiving sets because they are required to put 50 receivers in private homes to test the new service.

Radio Station WHO in Des Moines, for example, purchased 50 sets, but has ordered improvements made in 48, after mechanical difficulties were discovered. Two receiving sets are already in operation, one having been placed in the studio of WSM, Nashville, and the other in the studio of WOR, Newark. The latter station has also begun facsimile transmission and has installed a receiving set locked to its frequency in the Des Moines studio. Thus the two stations exchange news services and assist each other in experiments.

These stations send out news stories, photographs and sample advertisements in their radio newspapers. The papers are small, two or three columns wide, instead of the standard eight-column width of the metropolitan daily. And because of the slow rate of transmission, only a small volume of news can be offered. In both the RCA and the Finch receiving sets, the radio newspapers issue from a slot in the machines and are printed on a continuous strip of paper. Later the RCA company plans to install a blade on its receivers, which would cut the news strip into pages. At the present time the receiving set owner must cut his own pages, if he wishes to pass them out to other members of the family.

The Finch facsimile home receiving machine as it appears without its cabinet.

Facsimile broadcasting is being done only during the early morning hours, when regular commercial broadcasts are off the air, a precaution to avoid interference. But when the short wave stations licensed to experiment in the new field begin operations, they will be permitted to transmit at any hour of the day or night.

THE Des Moines station sends a half-hour facsimile program after 1 a. m. daily. The test service started February 4 and has been satisfactory, J. O. Maland, vice-president of the station, told the writer. When the 48 additional receiving sets obtained by his company have been improved, they will be placed in private homes in various cities. An effort will be made to install them in the homes of engineers in order to get expert criticism from men who understand radio and its problems. An effort will also be made to learn from those who have receivers what types of newspaper material they prefer in their radio journals.

The receivers being installed by the Des Moines station are the Finch machines, which were the first to be placed on the market. The inventor, W. G. H. Finch, is 42 years old and was assistant chief radio engineer for the Federal Communication Commission before resigning three years ago to form his facsimile laboratories.

Inventor of the RCA receiver is Charles J. Young, son of Owen D. Young. He had been experimenting for 10 years. Facsimile, be it understood, is far from new, some early experimentation in sending line drawings by wire having started as far back as 1887. But definite hope for development of facsimile only came within the last five years.

During the developmental period a frequently discussed question was who would pay for the news service. Some believe advertising will cover the cost of gathering the news. The Des Moines station, incidentally, has already been asked for its advertising rates by a tobacco manufacturer. During the experimental period, however, the Communications Commission does not permit any of the facsimile newspapers to carry paid advertising. With the stations purchasing the receiving sets, the news material and transmitters that cost about $5000 each, they are therefore bearing the full load in the experiments that blaze the trail.

Once the service has begun, some engineers believe, the radio stations may continue to purchase receiving sets and lease them out. Beyond the cost for the receiving set—if the individual buys his own—the outlay for the radio newspaper is not expected to be very great.

A roll of paper sufficient to last about 10 days in the Finch receiver costs about 20 cents. With electric current, it is believed average operating costs will be $1.50 a month, based on four-hour receiving service seven days a week.

For the RCA receivers, engineers estimate the cost will be one and one-half cents a day for electricity. While the receiving sets are not operating they will only use as much electric current as an electric clock. News print for a small paper, transmitted six days a week, would cost about 35 cents a month, they believe.

It is apparent, therefore, that with the expensive receivers, the cost at first would be too much for most persons who spend three cents for a daily paper. If the price of radio receivers drops and if there is an increased demand for paper in the size required by the new apparatus, then the cost of the service will drop sufficiently to bring it into reach of more customers, engineers think.

EXPERIMENTAL "subscribers" receive a newspaper easy to read, but somewhat hazy. Some samples produced in the laboratories and cut into pages are attractively made up, with pictures and balanced appearance. Like any newspaper, they carry general news, stock market reports, cartoons and recipes, but small measures of each because of the slow rate of transmission. The RCA set equipped with a page cutter, for example, produces only three small pages the size of a circular in an hour.

In appearance that receiving set is attractive. It is made of wood and less than a foot and a half square. It can be placed on a bookcase or table. One merely plugs it in a light socket, to start operation. The receiving equipment has been tuned in in advance to the radio station and the controls are locked. Later that feature may be eliminated to allow more freedom of choice in selecting a newspaper. In the present sets, however, the owner can make no adjustments. In fact, there are no control knobs on the outside, a precaution to prevent inexperienced persons from spoiling the reproduction quality by changing the adjustments. A clock starts the receiver operating when the radio station begins transmitting and turns it off when the broadcast ends.

In detail, RCA transmission works like this:

News is typed or printed on a small page. Pictures are pasted on. Actual photographs are used, instead of engravings, because it has been found they reproduce better. With the pictures in place, the page is mounted on a cylinder, which turns at a rate of 75 revolutions a minute.

As the cylinder revolves, a small beam of light and an electric eye move across the page. The beam of light falling on the page reflects back to the electric eye whatever it strikes on the page. As the copy varies from black to white, the amount of reflected light striking the electric eye varies accordingly.

These variations in light intensity are transformed by the electric eye, or photo-electric cell, into a varying electric current. That current goes into the radio transmitter and is amplified several times. From the transmitter, radio signals go out, varying in intensity according to the light and dark impressions coming in from the printed page.

The radio signals are picked up by the antenna of the receiving set in the private home. Inside the receiver, continuously-feeding rolls of carbon paper and white paper are being led past a metal cylinder, on which a single spiral ridge projects slightly above the surface.

The fluctuations in intensity of the incoming signals control the movement of a metal bar which presses the paper and carbon together against the spiral ridge to make marks corresponding to the lights and shades of the original page in the radio station. Since the receiver and transmitter are synchronized, an exact reproduction results.

The Finch device works somewhat differently. A spot of light scanning the page like the human eye is reflected back to a photo-electric cell, which changes the light reflections into electrical tone impulses, varying in loudness as the light spot moves from black or halftone to white areas.

These electric tone impulses are sent out over ordinary broadcast equipment. In the receiving set, copy is reproduced by a slender, needle-like stylus which is held in contact with electro-sensitive paper. The stylus is mounted on the end of a recording arm which moves from side to side, across the paper in exact step with the corresponding scanning arm in the transmitting unit at the broadcasting station. A duplicate of the printed page is thus built up, line by line. The Finch receiver uses white or orange paper.

Facsimile is one of 13 inventions which appear destined for widespread use with social consequences that may prove revolutionary, the National Resources Committee, created by President Roosevelt, stated in a recent report.

Ruth Brindze, writing in the Nation, thinks facsimile is potentially the most socially-significant invention since the development of the printing press. "Will the constitutional guaranty of a free press be destroyed when facsimile newspapers are published by licensees of the Government?" she asked.

Finch, the manufacturer, describes facsimile as "radio's dramatic forward step, with enormous potentialities. It is the first practicable process by which radio leaves a permanent visual record of what it has to say. The owner of the recorder may read the daily broadcasts at his leisure or preserve items for future reference."

He became interested in facsimile as a result of an assignment in the United States Naval Reserve to study interfleet communications of the Battle of Jutland. He became convinced that costly errors might have been eliminated if British commanders had been able to send maps and diagrams to each other.

FACSIMILE has been used commercially to some extent for years by Western Union and in ship to shore communications. In the last 10 years RCA laboratories have developed several facsimile systems. Pictures have been sent across the Atlantic for several years.

In addition to the two types of receivers already described, John V. H. Hogan, president of Radio Station WQXR in New York City, has announced that he has a device that is ready for manufacture, and Transradio Press is preparing a so-called Fultograph system.

"It seems probable the effect of radioed newspapers will be to supplement rather than displace the regular newspaper," the Guild Reporter, American Newspaper Guild weekly, commented. "It is likely that at the start only short news bulletins will be sent out by facsimile and that interest in newspaper reading will be heightened.

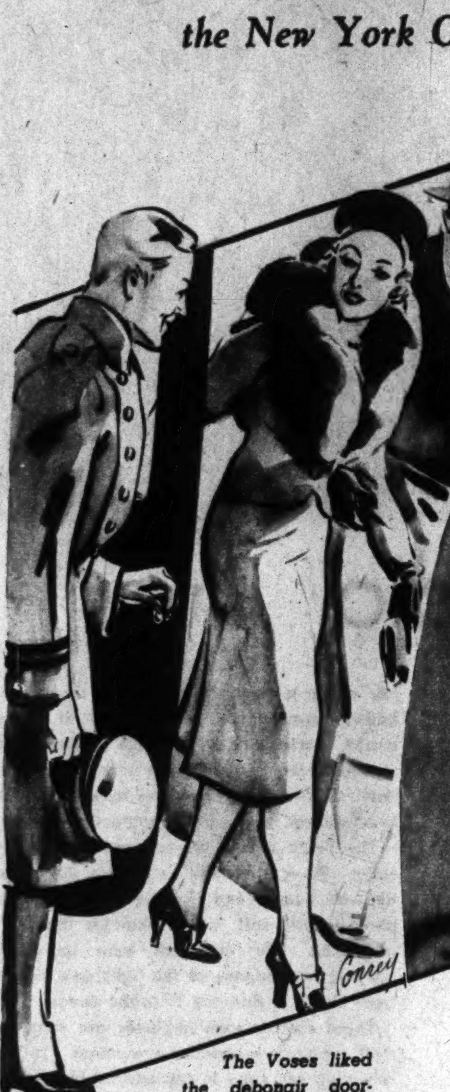
"The newspaper has roots deep in the popular interests. One of its strong characteristics is a range of news selection which may never be feasible over facsimile. Most readers read only a small proportion of any day's paper, but they have certain strong special interests. Facsimile seems hardly likely to attempt to meet these with anything like the thoroughness of a newspaper."

This writer saw in the advent of facsimile increased employment for newspaper men because radio stations will have greater need for trained reporters, editors and make-up men.

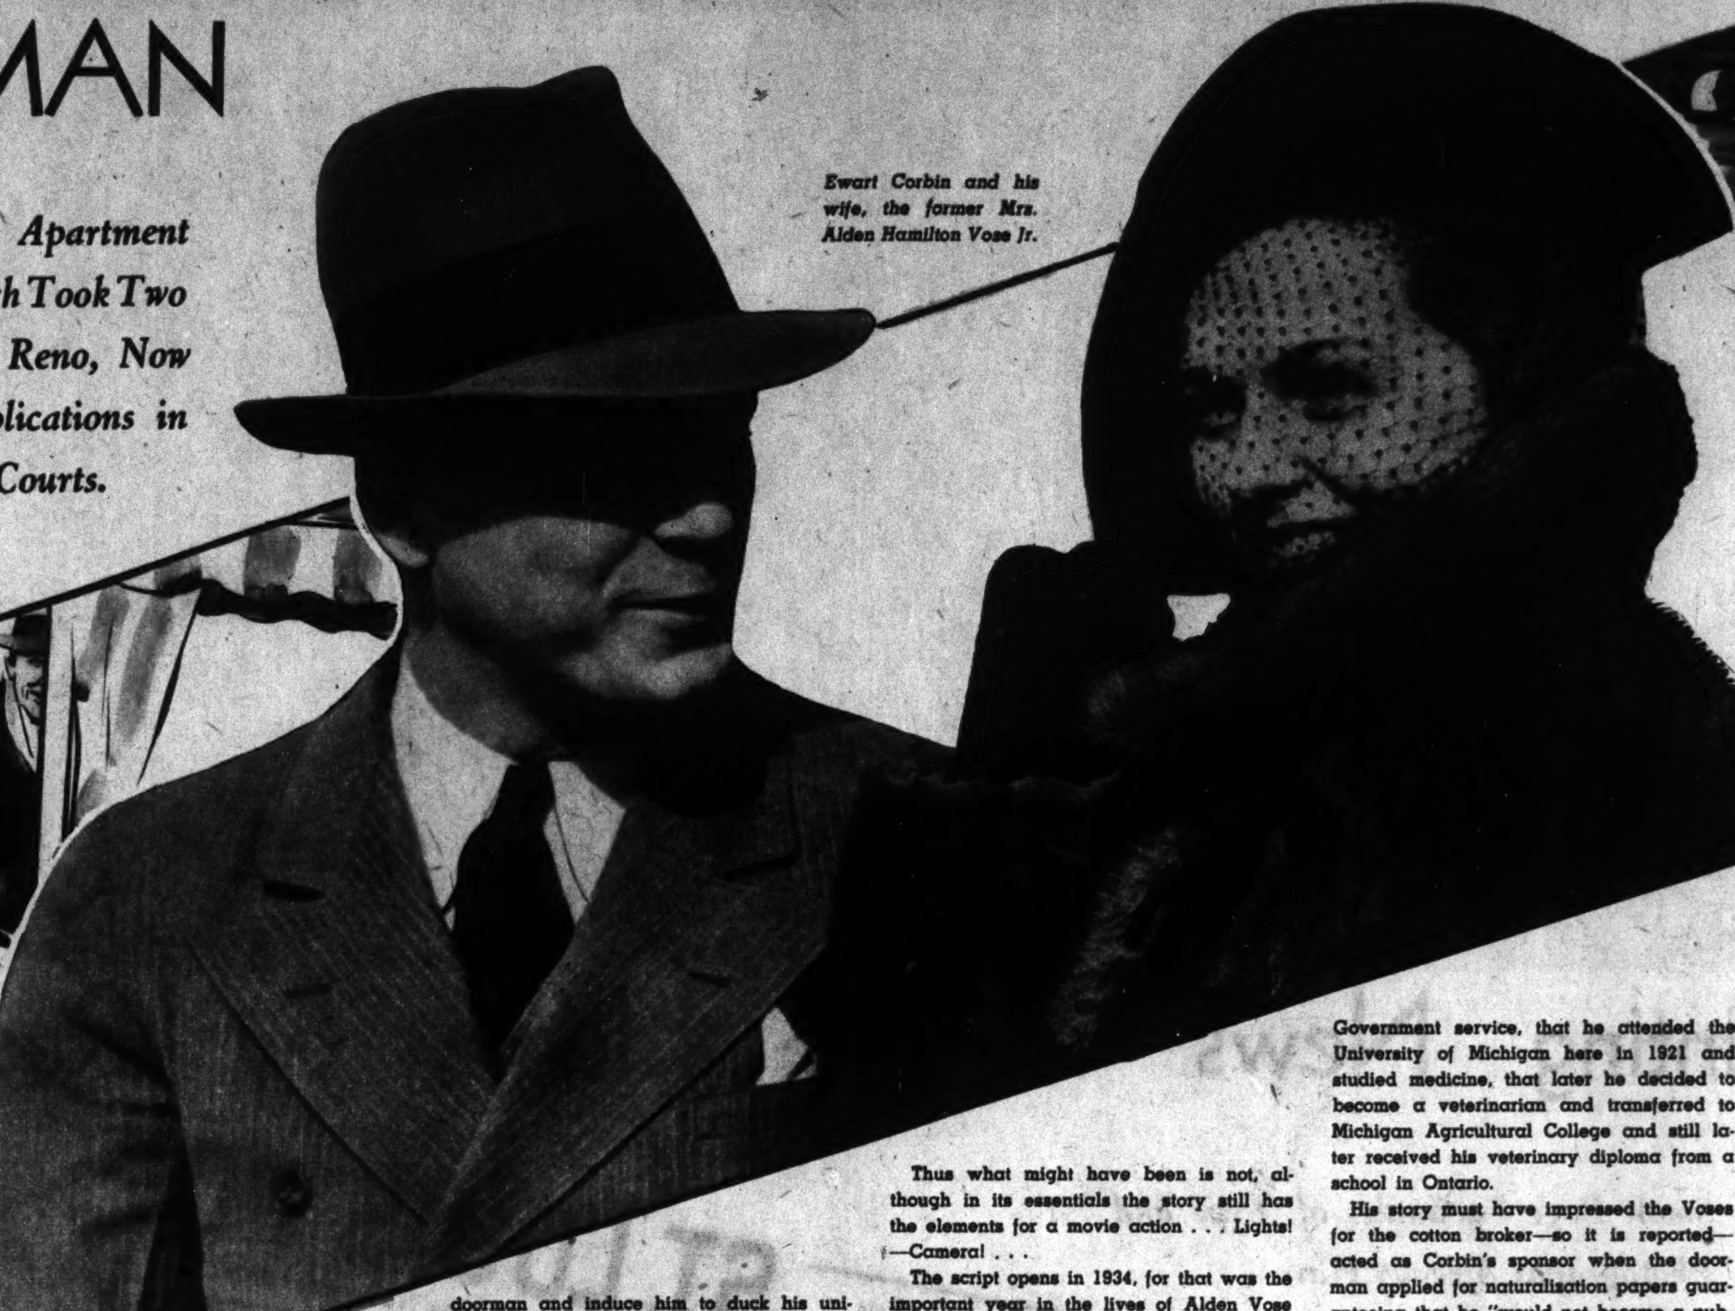
"It seems certain that there will be greater competition for news than ever before and also that the public will get more news," the Guild Reporter stated.

DIVORCED the BROKER and MARRIED the DOORMAN

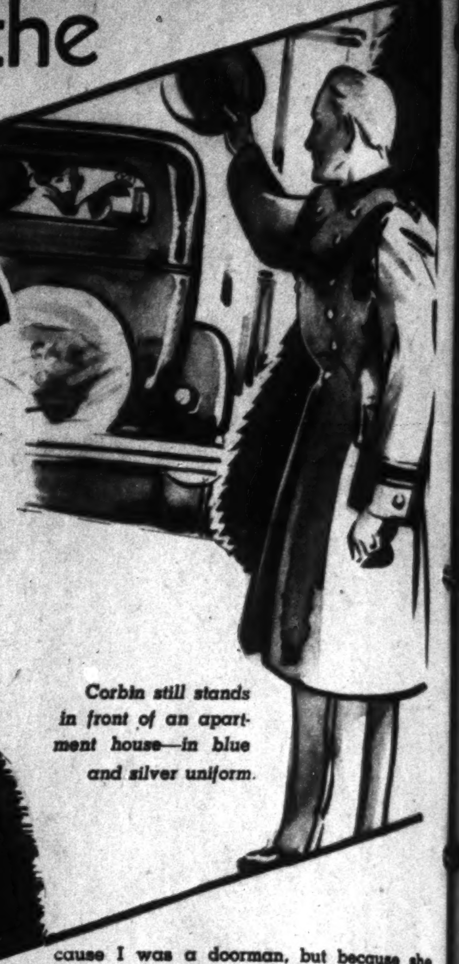
The Fashionable Apartment House Romance, Which Took Two of the Principals to Reno, Now Finds Further Complications in the New York Courts.



The Voses liked the debonair doorman.



Ewart Corbin and his wife, the former Mrs. Alden Hamilton Vose Jr.



Corbin still stands in front of an apartment house—in blue and silver uniform.

By ROBERT SELL
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK.

THE romance of the beautiful wife of the cotton broker and the handsome doorman of the fashionable apartment in which she lived is a story in the manner of the theater. The wealthy couple move in, they like the debonair doorman and induce him to duck his uniform and attend their cocktail parties as a social equal, love blossoms among the cocktails and small talk of the little gatherings. Then a straightforward confession of love, divorces, a proposal and marriage. But the happy ending—well, that may never come. For Alden Hamilton Vose Jr., is not now kindly disposed toward Ewart St. Aubyn Alleyne Corbin, the doorman, and, in fact, is suing for divorce here, thus inferring that his wife and her new husband are bigamously married.

And to further complicate what might have been one of those idyls of the big city that novelists are so fond of weaving out of ectoplasm Mrs. Corbin, rich in her own right as Jean Canfield of a potent Connecticut family, is suing Vose for custody of their infant daughter, Gail Canfield Vose, one year old.

Thus what might have been is not, although in its essentials the story still has the elements for a movie action . . . Lights! —Camera! . . .

The script opens in 1934, for that was the important year in the lives of Alden Vose Jr., Jean Canfield and Ewart Corbin. In the most fashionable ceremony of the Connecticut social season Vose took tall, lovely Miss Canfield as his wife. And 2000 miles away Corbin lost his Government job in Barbados Island "because of politics" and came to New York where he got a job as doorman at 360 East Fifty-fifth street.

Corbin came here in May, the Vose wedding was in September. Shortly after the honeymoon the Voses moved to the Fifty-fifth street address and began to fill in society the niche to which they were entitled by birth and station. They became acquainted with the doorman when he held open the door of their car. They thought he was charming, with his round face and blond hair. Sometimes they paused to chat with him and he told them that he was born in Barbados where his father is in the Government service, that he attended the University of Michigan here in 1921 and studied medicine, that later he decided to become a veterinarian and transferred to Michigan Agricultural College and still later received his veterinary diploma from a school in Ontario.

His story must have impressed the Voses for the cotton broker—so it is reported—acted as Corbin's sponsor when the doorman applied for naturalization papers guaranteeing that he "would not become a public charge." If he did so the memory must rankle now, but Vose is not talking. All his actions have come directly through his attorney. Corbin is more willing to speak.

"It was well known in the building that I was in love with Mrs. Vose," he said, "but I tried everything in my power—more than any man in the world ever tried—to keep from breaking up their marriage."

Mrs. Vose, he said, was equally in love with him and he was accepted in their home as an equal. It became apparent to them that eventually they would be married.

"I was already married myself," he continued. "My wife was Louise Rayside, but I have not seen her in years. Last November Mrs. Vose went to Reno to get her divorce which was granted on January 31. I went to Reno, too, and got my divorce on March 1.

"While we were in Reno we talked with Mr. Vose by long distance telephone. He now says he knew nothing of our divorce plans, but that is wrong. We thought all along that everything would be settled amicably. We came East and were married on March 12. On the fifteenth we came to New York to live and the next day went to Mr. Vose's home to see the little girl. But he would not permit a meeting. So we suspected that something like this would come along.

"Now that it has come, I believe we will fight for custody of Gail. We most certainly are going to fight Mr. Vose's charges because they are not true. Our divorces were perfectly legal.

"Mr. Vose had always been damn nice to me and I thought we would continue to be friends. Mrs. Corbin didn't marry me because I was a veterinary surgeon, or because I was a doorman, but because she loved me. I am going back to the same kind of work, but not in the same building, of course. I am determined to get along in my own way. I could get a remittance from my family, but I am not a remittance man. I want to work for my living. I'm not afraid of honest work and I consider my family to be as good as any family."

So Corbin wears a bright blue and silver uniform as he stands in front of 152 East Ninety-fourth street while his wife, clad in expensive mink, rides about town in a taxicab. They live in a tiny furnished room which is all he can afford at the moment. He could practice as a veterinarian if he was a citizen, but this cannot be for some time.

"I WAS first a doorman, last a doorman and still a doorman," he said. "It's my job. I make $85 a month and don't have to depend on my wife for support. I ride to work on a bus. If my wife wants to ride about town in a taxicab that's her affair and it's all right with me. She may be an heiress, but I'm not going to touch her money.

"She doesn't mind my working—she loves it. If she didn't approve she wouldn't have married me in the first place."

And with that off his chest Corbin retired to dignified silence. Not so his wife, or his swank in-laws, the A. H. Canfields of Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The Canfields, apparently in accord with the action of their daughter, are standing somewhat aloof from the present quarrel. But it was broadly hinted on their behalf that they considered the custody suit unnecessary in that they felt Mrs. Corbin ought to have the care of her child.

In a petition for a writ of habeas corpus demanding production of her child in court, Mrs. Vose asserted:

"He is unfit for custody of a child. Soon after our marriage his conduct became such that it jeopardized my life and health and caused me great mental suffering. On several occasions he assaulted me physically and heaped gross insults on me.

"His pastime consisted in drinking at bars and night clubs and he insisted that I accompany him."

There were more charges along this line all of which Vose plans to deny in court.

A spokesman for his side hinted after one of the hearings that Mrs. Corbin had shown a lack of interest in her own child during her second courtship and marriage.

And to make matters more complicated there were rumors the immigration department was investigating Corbin's entry into the country. Bryon Uhl, local head of the Immigration Bureau, says, however, that Corbin entered legally and that the case is closed.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.

HOLLYWOOD is one spot in the world where anything can happen—and frequently does. The stranger the idea the more likely it is to go over with a bang in this strange town. Queer cults and fortune tellers thrive here as nowhere else on the face of the globe and there are more seemingly foolish businesses and ways of making—or at least trying to make—money in this land of milk and honey and sunshine AND motion pictures than there are in New York and London and Paris combined.

Now not all of the strange sounding schemes are really strange. Nor are they all born of a desire to get rich quickly. Stern necessity, the necessity of eating and having a place to sleep, is back of many of the quaint Hollywood businesses and among the quaintest is a brand new enterprise conducted by two young and lovely European girls who came here to take a place in the movie sun alongside some other foreign-born women such as Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert, Simone Simon and Luise Rainer. You've heard of them, likely enough, but we dare say you never knew, until this very moment, that Gloria Gilbert and Gerda Mora were on earth. Perhaps if you once lived in Budapest and visited among the 60 best families of Hungary you might have met Gloria Gilbert's folks—but not under that name, for Gilbert is just a nom du cinema. Likewise, if you ever spent any time with the best society of Königsberg, in Herr Hitler's East Prussia, you probably had lunch with some of the Mora family although you wouldn't remember them by that name either.

Gloria and Gerda, known among the Hollywood associates as "The G Girls" just because their first names begin with that letter, faced with the before mentioned stern necessity of eating with some sort of regularity, have gone into business together. They conduct a tea room. Now conducting a team room is an ordinary enough affair. There is one on every corner in Hollywood. But "The G Girl's Tea Room" is not on any corner.

Instead it is wholly within their 10-by-12 bedroom at The Studio Club, a sort of Y. M. C. A.-sponsored hotel for girls who are connected with the motion picture studios and the other arts or who hope to be connected pretty soon. A good many of the residents of The Studio Club are, sometimes, pretty badly off for ready money. In such instances the club itself does not push them for their rent. All of the girls who live there are young, hopeful of ultimate success and, like all girls of their age, hungry at times between meals. If they have a nickle to spend they can go to the tea room and get a pretty dainty sandwich for that sum. If they are opulent and can afford to squander 15 cents they can get a waffle—with trimmings. And when they just have to smoke and can't buy a package of cigarettes, or borrow one somewhere, Gloria and Gerda will supply one for a penny.

Gloria and her roommate, between serving tea and sandwiches, keep their ears open for the moment when opportunity will knock at the door. Perhaps it won't be a knock, just a telephone call from Central Casting Office, the hiring hall of the cinemas, telling them to report at a studio for a day's work as an extra. Whatever it is, Gloria and Gerda will be ready. They're pretty energetic, these two youngsters. As well as conducting their tea room they run a rummage sale of clothes and hats and bits of finery and Gloria, who is an accomplished pianiste and linguist, offers to give lessons on the piano or teach French or German or Italian. Also a sign in the room conveys the information that she will do stenographic work. Little Gerda, who is a painter of talent and who was the highest salaried teacher of German in the public schools of Quito, Ecuador, before she was bitten by the movie bug, advertises by way of signs in the tea room that she teaches German or Spanish or painting.

So it's quite a varied institution this room in the Studio Club for, after all, it IS a bedroom and contains, besides the restaurant facilities, two beds, a dresser and the other appurtenances of a small hotel room. But space is not wasted. The beds serve as show counters for the rummage sale articles and the dresser comes in handy, too. As an added attraction the girls dug up

THE conspiracy against the Soviets became a world drama on December 1, 1934, when Sergei Kirov, secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party, was killed by a political assassin in Leningrad. Three days later an announcement, originating in the Kremlin, stated that 71 persons, charged with plotting terroristic acts against the Russian Government and the party leaders, would be brought to trial for their lives.

That the defendants in this trial, which was to be the first in that remarkable series which has had such continuous fascination for the rest of the world, had any connection with the slaying of Kirov, was not immediately revealed. The connection became apparent, however, as the trials began to unfold, and long before the latest of the series had been brought to a period by the customary firing squad, the existence of a complicated and far-reaching conspiracy had been postulated by the Soviet Government and admitted in detail by those accused. The prosecution, in other words, charged that the "Anti-Soviet Bloc of Trotskyites and Rights" had been organized for the purpose of destroying the Communist State in Russia by sabotage and by terror. The denominated conspirators confirmed the charge.

The political implications of the trials are manifest in their importance no matter how one chooses to interpret the evidence offered by the confessions. But even if the political future of Russia and of Europe were unaffected by their disclosures the trials would still have had an immeasurable significance as human drama—drama with consistently sustained plot interest, with deft and striking characterization, with atmosphere; with every element that an imaginative playwright might contrive.

In fact a whole series of dramas could easily be worked from those untrammeled Dostoyevskian confessions. But the most fascinating undoubtedly would be that one which centered about the remorseless person of Genrich Grigoryevich Yagoda, the master poisoner and treasonable head of the OGPU, or Secret Police, and his nemesis Nikolai Yezhov, the astute investigator who uncovered Yagoda's guilt and delivered him over to Soviet justice.

Yagoda has been described by Prosecutor Vyshinsky as an instinctive double-dealer, a description that has been confirmed by the man himself. He was an individual with some intellectual quality, a degree of sensibilty, but no emotions for the sufferings of others. Above all he was ambitious for power.

Though his political status was not clearly defined prior to the October (1917) Revolution he was nominally associated with the Communist Party, but without ever believing in it. In 1928 he evidently became persuaded that the Communist regime in Russia was doomed for he joined the anti-Soviet organization of the Rights.

At the time he was vice-chairman of the OGPU, second in command, that is, to A. V. Menzhinsky. In the beginning the opposition to Stalin on the part of Bukharin, Rykov, Yenukidze et al was more or less in the open. Even then Yagoda's connection with it was secret for, as he explained, the head of the OGPU was not supposed to offer criticism even within the party line.

"In the first stage of the struggle of the rights against Soviet power," he said, "I supplied the organization of the Right with tendencious selected secret materials of the OGPU which they—Bukharin and Rykov—utilized in their struggle against the party.

"Subsequently when the Rights passed over to conditions of illegality in the struggle against the party and the Soviet power, the center of the Rights imposed upon me the task of protecting the organization of the Rights against collapse."

Occupying a key position he was invaluable to the counter-revolution and in his belief this was the chief reason why it was not discovered in its early stages.

Yagoda's association with the Right conspiracy was obviously no more a matter of principle than his Communist connection. He foresaw an overturn and in the succeeding situation expected to attain to the supreme power in whatever state was left or was organized. This was his main objective though his conspiratorial friends credited him with at least as much interest in the ideas of the counter-revolution as they themselves had. But in conversations with his secretary, Pavel Bulanov—which Bulanov afterward repeated on the witness stand—Yagoda made a number of revealing remarks. He was fascinated by Hitler and spoke of him often. He even clipped his mustache in such a way as to suggest a resemblance to the German Führer. And in speaking of Bukharin's place in the new order it was evident that he pictured Bukharin as Goebbels to his Hitler—and Goebbels, he concluded, was "harmless."

THIS incipient Hitler was, of course, not frightened of murder essential to his purposes. On the contrary he showed a distinct capacity for indirect, lingering but traceless methods. And in the course of his preoccupation with the subject he developed quite a flair for poison.

His first victim was Menzhinsky, his immediate superior in the OGPU. His motive there was obvious. With Menzhinsky out of the way Yagoda would be head of the Secret Police, which would give him almost complete freedom in working against the "power of the Soviet" and protecting the secret operations of his fellow conspirators. It is significant that Yagoda denied being influenced by personal or careerist motives in thus making himself the head of the OGPU—significant because nobody had accused him of it. But the strategic position occupied by the head of the Secret Police—before, during and after an overthrow—must have been fairly plain to Yagoda.

In any event, having agreed with his fellow conspirators on the elimination of Menzhinsky, Yagoda next proceeded to bring within the circle of his corrupting influence the important Dr. L. G. Levin, then head of the Kremlin hospital. Yagoda started with gifts. He sent flowers to the doctor. Then after a little period in which the friendship ripened he presented the doctor with a dacha—that is, a small country house. Another brief period filled with friendly conversation and Yagoda made it all plain. He wanted assistance in bringing about the death of certain undesirables whom he named. When Levin recoiled, Yagoda promptly dropped his friendly attitude and suggested that the head of the Secret Police was not a convenient enemy for one who valued his life. In the end Levin yielded and got in touch with Dr. Ignati Kazakov, Menzhinsky's personal physician. Menzhinsky was even then a sick man, but Yagoda felt that no time should be wasted. So with his unfailing power of exciting both fear and greed in his dupes he prevailed upon Dr. Kazakov to give his patient the wrong medicine.

As Kazakov well knew, gland products he had developed might be good for Menzhinsky's asthmatic condition, but would tax his weak heart. Kazakov gave them, therefore, and complicated his patient's torture by forcing him to sleep in a newly painted room. Menzhinsky died from it all on the evening of May 9, 1934. His death aroused no suspicion.

Yagoda had also discussed with Dr. Levin the "elimination" of Maxim Peshkov, the son of Maxim Gorky. Yagoda regarded Peshkov as a "bad influence" on his father. And his elimination also cleared the way for the death of Gorky himself, which was to come later.

Peshkov's removal was, so to speak, a companion piece with the murder of Menzhinsky. By this time Yagoda and his medical assistants had developed a technique of elimination that made ordinary poisoning seem crude. The prevailing idea was to find the weakness of the victim and strike him there. When death came it seemed natural, even expected.

In Peshkov's case the weakness was psychological. He had a natural appetite for alcoholic drinks which to some extent he had mastered. Professor D. D. Pletnev, a physician of anti-Soviet leanings who had been reached by Yagoda and Dr. Levin, encouraged Peshkov to drink heavily as a therapeutic measure. One day while intoxicated and overheated Peshkov was induced by Professor Pletnev to lie down on a bench by the Moscow River. Taking advantage of his stupor, Pletnev opened up Peshkov's jacket and allowed the wind to blow against his bare flesh. Peshkov became chilled and afterward developed pneumonia from which he died on May 10, 1934.

In spite of the growing staff of doctors which Yagoda had to employ in the execution of this indirect poisoning technique, he must have regarded it as a method to be commended for its neatness. For when the question of Kirov's assassination came up he objected to the revolver shot presumably because it was too crude, too direct and too hard to carry through without detection.

The chief conspirators, Bukharin, Yenukidze and Rykov, wanted it. So Kirov was shot down by one Leonid Nicolayev, who boldly invaded the party offices to do it.

The instinct that warned Yagoda against this method of execution was a sound one. As a result of this act Yeshov was commissioned by the Kremlin to track down the conspirators. Yezhov went into the OGPU.

Meanwhile Yagoda, however much he may have been exercised by Yeshov's presence in his own organization, went ahead in his own peculiar and indirect way to accomplish the two other murders that had been decreed—that of V. V. Kuibyshev, vice chairman of the powerful Council of People's Commissars, and that of Maxim Gorky, the Communists' outstanding man of letters.

Dr. Levin suggested Kuibyshev because he was important politically and because his physical condition was such that he might be slowly murdered without any suspicion being aroused even in the mind of the victim himself. In this grisly chore Dr. Levin again was assisted by the useful and ingenious Professor Pletnev. On the stand Dr. Levin described their lethal method as follows:

"HIS weak spot was the heart at which our blow was directed. He suffered from myocarditis, had slight attacks of angina pectoris. We administered heart stimulants without interruption for a lengthy period and in September and October, 1934, he was given injections of other medicines stimulating activity of the heart. This brought on stronger and more frequent attacks of angina pectoris.

"On his return from a mission to Central Asia, an examination showed that his heart was in poor condition. He suffered from quinsy. In view of this state of the patient, he should have been put to bed and forbidden to do any work, which I did not do. He kept on working. In his office he had an attack of angina pectoris.

"He was allowed to go home alone. He left the outside door, passed through the arch, passed by the ambulatory where there were doctors, but no doctor was summoned. He walked up to the third floor. The house worker saw he felt very bad and summoned a doctor. Later they telephoned me. When I arrived I found Kuibyshev already dead."

Gorky was encouraged by these same two doctors, Levin and Pletnev, to do more work than was good for him—especially manual labor, which he liked very much. Then after he had gone down into the Crimea for a rest the doctors agreed to choose a moment for his return to Moscow when he could be exposed to influenza to which he was susceptible. This opportunity was created when the children in Gorky's house fell ill of influenza. Yagoda reported this to the Crimea and Gorky was brought back.

"On arriving into this influenza-infected apartment," confessed Dr. Levin, "Gorky contracted influenza on the second and third day, very soon to become complicated with pneumonia which at once assumed a severe character.

"PROFESSOR PLETNEV and myself, to accomplish our purpose, had to use only those medicines which might prove injurious to him. We did not resort to any special medicines which would cause embarrassment as to the reasons for their use. We only used those medicines which are ordinarily used in these cases. But we used them in large quantities. In this case they had their opposite effect. Again the heart engine, under ceaseless strain, lost its strength, lost its working capacity and in the end it failed."

So passed Maxim Gorky—and again there was no evidence, medical or otherwise, to show that a crime had been committed. But any satisfaction that Yagoda felt must have been considerably modified by the knowledge that Yezhov, the Kremlin investigator, was hard on a trail that must lead to his own door if followed long enough.

The fact of Yezhov's appointment was in itself a sign that the Kremlin was not at ease with the OGPU. Perhaps it was dissatisfaction at its failure to prevent the assassination of Kirov, perhaps it was downright suspicion. And there was reason enough for suspicion in the mind of a man like Stalin—a man who had been a conspirator himself for most of his life and might be expected to know something about the mental processes of one so engaged.

First of all Stalin might have been curious over the selection of Kirov as the first open victim of the Terror, of whose existence he could now have no doubt. Why Kirov when much more demoralization might have been caused by the slaying of Stalin himself, or if that was impossible at the moment, by shooting down the head of the Secret Police? Why not Yagoda?

If Stalin asked himself that question one of the answers must have been: "Because Yagoda is himself a part of the Terror." And once his suspicion had alighted on Yagoda there was enough to keep it there a while.

First of all was that strange business about the arrest of Leonid Nicolayev, the man who killed Kirov. Nicolayev had been taken in custody by OGPU guards and he was carrying a pistol when arrested. Nevertheless he was released by order of Zaporoshets, the Leningrad representative of OGPU. Kirov was slain three days later and Nicolayev was recognized as the murderer. Why had he ever been released? The mere fact that he was carrying a gun would have caused the detention of an ordinary man.

SECONDLY a man named Borisov, a known accessory to the murder, was killed in an automobile "accident" while being conveyed across Leningrad by Secret Police representatives. Representatives of the Moscow Government were waiting to quiz Borisov when the fatal and suspicious accident occurred.

But whatever the nature and degree of Stalin's suspicions and whatever Yeshov's state of mind, Yagoda was on a spot and he knew it. His discomfort was communicated from time to time to his Secretary Bulanov who lived long enough to repeat it all to the Military Court.

In spite of this justified apprehension Yagoda never turned aside a moment from any of his objectives. No doubt he felt that he was already in so deep that further crimes would make no difference. The two other murders which were "in process" were therefore carried through as planned. Kuibyshev died in 1935 and Gorky in 1936.

Shortly after Gorky's death Yagoda was removed as head of the Secret Police and Yezhov took his place. Yagoda's immediate reaction to this move was to make a direct attempt on Yezhov's life. And despite his need for haste the method employed was still thoroughly in character. He called in Bulanov and ordered him to soak the carpets, rugs and draperies of the office to be occupied by Yezhov with a solution of mercury dissolved in acid. It was a poison concocted by Yagoda himself out of an extensive knowledge of the subject he had lately acquired. Later he gave Bulanov two ampules of another poison with orders that they be sprinkled at the same time with the mercury solution.

Bulanov followed instructions to the letter. He sprayed the office with a squirt gun some six or seven times while a helper, an unfortunate dupe named Savolainen, sprinkled the ampules of the unnamed poison. It appears that Yezhov was made ill, but that the Kremlin was by this time too fully on the alert to trust any diagnosis but its own. And its own physicians—not any in Yagoda's growing and unwholesome crew—insisted the case was no ordinary illness, but mercury poisoning.

Here was a mystery, for Yezhov's food and drink, well guarded, showed nothing on analysis, and he had been taking no treatment in which poison might have been administered by the Terror's medical staff. Search of his living quarters was likewise unrevealing. But the Kremlin experts' scrutiny of his office disclosed the poison literally everywhere—and Yagoda's doom was sealed. For who else would seek Yezhov's death—who but his old superior with the former lieutenant hot on his trail?

Having decided in his own mind that Yagoda was guilty, what more natural than that Yezhov should pick up Yagoda's secretary, Bulanov, for questioning? From Bulanov flowed all the information about the others. If Bulanov had happened to be one who could stand up under questioning there were plenty of other starting places. Yagoda's doom was certain in any case. But for that matter it was certain, as he afterward stated himself, from the moment Yezhov was appointed to the OGPU.

Yagoda was executed on March 17. Seventeen other conspirators, including the two doctors, Levin and Kazakov, died with him.

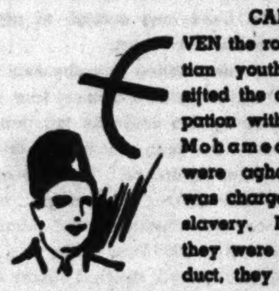
And Why Mohamed's Curious Means of Soothing His Creditors Landed Him in Jail.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine



CAIRO, Egypt.

EVEN the roistering Egyptian youths, who had sifted the dregs of dissipation with their friend, Mohamed Faraghally, were aghast when he was charged with white slavery. Impervious as they were to sinful conduct, they were later to be revolted beyond measure when Cairo authorities declared that 14 of the languid and youthful beauties who ornamented the oft-frequented establishment of Madame Fardous Hassan el Samra were Mohamed's wives.

It was Wife No.. 15, unwilling to submit to the companionship of Madame Fardous' clients, including many of Mohamed's cronies, who brought police to the door of the young civil service employe. Hardly more than a child in years, she employed a violent ruse to escape from the disreputable house where she had been placed by her husband four days after the solemn ritual of marriage.

The Faraghally family from which Mohamed is sprung is favorably known among the better classes of Cairo. Funds on which to live in Oriental luxury were available from the fortune established by Mohamed's grandfather in an extensive silk business. Other members of the family were active in civic affairs—in short, the name of Faraghally was an honored one, and its banner floated high and proudly in the Egyptian breeze.

To public school and university, like sons of other cultured Cairo parents, went the youthful Mohamed. Although not an outstanding student, his intelligence quotient was high, his resourcefulness and quick wit were noted by his instructors, who deplored the many distractions that came between the boy and his books. Early indeed was the twig, Mohamed, on pleasure bent and thus was the tree inclined.

During a period of enforced idleness due to inability to obtain employment suitable to his education and social position, Mohamed, in his early twenties, continued to associate with the more dissolute of the acquaintances he had made at college, and managed to meet up with several new friends of the same stripe. Several of his associates were ne'er-do-wells of elegant breeding and great wealth. The money they spent on pleasure was well beyond the means of the envious Mohamed. Others of the crowd earned precarious livings as gamblers, flinging money right and left when in funds, disappearing discreetly for intervals in which their luck, or rather skill, had failed them.

Mohamed Faraghally under arrest.

All in all, it was an unhealthy environment in which the young man found himself when, through the influence of his highly-regarded family, he obtained a Government job as clerk in the Ministry of Agriculture. Thus he bolstered the remittances from home, but even with the two sources of income, found it increasingly difficult to keep up with the fast pace of his companions.

IT FOLLOWED as a matter of course that Mohamed scarcely dared walk down principal Cairo thoroughfares in daylight, so numerous were the creditors who lay in wait for him. The tailor who fashioned his peacock raiment, the wine merchant who filled his nights with laughter and clouded the glare of a troubled conscience, the cafe manager, the barber—all camped on his doorstep hoping to waylay him at a moment when his pockets were filled with ready cash. They hoped in vain, and concern that an embarrassing law suit would estrange him from his family weighed heavily on the previously light-hearted young man.

Not infrequently in their pleasure-seeking meanderings, Mohamed and his fellow roisterers were wont to visit the licensed bagnio of Madame Fardous Hassan el Samra, in the Ezbekieh district of Cairo. For generations this section of the city has been set aside as a place of resort for the worldly.

Madame Fardous Hassan el Samra.

There was, of course, a certain tinseled glamour about the Madame Fardous' institution. But not unlike the glamour of the stage, quickly dispelled by close contact with crudely painted scenery, rough supports and tangled ropes, a business-like talk with Madame Fardous removed for Mohamed some of the enchantment which had hitherto filled the atmosphere. It seemed (Madame Fardous confided) that the standing of her establishment was jeopardized by a shortage of enticing occupants. True, the lodgers she had now had long been under her roof, but that was the trouble. Old visitors were directing their unsteady steps to new places and fresh faces.

As Mohamed listened, first with only half an ear, then raptly to Madame Fardous' tale of woe, a light dawned. Here, he perceived, with a mind inured to shame, was a means by which he could augment his slender income. When she had finished, he clapped his hands.

"I have the solution for your troubles, Madame Fardous," he exclaimed, "and also for mine. I will enter with you on a business venture. I will provide you with the lodgers you need, if you will furnish me with money." They struck a bargain, although Madame Fardous placed little confidence in the words of the giddy Mohamed.

To her amazement, unaccustomed as she was to such transactions with distinguished guests, Mahomed arrived three days later accompanied by a 16-year-old girl whom he introduced as his wife. First he demanded 28 pounds sterling (about $140) be placed in his purse. When that was done, he pushed his bride toward Madame Fardous, exclaiming: "She is yours; do with her as you will."

It was not until early this year, nearly three years later, when Cairo police seized him and cast him in a cell to await trial on vice charges, that his evil processes were disclosed. To accomplish his purposes, he had determined to capitalize on his good name and the reputation of his family fortune.

Traveling only a few miles to rural districts south of Cairo, he was soon able to establish himself in the graces of a farmer, father of a lovely daughter. Dazzled by his appearance, by his high connections, the farmer readily consented to his proposal of marriage to the daughter, and after the ceremony was performed, Mohamed quickly rushed with his bride to the city.

The country girl paid little heed to the direction she was taken in Cairo, and responded graciously to the luxurious surroundings and apparently gentle courtesies with which she was greeted at Madame Fardous' house. In time, after she learned too late of her betrayal, she found herself—through shame and fear—forced to adapt herself to her miserable lot.

Thirteen times more did Mohamed knock on the door of the bordello. Thirteen times again did Madame Fardous cross his palm with silver, receiving for her purposes a bride of Mohamed.

Then the pitcher was carried to the well once too often.

Again Mohamed went into the country. Unaware that behind her soft brown eyes and comely face lay high intelligence and superb courage, Mohamed this time selected for his bride Zeinab, the daughter of a prosperous farmer. Zeinab had been trained in the provincial high school; she even brought a dowry to the grasping groom. After a ceremony appropriate to the marriage of a well-to-do farmer's daughter to a civil servant, the pair took Mohamed's beaten path to Cairo.

FOUR days later, Mohamed took his fifteenth wife to visit Madame Fardous. At the end of a brief visit, he excused himself, as he had many times before, mentally bidding his bride farewell forever as he pocketed the money Madame Fardous had slipped in his hand.

Zeinab, it later appeared, sensed immediately that something was wrong when she walked through the house where drawn shades made day into night, although the sun was shining brightly in other Cairo windows. She prepared to depart. Madame Fardous attempted to dissuade her with kind words, then with threats, and finally, when these efforts to compel her to assist in the entertainment of guests had failed, she was deprived of all but barely life-sustaining portions of food and water.

For six days she remained locked in a room, growing weaker and weaker in body but not in spirit. But this time she analyzed the situation and was making her plans. At last, her plan carefully prepared, she summoned a charwoman. "Tell Madame Fardous I will yield," she said in a whisper. "Tell her I will behave, now, but I must eat."

As if her words were the "open sesame" of the Arabian Nights, servants fetched to her room food, wine, silks and perfumes. Soon after, she was bidden to meet a guest. Together, they drank from frosted goblets, the man deeply, the girl sparingly. Suddenly, as he appeared overtaken with drowsiness, she seized a heavy earthen water jug and swung it on his head. He fell unconscious to the floor. Swiftly, she tore off his clothing, put it on and walked unchallenged from the house.

All that night and until noon the following day she walked, until she reached the home of her parents, to whom she related her horrifying experiences. They lost no time in proceeding to the nearest police station.

A short investigation provided authorities with enough information to arrest Mohamed, terminating his activities. After obtaining a statement from him, they raided Madame Fardous' resort, liberating Mohamed's 14 other wives. The place was closed, and Madame Fardous was later released on bail.

Mohamed waited for his trial in jail.

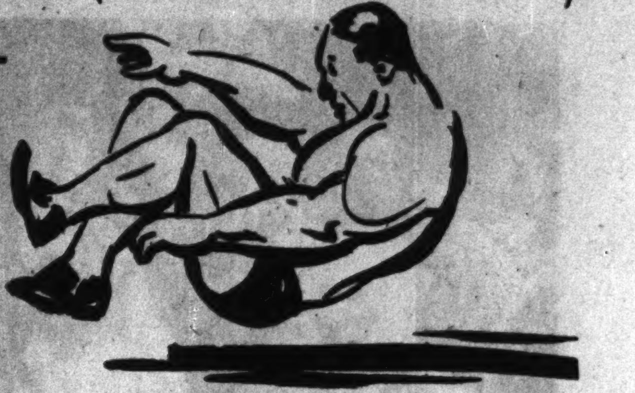
SOMETHING DIFFERENT in WRESTLERS



The Russian Lion Goes in for Serious Thinking

George Hackenschmidt: At 22—at 60.

NEW YORK.

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, lost his world's heavyweight wrestling title to Frank Gotch at Chicago before a great, shouting crowd. Since that day he has not once entered the ring. He has not done any of the things one might suppose a great strong man and athlete might do. He has—the sports world learned to its astonishment when he stepped off a boat the other day—dedicated himself to solving the mental and physical ills that beset the world.

This is no gag. For all his great spread of shoulders, columnar neck and ham-like biceps the Russian Lion, now in his sixtieth year, is an intense student. And an articulate one incongruous as it sometimes seems to have the purest of academic English emerge from a rugged face marked by one completely cauliflowered ear.

When he walked down the gangplank of the United States Liner American Farmer he carried a suitcase bulging with the paper-covered books he has been publishing in England and for which he is seeking a publisher in this country. He believes that these seven volumes contain secrets essential to the betterment of the race. The one he is particularly interested in pushing is "Fitness and Yourself," in which he expounds his dietetic and physical culture theories under chapter headings such as: "Unsuitability of Water for Human Consumption."

Some of his other titles are "Man and Cosmic Antagonism to Mind and Spirit," "Attitudes and Their Relation to Human Manifestations," "The Three Memories and Forgetfulness, Aquisitions and Impositions From Without; Life's Opposition From Within."

The subtitle of "Attitudes" reads: "Establishing Indisputable Valuations Based on Physiological Processes by Which All Human Manifestations May Be Assessed."

And of "The Three Memories":

"A study of the three relationships between human life and the natural and artificial environment giving analysis and definitions based strictly on physiological processes and life tendencies and showing—for the first time—the real significance of the brain."

These are what Dexter Fellowes, the old circus press agent, would have called "sesquipedalian" (meaning foot and a half) words. But they come natural to Hackenschmidt who speaks as learnedly in French, German, Russian and Estonian. He talks in tones slightly accented and slowly, for there are times when he has to burrow for the right word and he takes more pains with getting the exact nuance than many a college professor.

Since that long ago day when he lost to Gotch, the old Russian Lion has lived according to the dictates of a philosophy of existence which may seem strict or strange to many but certainly hasn't done him any harm.

"My health is all I could ask," he said, adding parenthetically that he could still jump over tables and "lift a considerable amount of weight" if he had to.

"For 25 years," he continued, "I have been engaged in research with regard to the mental and physical development of man. My mission here now is threefold.

"First I want to acquaint American publishers with my books. Second, I want to acquaint the authorities here with my work, particularly in regard to some quite new angles and aspects of educational problems. Third I want to visit some old friends.

"Then I will return to Nice, France, where I have a villa. And about six miles out of Nice I have a little farm on which I grow the things I need, vegetables and fruits and olives. I am now a citizen of France. I married a Frenchwoman. We have no children."

There would never have been a Hackenschmidt as we know him if there hadn't been a Dr. von Krajewski who was a court physician to the Czar of all the Russias. When he was in his forties Dr. von Krajewski decided his health was not all that it should be and laid out for himself a regimen of exercise and sleep so rigid that he timed his sleep to minutes—480 every night.

While the physician was building his body back to health a husky young fellow was gaining a local reputation around Dorpat, Russia. Hackenschmidt, offspring of a physically powerful family, had taken up physical culture when he was 5 or 6 and by the time he was 9 was tossing around dumbbells fit for an adult. Only four feet seven inches in height at 14, he weighed 122 pounds and grew rapidly until at 19 he was five feet nine and 180 pounds with an 18-inch neck and 17¼ inch biceps. He could push 243 pounds from his shoulders overhead.

DURING a test that year he injured himself and consulted a doctor. As fate would have it someone recommended Dr. von Krajewski and the physician, impressed by the herculean physique of his patient, invited him to train in his home. The physician was a millionaire and had a private gymnasium to which a group of men of fashion and the nobility came to train. So Hackenschmidt had the sponsorship of a potent clique.

Two of his lifting marks still stand as shining goals for modern weight lifters—361 pounds to the chest in one motion and 660 pounds off the floor with one hand. The present record for a single movement or "clean" lift to the chest (amateur) is 368 pounds with vastly improved equipment. His adult physique was unmatched with a 22-inch neck and 52-inch chest.

"One daily item of my training may deserve mention," Hackenschmidt once said, "since it was no small feat and, graduated according to circumstances, might be included with advantage in every wrestler's preparation. I used to kneel down while the others placed a sack of cement weighing six hundredweight on my back and as soon as that was comfortably settled a man who scaled another 230 or so pounds seated himself thereon. No small weight-moving feat, I can assure you."

Dr. von Krajewski, realising he had one of the world's strongest men on his hands, taught Hackenschmidt wrestling and for years the Russian Lion was victorious in Europe. In 1901 he competed in a round robin tournament in Paris winning the world's wrestling championship, two gold medals, a championship belt and 3000 francs. Until he lost his world's championship he was virtually undefeated.

A recent poll of sports writers selected Hackenschmidt as the greatest wrestler of all time because of his great strength and speed. He showed his strength once when he wrestled a hapless fellow named Tom Jenkins in England. According to contemporary accounts he tossed Jenkins up in the air like a ball. He lost to Gotch because the American was faster, but vaguely the Russian Lion mentions that he had a torn knee tendon at the time of the match.

Like many a man in public life Hackenschmidt will find his remarks of the past coming back to plague him. Once he told newspaper men that his strength was due to hard work with the weights and to eating an inordinate quantity of sweets. Once—it was written—he told of a diet that included 12 pints of milk a day.

Now he has abandoned heavy exercise completely in favor of a form of calisthenics which he says can make one just as strong and he has his own ideas of diet.

IN "FITNESS AND YOURSELF," he classifies solid foods in five categories and liquid foods in four. An ideal diet, he avers, would consist of fruits, nuts, berries, all leguminous vegetables, tomatoes, cucumbers—foods which are "alive" and thus "capable of sustaining life by themselves"—with fruit juices to wash them down.

All other food or drink scales down from fair to unfit for humans, according to his tenets. Science he says has "debauched" the human bodily system by inventing canned foods. Alcohol he shuns forgetting that once he drank a little too much claret—he was 19 then—and broke three worlds lifting records. He forbids the eating of "hunted animals" because fear, he says, has charged the blood stream with poison toxins.

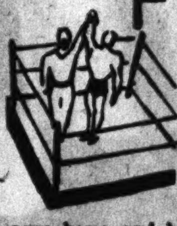
"The true improvement of the human being must come from within," he said. "All human improvement achieved from without through education, discipline and drill is opposed from within and all accumulated memories fall into forgetfulness unless one keeps them fresh by constant repetition. The educations of the future will be more physical culture and less of discipline and drill."

About this, said the Russian Lion, he had some more ideas and he proposes to expound them to educational leaders . . . in polysyllables.

ROBERT SELL.

Penn's Blind Varsity Captain

PHILADELPHIA.



FOUR-YEAR-OLD Bob Allman was playing on a sand lot near his Pennsylvania home, building an imaginary fort with thick walls and a small ditch for a moat all around it. He grew tired of the game. His friends had already gone home and he decided maybe it was time for dinner. As he started to leave he spied a huge box car standing on a railroad siding only a short distance away. He would climb to the top, look all around the neighborhood and then go home, Bob decided.

He ran to the box car and started climbing. It wasn't so easy, but finally he made it. He stood on the top, his legs wide apart, scanning the hills far away for some enemies. But it was kind of chilly and Bob decided he had better climb down and get home or there might not be any dinner for him.

As he slowly let himself down over the side, he lost his hold and fell. When he woke up he was in a hospital. Physicians told the parents as best they could the boy was blind; he had suffered a head injury in the fall and his sight was gone.

When Bob left the hospital, his parents encouraged him to run and play again. For a long time he wasn't the same boy, but then he slowly began to improve. He had to learn to feel his way about and certain games were no longer possible. But he wasn't discouraged even though it was pretty hard after having been such an active boy all the time.

When he was 5, he couldn't enroll in a regular school with his friends. His parents choose the Overbrook School for the Blind and he remained there 11 years. It was an excellent school. Not only did the boy get a good education, but he received fine training in sports. He learned to wrestle, developing such skill that in the 11 years he never lost a match.

From the Overbrook School, he went to Frankfort High in Philadelphia for a year. While continuing his schooling, he did not neglect wrestling. He was too much interested in the sport to give it up, even for a year.

In the fall of 1936, he entered the University of Pennsylvania, on an equal basis with seeing students. But class work was not nearly enough to take up all his energies, so he went out for the freshman wrestling team. He made it easily. Coaches were somewhat dubious about his ability to meet husky, unhandicapped wrestlers, but young Allman proved skillful and asked no special privileges. After all, he had 12 years of wrestling experience behind him, so blindness made no difference.

THAT year he wrestled 11 times and won every match. This year, as a member of the varsity, he wrestled eight times and lost only twice. Next year he will be captain. He hopes for a perfect record. The captaincy alone makes him determined to set a fast pace for his teammates.

And his wrestling ambitions are not limited to college competition. He hopes to win the Eastern intercollegiates next year and then take part in the national competition. If he accomplishes these things, he says he may even take a year off after graduation and try to make the Olympic team.

Already he has been runner-up for the Eastern intercollegiate wrestling title and recently won the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. crown.

Wrestling, however, is not the only sport that interests the blind youth. He enjoys swimming a great deal, but does not compete in races. He likes running, too, but that is another pleasurable exercise, not a competitive sport for a sightless young man. In wrestling, though, he feels he is as good as the other fellow. Many sports reporters say he is better, the best on his team, in fact.

Bob Allman.

He learns wrestling holds from his coach, Austin W. Bishop, who uses him for demonstration purposes when instructing the squad. "While Bishop is showing the team," Allman related, "he shows me and lets me try them later, criticising my mistakes and repeating the hold until I have it. Once I learn it, I usually remember. I study over each move in my mind and get a mental picture of the whole thing. But I couldn't do anything in college wrestling without Coach Bishop. He is a great guy and a great coach."

ALLMAN'S ambitions are not limited to wrestling. He wants to study law after completing his college work and hopes to practice. Most of his classroom studies, of course, are made possible by his ability to read Braille. But he cannot get some books in Braille. Friends help by reading those studies to him.

He is now 19 years old, five feet, six inches tall, and weighs 118 pounds when trained down during the wrestling season. After the training period is over, his weight goes up to 130. He is a muscular young man with a determined jaw. He keeps his dark hair combed straight back, except when squirming around on a wrestling mat.

He has always retained a zest for living, taking his blindness philosophically and even joking about it.

His conversation is mostly about the wrestling team. Now that he is captain, he hopes it will be a good season. He would like the collegiate team championship during his captaincy and knows the boys will work hard with him.

Asked whether he has difficulty getting around by himself, he laughed. Recently he went to Scranton, Pennsylvania, to give a wrestling exhibition. "I went alone," he said. "I have a fine sense of direction, know exactly where I am going and never worry about whether I will get there."

The university is proud of Allman. Blind athletes are rare, blind college varsity men almost unheard of.

VADUZ, Liechtenstein.

PRINCE FRANZ LIECHTENSTEIN, reigning head of the principality of Liechtenstein, absolute ruler of one of the world's tiniest monarchies, head of an old and historic house, and the first of his line ever to marry a commoner, gave up his throne a few days ago at the age of 84 with the remark that he wanted to "rest a little." He points out that when he came to the throne in 1929 he already was well past man's allotted span of three score and 10 years. During that time only peace and tranquillity were known by the 11,000 inhabitants of the 65-square mile principality. But now, just as their venerable gray-bearded ruler leaves the scene, there come reports of a cloud on the horizon. It is said that there is a strong move under foot to Nazify the domain that nestles like a story book kingdom in the mountainous region between the Tyrol and Switzerland, edged in between the towering peaks of the Austrian and Swiss Alps. If that is so, neither the former ruler nor his successor, a 32-year-old bachelor cousin, Prince Franz Joseph, have anything to say on the subject.

When Prince Franz announced his intention of retiring from the throne, there were rumors that he had abdicated because he was disturbed by the tendency of his subjects to show sympathy with the German Government. However, this was denied, and it was stated that Prince Franz simply wanted to retire.

But whether or not Prince Franz retired because he did not like the Nazification of Austria and saw a threat in its nearness to his principality, it would seem apparent that he could hardly make friends with Nazidom because of his Princess.

This Prince, whose full name is His Serene Highness Franz von Paula Maria Karl August Prince von und zu Liechtenstein, Duke of Troppau and Jaegerndorf, was one of the principals in the most theatrical romance that post-war European royalty knew.

HE was 67 when he fell in love with a 45-year-old Viennese widow who shared his tastes in art. The difficulty was that this widow was the Baroness Elsa de Guttman, who was part Jewish and a commoner.

Although Prince Franz wanted to marry the Baroness, his elder brother, Johann, then on the throne of Liechtenstein, refused stubbornly to consent to the marriage. Prince Franz and the Baroness were just as adamant in their insistence on getting married. They were married secretly in Salzburg, Austria.

Then began one of the strangest honeymoons known. They met on the Riviera, in Egypt, in Paris; they visited the health resorts in Switzerland, traveled incognito in Italy. This went on for eight years. In the summer of 1929, Johann died and Prince Franz was free to solemnize his union formally with the Baroness and make their marriage known to the world. There were but eight persons present at the simple afternoon ceremony in the ancient village church of Lainz, a sleepy suburb of Vienna. In less than half an hour it was over. It was so simple, so devoid of every semblance of pomp and splendor that had it not been for the two automobiles with the coat of arms of the house of Liechtenstein, the passerby might have thought that it was some country gentleman who had come to have his wedding solemnized in the old church.

Then back they came to Vaduz to rule over the little principality. There this Prince, who is a Catholic and a Knight of Malta, ruled with his wife, who came from orthodox Jewish stock and was called the only Jewish reigning Princess in the world. Now the Prince and his bride may go to the estate of the family in Czechoslovakia.

The Liechtenstein family has three branches, all very rich. Prince Johannes, of the third branch, married Aleene McFarland, Texas cattle heiress, in 1931. He and his bride went to the United States for a trip and the Prince then declared that he was bored with life in peaceful Liechtenstein and preferred traveling to other parts of the world where there was more gayety. The retiring Prince belongs to another branch and the Prince who will take the throne to still another.

While the reports of Nazi activity in Liechtenstein were being spread, some said that the country's 15-man Parliament, 12 of whom are elected and three appointed by the ruler, voted to maintain the country's independence and its treaties with Switzerland. Previously allied to Austria after the World War, Liechtenstein later linked itself by means of customs, postal and monetary treaties to Switzerland.

Besides the reports of Nazi activity, there also have been rumors from time to time that there were those in the population who favored the abolition of the throne and the setting up of a socialist state. However, Prince Franz always countered by stating that he would stop paying $110,000 into the principality's treasury every year and thus end the tax-free life of the citizens. The principality has been practically taxless because the Prince followed the custom of the ruling family of paying the annual deficit. Besides, aliens who seek citizenship in order to evade taxes or other obligations in their native lands are assessed $50,000 by the Government, and there are fees which large international corporations pay for privileges offered by the principality of Liechtenstein.

Like Andorra, the principality of Liechtenstein, which is 12 miles long and six miles wide, is a political curiosity. It is sometimes called a postage stamp state. When it issues a new series of stamps, they are sold to collectors all over the world.

Divorce is not allowed in this particular area. People who live in it do not have to fear jails or policemen, for there are none. There is neither unemployment nor military service. There are no taxes or soldiers.

This tiny kingdom has a long history which can be traced from the Counts of Montfort to the Barons of Brandis, then to the Counts of Sulz and the Counts of Hohenems. It was a Count of Hohenems who sold a part of the present principality, then known as Schellenberg, to Prince John Adam, who was head of the Austrian family of Liechtenstein. In 1712, another Count of Hohenems, James Hannibal, sold Vaduz, in the same area, to the same Prince John Adam. John Adam then applied for admission of the double fief as a hereditary principality of the Holy Roman Empire. The petition was granted by Emperor Charles VI, in 1719. The Liechtensteins became virtual rulers of the principality and the name of the principality became Liechtenstein.

MADE GOOD WITH a ONE-TABLE TEA ROOM

somewhere, an old radio—one of those ancient affairs with a horn attached to the loud speaker. Pretty good orchestra for the tea room they figured. Space, however, was at a premium, but they managed to crowd it under the dresser. The one drawback is that, to tune it in, one of the firm has to lie flat on the floor.

A folding card table equips the bedroom for eating purposes and Gerda, the artist member of the firm, has provided a handsome hand-painted menu folder which lists the delicacies which may be purchased FOR CASH. A sign on the wall emphasizes the cash requirement.

It is surprising that such an enterprise, depending for trade upon customers who mostly need money, can show a profit. But it does and with the other activities of the two girls keeps them in enough money to meet expenses.

Hollywood's famous Studio Club—which houses the G Girls' Tea Room—was founded about the time the first cinema-struck girls began arriving in Hollywood soon after motion pictures moved to California. It has been the home of thousands of struggling young women, many of whom struggled on to success. At first it was more or less of a boarding house, but as the necessity grew for larger quarters famous motion picture folk began endowing the place and money was furnished for the handsome building which, since 1926, has stood on a quiet street.

Miss Marjory Williams, the manager of the club, is also the adviser to the girls—but only when they ask for advice. She has had to deal with a great many phases of life in the years in which she has been "the house mother."

The story of the club, Miss Matthews says, shows that every state in the union and 16 foreign countries have contributed at least one aspirant to Hollywood's Hall of Fame. At least 25 colleges are represented with girls from Radcliffe, Smith, Wellesley, Mills and many state universities.

MANY of the girls arrive with enough money for some time. Others got here by the hitchhiking route and one came as a stowaway via the Panama Canal.

Neither Gloria Gilbert nor Gerda Mora, who have tackled the proposition of how to outwait the call to fame, was born to work or business. Gloria Gilbert's mother, back in Budapest, was the daughter of Baron Adelbert von Ploetz who was an adjutant to Kaiser Wilhelm II. Gloria's father was the Count Hugo Holved, a captain of the Seventh Hussars, a famous Hungarian regiment in which all of the officers were men with titles. She is a grand niece, too, of the Russian Czarist Admiral, Alexander Lebedeff.

An artist to her finger tips Gloria just naturally turned to a stage or movie career almost from the time her family came to America. She got tired trying to teach studio casting offices how to pronounce her real name. Gilbert was easy so she adopted that. She is tall, with a great mop of dazzling red hair. She speaks English with a trace of accent.

Gerda Mora is tiny. She arrived here by way of South America and Mexico. That was a year and a half ago and when she came she did not know a word of English. Now she speaks it with only a slight German accent. Taught it to herself without ever taking a lesson.

Her father was a prosperous Königsberg merchant and the family name was Saleker. Little Gerda was on the way to becoming a success as an artist and wanted to travel around the world, see queer places and paint them. The opportunity came when Ecuador wanted a German teacher in Quito. The pay was high, as it has to be for foreigners there. Quito is divided into two sections, not by the railroad tracks, but by the equator.

She got tired of stumbling over the equator two or three times a day. She had learned Spanish, but no English when she heard that Hollywood was the artistic center of the universe. Maybe she would act, maybe she would paint. Anyway she took an airplane to Panama, flew from Panama to Mexico and then, by plane again, to California. She hasn't acted much, yet. But she is lovely and vivacious and if and when the movies discover her, in the funny way they have of discovering people, she and Gloria Gilbert may go places.

In the meantime Gloria and Gerda are conducting the world's littlest tea room—and making money at it.

The FUNNY FISHERMEN

By WALTER DAHLGREN

Here are the funny fishermen—the crew of last week's fishing smack. The skipper and his mate are on deck for you too.

DIRECTIONS ● Mount everything except the sail upon thin cardboard and then cut out the parts. The sail is for last week's boat—just roll the tabs around the soda straw mast and paste them to the other side of the sail—and the boat is complete. Now for the fishermen. Fold on the dotted lines and paste parts together (stars indicate where to put paste). After the boats are pasted, insert a fisherman into each (as shown in sketch) and paste the two tabs to the inside. For their sou'easters cut the slits in the brown circles and place half way over the man's head (large part to back). Stick flat toothpicks through center of the hands for oars and they are ready to go fishing. The skipper and mate go aboard last week's ship.

THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—A badly mistreated rabbit.

BETTY BUNNY—Bill's faithful wife.

DR. HOOT—A wise old owl.

CHEESE-IT—The leader of a gang of selfish mice.

BEETLE BUG—Who commands a swarm of selfish bugs.

Bill Bunny has only one more wish to make [illegible]. And whatever he wishes will come true. At least, that is what Presto, the King of Magic, told Bill. Now Bill is an unselfish little fellow, and he wants to make a wish that will do everyone in the Hollow the most good. But so far he has succeeded only in doing himself a lot of harm. And more harm awaits him. Last week a swarm of bumble bees attacked him, and Bill decided to hide in the cellar of his tree home. We see him lying there now on a makeshift bed talking to Dr. Hoot, while Cheese-It and Beetle Bug and their followers hide in dark corners and wait for the doctor to leave us.

THE PLAY BEGINS

DR. HOOT—Those bees weren't very nice to you, were they?

BILL BUNNY—It was terrible. They came down [illegible] the chimney and out of the open stove door. They were afraid that I would obey Grumpy and wish that he would get all the honey they had stored away. Instead, they wanted me to wish that all the bears would become as small as bugs and grow wings, so that they could gather their own honey.

DR. HOOT—Hm-mm-m. That must have been terrible. I know that bees are awful folks to fight with. (After he goes Bill lies back on his pillow and pulls the cover up around his neck. Then suddenly a horde of mice and a swarm of bugs rush at him from opposite sides. They meet on the cover and start to argue.)

CHEESE-IT—You bugs get out of here. We're going to make Bill wish for more cheese and no cats.

BEETLE BUG—That's what you think. We're going to crawl all over him until he wishes for something bugs want. (And the mice and the bugs clash. Many scramble under the covers and swarm all over the poor little rabbit. Bill yells for help. Betty, scared, hears him.)

BETTY BUNNY—For goodness sake, Bill, keep quiet. There's a lion, a wolf and a wildcat outside. Each wants you to make some crazy wish. I told them you were away. So keep still.

Next week: Everybody for Himself.

The Moment and The Age as Seen in Camera Show

Artist, Amateur and Inventor Join Hands in Their First International Exposition.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

PHOTOGRAPHY as an art and hobby has been with us a long time but not until a week ago did it have its First International Photographic Exposition. It was the first time that every branch of photography was represented at one place—significant prints, latest equipment and supplies, lectures and a wide variety of demonstration.

Some 10,000 snapshots were submitted by hopeful amateurs and professionals in the various contests and these were cut down to 3000 by the jury on exhibition. The final display at Grand Central Palace was divided into news pictures, pictorial views, portraits, industrial and scientific photos.

Many exhibits showed the means and technique by which photographs were obtained. Thus, aerial photographs were supplemented by multi-lens aerial cameras, and special equipment for photographing bacteria and the like were on exhibition along with the pictures they made possible.

Selections from the best work of 400 camera clubs in the United States and Canada, a loan exhibit of 60 framed prints collected by the Oval Table Society, outstanding work in news, theatrical and industrial fields, 50 prints by leading European color photographers and gigantic prints from aerial negatives were on display.

The historical division included daguerreotypes of the Mexican War of 1847, probably the first pictures to be made on the field of battle, and the famous Civil War pictures taken by Matthew Brady. The first known daguerreotype of a human face was shown along with old daguerreotype equipment which is still in working order.

The exposition sponsors included the Photographic Society of America, Pictorial Photographers of America, Society of Photographic Illustrators and half a dozen other groups.

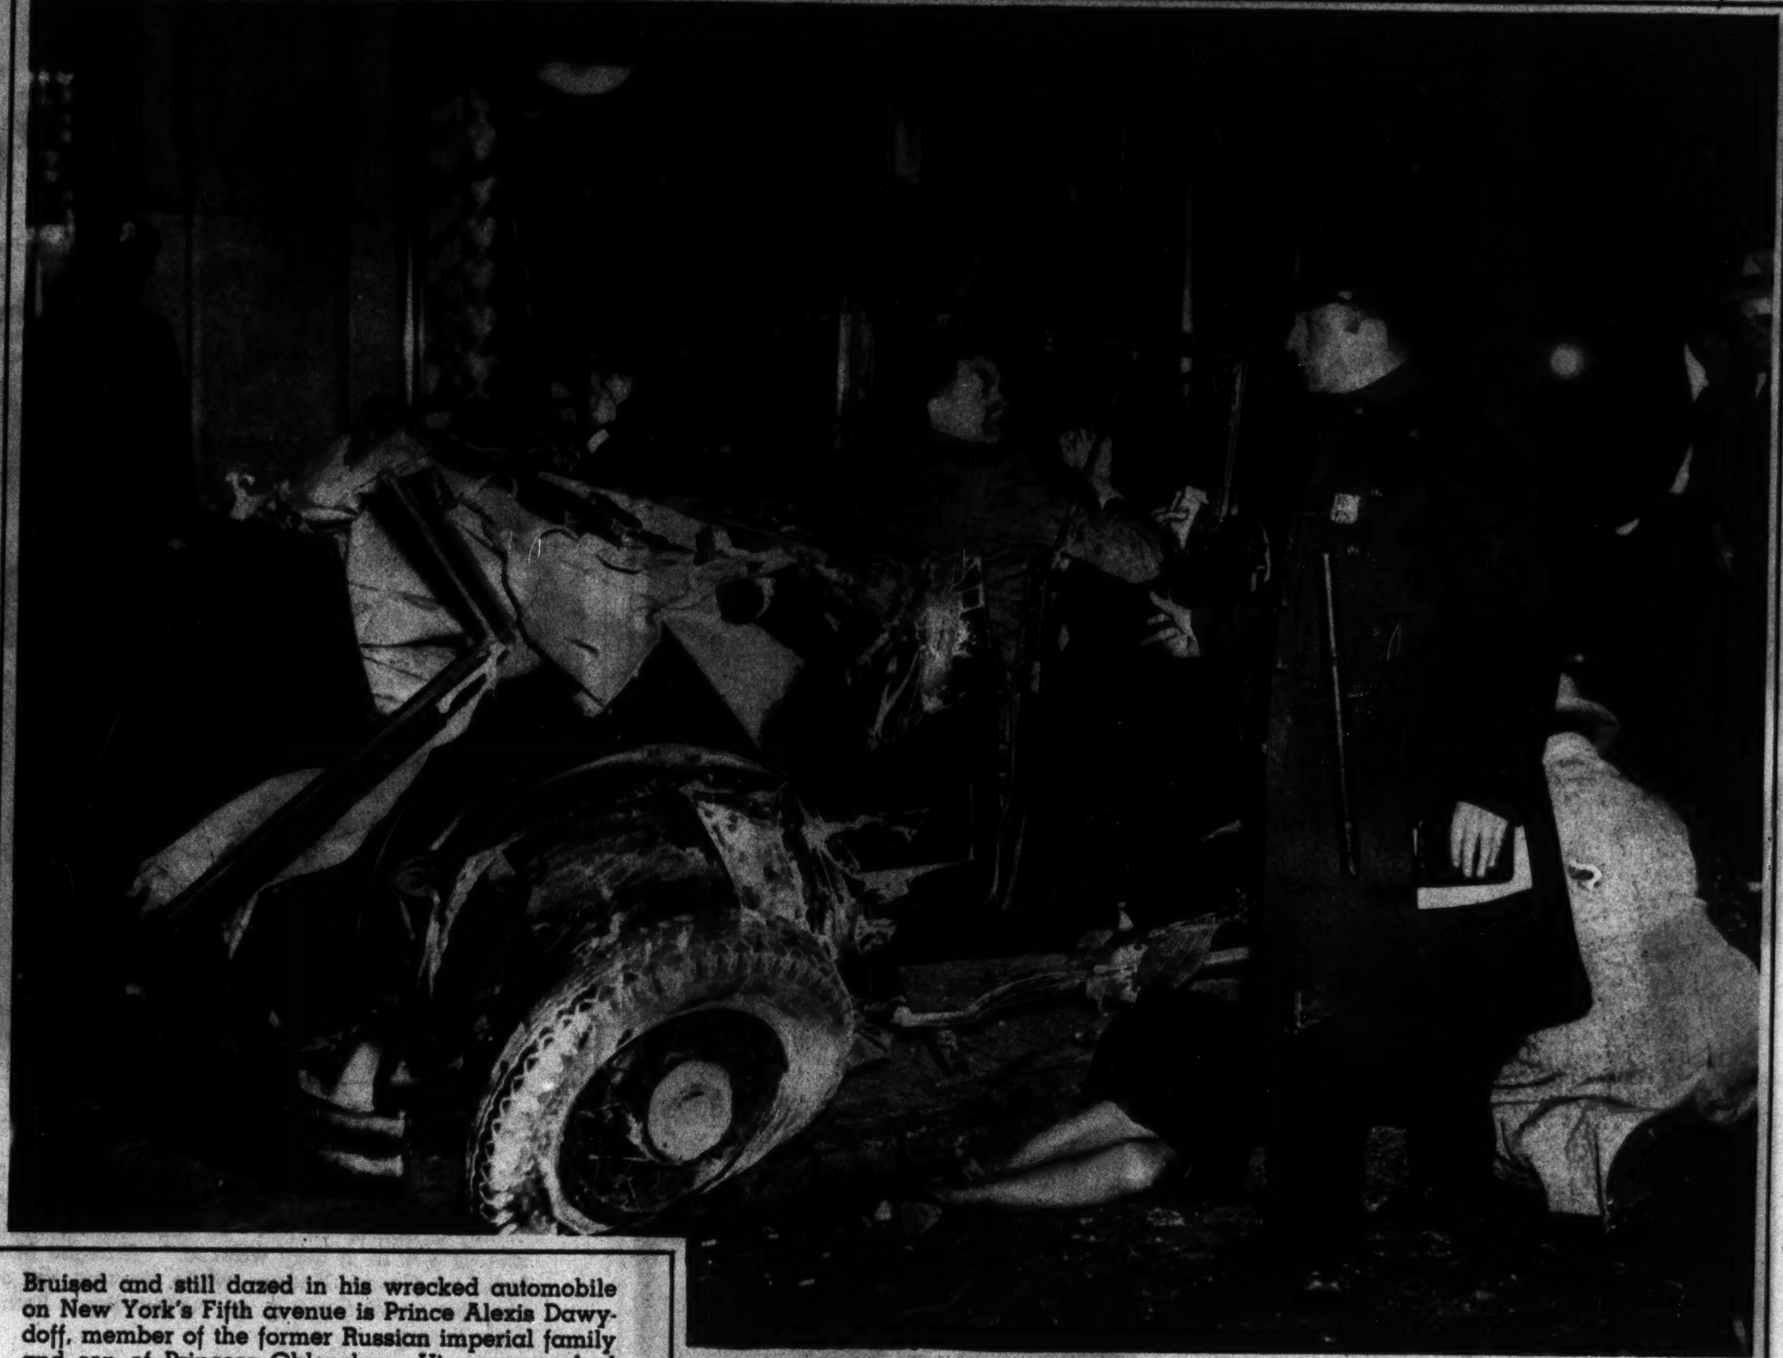
PICTORIAL LESSON for AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS



Bruised and still dazed in his wrecked automobile on New York's Fifth avenue is Prince Alexis Dawydoff, member of the former Russian imperial family and son of Princess Oblensky. His car smashed across a curbstone and into the plate glass front of a store at 2:30 in the morning. Lying beside the curbing is Mrs. Margaret Abrams, who was killed. Another woman passenger was injured. Automobile accidents last year caused 39,700 deaths in the United States.

IT TAKES A LIQUID TO CLEANSE YOUR SKIN

"Ambrosia is so convenient to use... and cleans so thoroughly," says BINNIE BARNES appearing in the Samuel Goldwyn production, "Marco Polo"

Liquid Ambrosia gives you a double benefit. It goes into your pores to clean out clogging dirt and make-up; and, because Ambrosia is the liquid cleanser, it cannot clog your pores with wax or grease.

Ambrosia helps fight blackheads and enlarged pores—those enemies of beauty which follow "half-way" methods of cleaning. See how it leaves your skin feeling refreshed and radiant!

Purse-Size Cleansing Pads FREE

Get 24 handy, cleansing pads by merely sending the booklet from the back of a bottle of Ambrosia Cleanser, Tightener or Cream (with 5c to cover mailing cost) to Hinze Ambrosia, Inc., 30 Rockefeller Plaza, N. Y. C. To get 24 Cleansing Pads and a genuine Bakelite Purse Container to carry them, send booklet with 10c for mailing cost.

BETTER MEALS IN LESS TIME!

Mealtime comes around as regular as the clock—but a Hamilton Beach food mixer is an "extra pair of hands" for the busy housewife—always ready to help with every meal. It does all the work of beating, mixing, creaming, whipping—the tedious part of cooking. Its powerful motor maintains the speed you choose even though the texture of the mixture varies. You can shift the bowl while mixing to insure uniform results... lift the portable mixer off the stand with one hand for use in any pan... control mixing speeds with single thumb-switch... handle full-depth double beaters in one unit. These special Hamilton Beach features increase its efficiency, usefulness and ease of operation.

Your dealer will gladly demonstrate this greatest kitchen time and labor saver. Choice of white or ivory finish. Price $23.75, with juice extractor and 2 bowls. Many practical labor-saving attachments at slight extra cost.

WHY ARE YOU ALWAYS FIDGETING!
GO ON WITH THE STORY
I DECLARE, IF YOU DON'T STOP SQUIRMING AND BITING YOUR NAILS, I'M GOING TO GO CRAZY... ELSIE, I WANT YOU TO PUT DOWN THAT BOOK AND GO OUT AND PLAY...
BUT, MOMMY...
... I DON'T WANT TO GO OUT AND PLAY. NONE OF THE OTHER CHILDREN WILL PLAY WITH ME, AND ...
NEVER MIND, DEAR ...A LITTLE FRESH AIR WILL DO YOU GOOD, AND THEN YOU'LL COME IN WITH A GREAT BIG APPETITE FOR SUPPER! I HOPE!
OH, LOOK, THERE COMES "ELSIE FIDGETS!". LET'S TEASE HER...
YOU CAN'T PLAY WITH US...
HI-SKINNAY!
TAG, YOU'RE "IT"!
HALF AN HOUR LATER
MOMMY, MOMMY! ...THEY WOULDN'T PLAY WITH ME, AND CALLED ME SKINNY AND EVERYTHING...
THERE, THERE, DEAR! DON'T CRY.
I REALLY DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH ELSIE --SHE'S SO NERVOUS!
MRS. JORDAN, PARDON THE SUGGESTION, BUT DON'T YOU THINK OVALTINE WOULD HELP HER? SHE SEEMS SO THIN AND PALE, AND NERVOUS. MY BOY JOHNNY PUT ON A LOT OF WEIGHT AND GOT OVER HIS NERVOUSNESS --WHEN I GAVE HIM OVALTINE...
REALLY? I THINK I'LL TRY IT--
YES, AND CHILDREN LIKE IT SO MUCH, TOO. IT HELPS MAKE THEM HUNGRIER FOR THEIR MEALS, SO THEY EAT BETTER--
AFTER ELSIE HAD BEEN DRINKING HER OVALTINE REGULARLY FOR ABOUT A MONTH
MOMMY, IS DINNER READY YET? I'M AWFULLY HUNGRY...
I'M GOING OUT TO PLAY NOW, MOTHER!
GERALD, HAVE YOU NOTICED HOW MUCH APPETITE ELSIE HAS THESE DAYS? AND HOW MUCH SHE'S GAINED?
YES, AND THANK GOODNESS SHE ISN'T SO FIDGETY ANYMORE, EITHER.
HEY, KIDS!
COME ON, ELSIE-- YOU'RE JUST IN TIME TO PLAY HIDE AND SEEK WITH US!
OH, THERE'S ELSIE! NOW WE'LL HAVE FUN...

● Get this Orphan Annie "Shake-up" Mug to encourage your child to drink Ovaltine! Contains colored pictures of Orphan Annie and her dog, Sandy. Children like to have their own mug to shake up their Ovaltine. Why not send for one for your child now?

Combat UNDERWEIGHT
and NERVOUSNESS
in CHILDREN...

Try this Food-Beverage to Protect against certain "MISSING LINKS" in the diet—thus correcting a cause of these two troubles!

Is your child underweight and nervous? Often the underlying cause is simply "MISSING LINKS" in the diet.... For no matter how careful you are in the choice of food, you can't always be certain that a child is getting all the vitamins, minerals and other important food-factors needed.

Ovaltine helps to supply "Missing Links" in a diet! It contains 31 food-factors in all—important vitamins (4 of them), minerals, carbohydrates, proteins, lipoids...needed by a growing child. It is really a "protective" food!

In addition, it is very easy to digest. Very nourishing. Supplies an element that gets into the blood almost at once. It makes milk more digestible. And it helps digest starchy foods like bread and potatoes, thereby speeding up a child's digestion so that hunger can return more quickly...

Thus Ovaltine often brings very surprising gains in children's weight. Helps cut down nervousness, too (underweight and nervousness very frequently go hand in hand).

Doctors approve Ovaltine. It is used in 1,700 hospitals in this country alone. It is of benefit to children who appear perfectly healthy, as well as those who are underweight and nervous.

Try it for a month

Give Ovaltine to your child for a month at least. See if you don't notice a general improvement — more energy — gain in weight — better appetite — less nervousness!

You can get Ovaltine at all grocery and drug stores. Give your child the many advantages of this "protective" food...

LEFTY, IT'S UP TO YOU!
WATCH MY SMOKE, MAC!
"OUT"
SMACK
YIPP-EE WE'VE WON THE FLAG!
WE OWE THE PENNANT TO YOU LEFTY!
15 STRIKE-OUTS ...WOW! YOU SURE TAMED THOSE LIONS TODAY!

IN EARLY AUGUST WE WERE FIGHTING IT OUT WITH THE LIONS FOR FIRST PLACE . . . THE LIONS HAD TAKEN THE OPENING GAME OF THIS CRUCIAL SERIES . . . SO I SENT IN MY STAR PITCHER. LEFTY URBAN. TO STOP THE LIONS' WRECKING-CREW.

THE LIONS HAD PLENTY OF 300 HITTERS . . . BUT GOOD OLD LEFTY MOWED 'EM DOWN LIKE SAND LOTTERS! LEFTY WAS STRIKING OUT THE LION SLUGGERS ALMOST AS FAST AS THEY CAME TO BAT!

IT SEEMED AS IF LEFTY WAS ON HIS WAY TO A NO-HIT GAME!

THEN IN THE 9TH INNING . . . WITH THE SCORE 2 TO 0 IN OUR FAVOR . . . SOMETHING SUDDENLY HAPPENED TO LEFTY . . . THE LIONS BEGAN TO KNOCK HIM ALL OVER THE LOT!

YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THE PUZZLED LOOK ON THE FACE OF RED BURTON, OUR CATCHER . . . AS RED REALIZED THAT LEFTY HAD SUDDENLY LOST ALL HIS "STEAM" . . . (YEP, ALL LEFTY HAD LEFT ON THE BALL WAS A PRAYER!)

WHEN NEXT I LOOKED OUT TOWARD THE BOX . . . LEFTY WAS RUBBING HIS PITCHING ARM, HIS FACE SCREWED UP WITH PAIN . . . (I REALIZED LEFTY'S ARM HAD MYSTERIOUSLY GONE LAME . . . SO I YANKED HIM . .)

BUT BY THEN IT WAS TOO LATE...WE WERE ALREADY BEHIND 5 TO 2... AND WE LOST THAT IMPORTANT GAME!

WELL, LEFTY'S ARM DIDN'T SEEM TO GET ANY BETTER . . . AND HE BROODED ON THE BENCH FOR WEEKS. POOR OLD LEFTY WAS EATING OUT HIS HEART, BECAUSE HE COULDN'T GET IN THE GAME . . . (AND BELIEVE ME, I SAW OUR PENNANT HOPES VANISHING MIGHTY FAST!)

THEN ONE DAY LEFTY COMPLAINED OF A BAD TOOTHACHE . . . AND I PACKED HIM OFF TO A DENTIST! THE DENTIST TOOK AN X-RAY PICTURE . . . AND HE DREW A DIAGRAM TO SHOW ME WHERE LEFTY HAD BAD ABSCESSES AT THE ROOTS OF SEVERAL TEETH!

THE DENTIST SAID THOSE BAD TEETH WOULD HAVE TO COME OUT . . . AND THAT HE FIGURED THE POISONS FROM THOSE ABSCESSED TEETH HAD CAUSED LEFTY'S LAME ARM!

WELL IT WAS ALMOST MIRACULOUS THE WAY LEFTY'S ARM GOT BETTER! IN A SHORT WHILE HE WAS BACK PITCHING FOR US . . . BURNING THEM IN LIKE THE GREAT LEFTY OF OLD! HE WON SIX STRAIGHT FOR US . . . AND THEN . . .

DONT LET BAD TEETH KEEP YOU ON THE SIDELINES! ... NEVER FAIL TO BRUSH YOUR TEETH AT LEAST TWICE EACH DAY...THIS IS ONE OF THE IMPORTANT RULES FOR HEALTHY TEETH!

WONDER BREAD helps build VITALITY!

VITALITY—NOT MERELY GOOD LOOKS —MAKES A WOMAN ATTRACTIVE!

Says MARTHA RAYE

FEATURED IN PARAMOUNT'S MUSICAL ROMANCE "COLLEGE SWING"

HOW DO YOU DO IT, JO? YOU'RE SO FULL OF ENERGY AND VITALITY THESE DAYS!

ISN'T IT WONDERFUL? AND I'VE BEEN HAVING SO MUCH MORE FUN, TOO!

TELL ME— WHAT HAVE YOU DONE —GONE ON SOME SPECIAL DIET?

I SHOULD SAY NOT! ALL I DO IS CUT DOWN ON HEAVY, RICH FOODS ...AND EAT 2 SLICES OF WONDER BREAD FOR ENERGY WITH EVERY MEAL. I SAW IT IN A WONDER BREAD AD. AND BELIEVE ME, IT WORKS!

HOW WONDER BREAD BUILDS UP ENERGY

If you want the radiant charm . . . the sparkling vitality that, screen stars agree, makes women truly attractive . . . you must have vital energy!

And how do you get this energy? You eat it! Yes, certain foods are great energy producers. And authorities agree that Wonder Bread is one of the best.

Because of the carefully selected good things that go into it, you get lots of energy. And because every loaf is slo-baked, you get Wonder Bread energy quickly.

IT SOUNDS SIMPLY MARVELOUS. I JUST CAN'T WAIT TO TRY WONDER BREAD.

BELIEVE ME, MARY, YOU'LL CERTAINLY NOTICE THE DIFFERENCE WHEN YOU DO.

IN ACTUAL COMPARISON WITH OTHER BREADS—

362,390 women out of 405,749 women have chosen Wonder Bread

WHAT an amazing record! To date 405,749 women have made the famous 1-2-3 comparison test of breads in stores all over the country. They have compared virtually all popular brands by the very method experts themselves use to compare bread quality.

And of these 405,749 women, 89 out of every 100 have chosen Wonder Bread over all others.

Yet, a few months ago most women thought all bread alike. Now, 362,390 women have proved that all bread is not alike . . . that Wonder Bread is the finest bread they have ever known!

And these women chose Wonder Bread only after discovering its delicious flavor, its firm delicate texture, its appetizing "wheaty" aroma.

Has any bread you know ever won such overwhelming preference? Never, we believe, have women been so outspoken in their enthusiasm for any bread. Get a loaf of slo-baked Wonder Bread tomorrow.

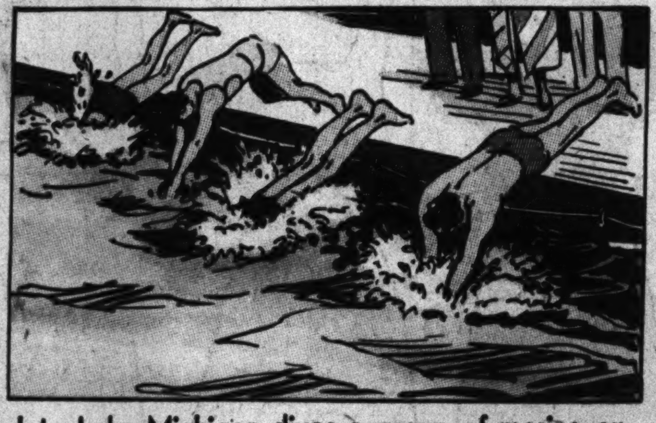
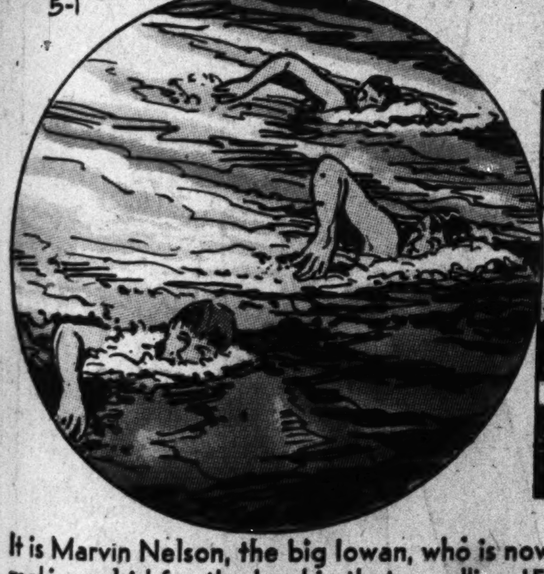
About Neptune Nelson, the Fish in Man's Clothing

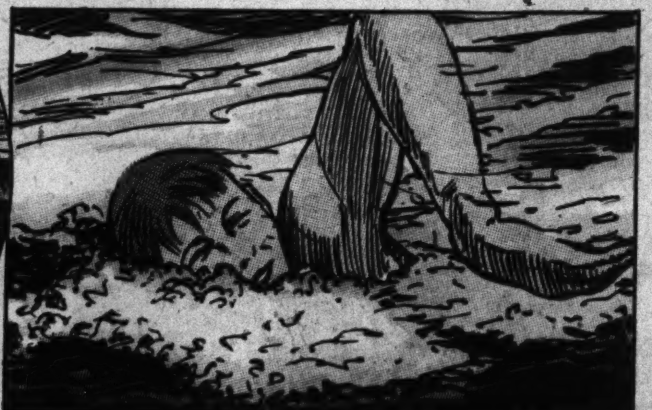
5-1



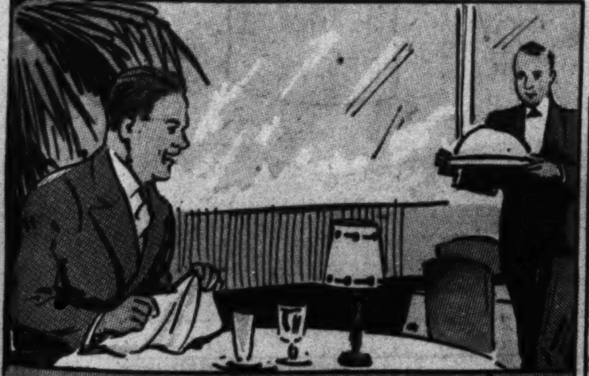
Into Lake Michigan dives a group of marine experts who challenge the fish at their own best achievement, swimming.



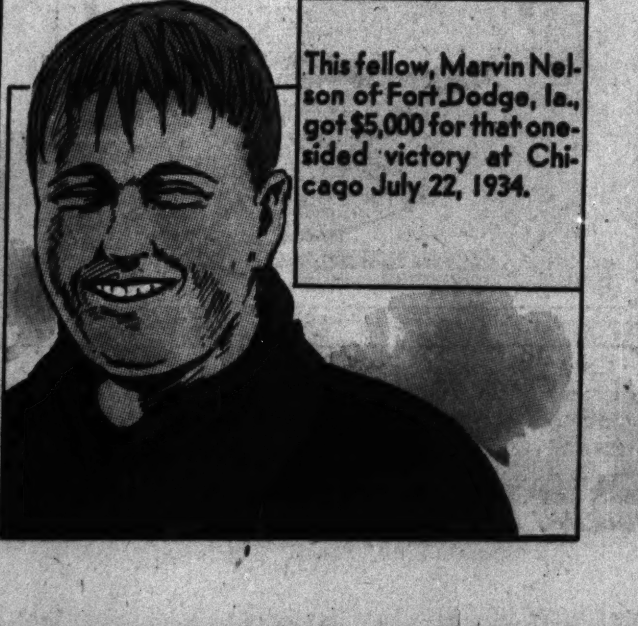
It is Marvin Nelson, the big Iowan, who is now making a bid for the lead in that gruelling 15-mile test of strength and stamina.



And Nelson is taking the lead after five miles of expert stroking through the waters of the lake and into the Chicago world's fair lagoon



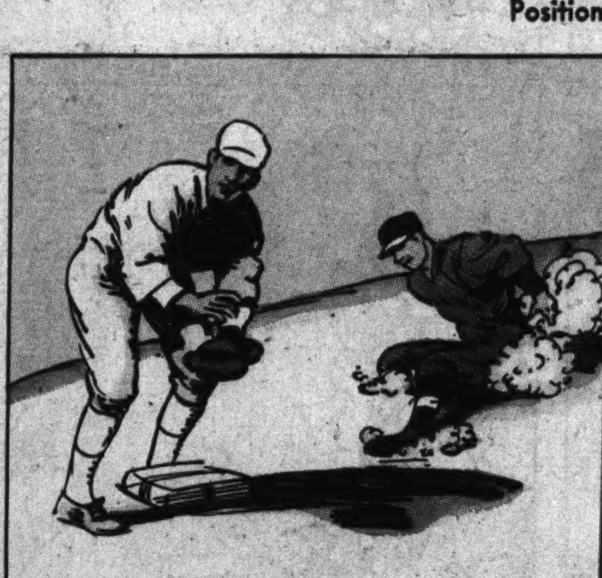
And after swimming the distance in seven hours, 54 minutes and five seconds, Nelson is out of the water, dressed and eating a hearty meal before Frank Pritchard of Buffalo, N. Y., comes in second.



This fellow, Marvin Nelson of Fort Dodge, Ia., got $5,000 for that one-sided victory at Chicago July 22, 1934.

Baseball . . . . by NED BRANT

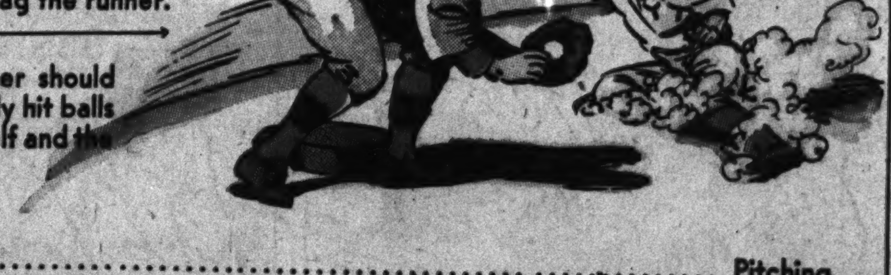
Playing Second Base and Other Infield Positions



Here is a good position for the second sacker to handle the throw from the catcher when the runner steals. If the throw is wild, move the feet and spear it. Don't stand still and miss it.

Infielders must be able to throw underhand, overhand, and from any position in which he gets the ball.

And here is the proper stance for the third sacker when the baserunner is heading for the hot corner. It minimizes the danger of being spiked and makes it easier for him to tag the runner.



The third sacker should handle all slowly hit balls between himself and the shortstop.

Andrew M. Taylor

"WE KNOW TOBACCO BECAUSE WE GROW IT—WE SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE WE KNOW TOBACCO"—Tobacco Planters say

He's grown tobacco for 10 years. "I know what kinds of tobacco go into various cigarettes," James Graves, well-known planter, says. "Most growers here—myself included —sold the best tobacco of their last crop to Camels. I know tobacco so I smoke Camels."

Mr. George Crumbaugh, another well-known planter, had a fine tobacco crop last year. "My best yet," he says. "And the Camel people bought all the choice lots—paid me more than I ever got before, too. Camel's the cigarette I smoke myself. Fact is, most planters favor Camels."

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Vertner Hatton, who has grown tobacco for 25 years. "Camel bought the best lots of my last crop. Paid more for my finest grades. I smoke Camels. I know there isn't any substitute for more expensive tobaccos. Most planters favor Camels."

HELLO, SKIPPY, THIS IS FREDDY. BE OVER TO THE HOUSE AT TWO O'CLOCK. I'M GIVIN' A PARTY. THERE'LL BE SANDWICHES AN' CAKE.
I'LL BE THERE.
SANDWICHES AN' CAKE, THAT'LL BE NICE.
GEE, I'M SORRY, SKIPPY, BUT WE'LL HAVE TO POSTPONE THE PARTY UNTIL TOMORROW. RAY CAN'T BE HERE TODAY.
OH, WELL, I'LL GO HOME AN' GET THESE CLOTHES OFF.
YOU'RE WANTED ON THE 'PHONE, SKIPPY.
THE PARTY IS ON AGAIN, SKIPPY. RAY JUST CALLED AN' SAID HE COULD MAKE IT.
IT'S OFF AGAIN, SKIPPY. RIGHT AFTER I CALLED YOU RAY SENT WORD SOMETHIN' CAME UP AN' HE COULDN'T GET HERE.
YOU'RE WANTED ON THE 'PHONE, SKIPPY.
HELLO, SKIPPY. RAY JUST CALLED AN' SAID HE'D BE OVER SO THE PARTY'S ON AGAIN.
LISTEN, WHY IS RAY SO IMPORTANT TO THIS PARTY?
HE'S BRINGIN' THE SANDWICHES AN' CAKE.

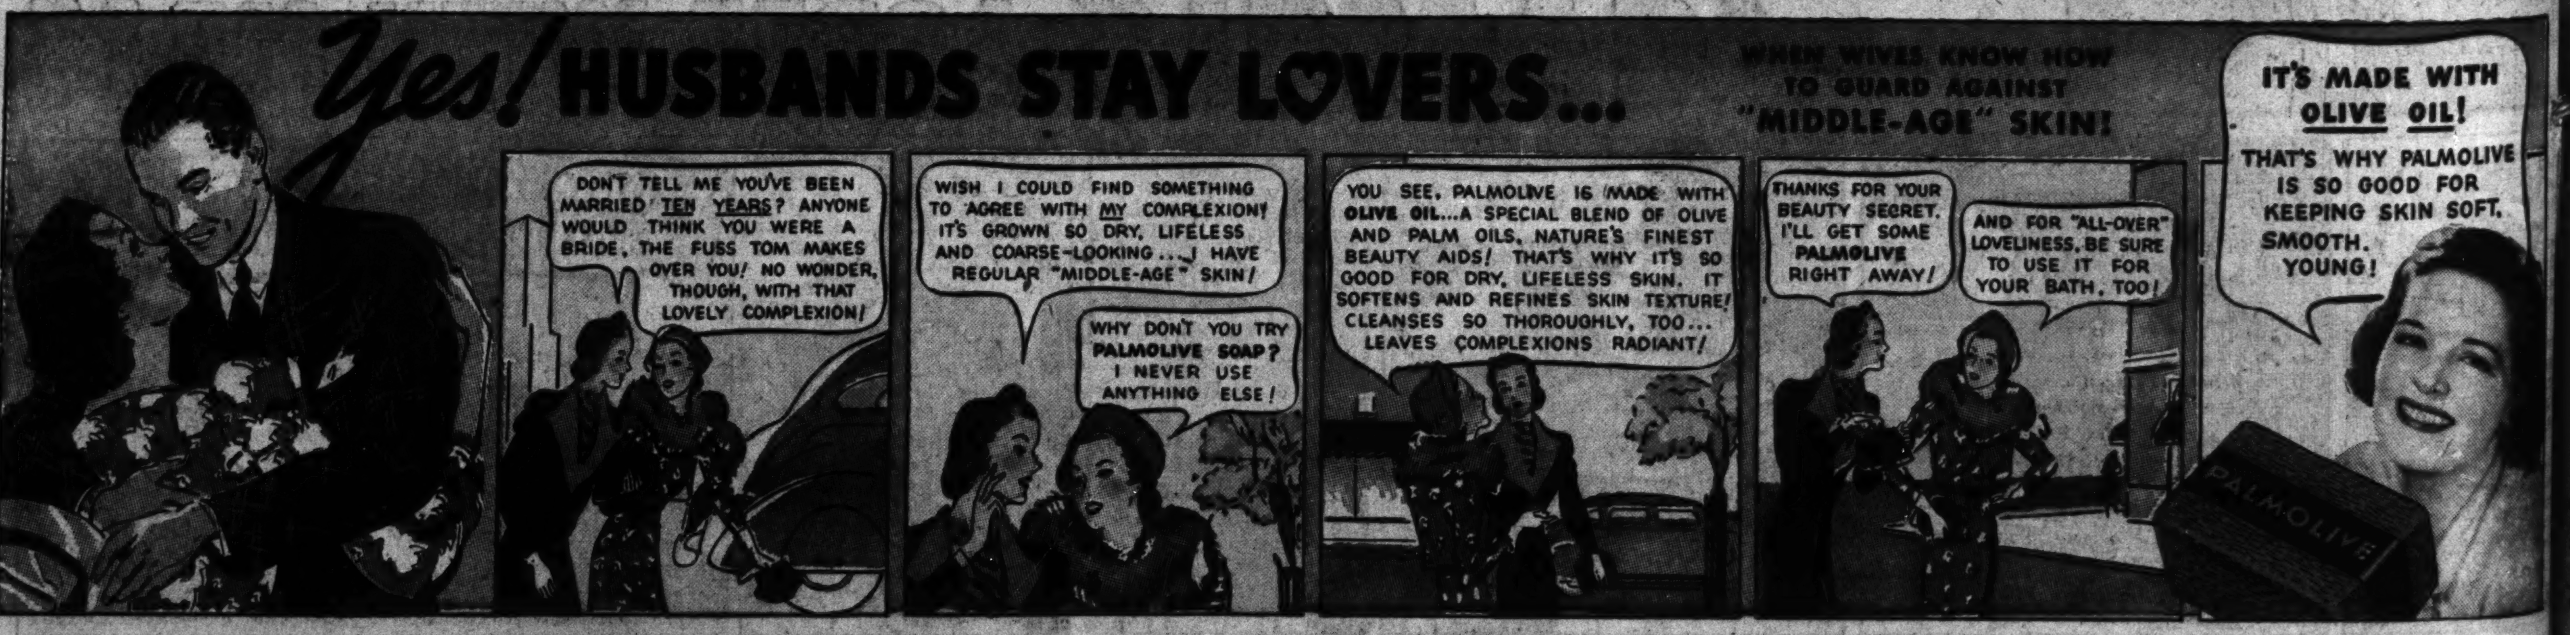
And His Class Had Voted Him—
"MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED"
SURE, FIVE YEARS AGO OUR CLASS VOTED ME "MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED"! AND LOOK AT ME NOW!
YOU'VE STILL GOT THE STUFF TO DO IT, FRED!
CUT IT OUT, DICK! YOU KNOW DARN WELL I NEVER HOLD A JOB MORE THAN TWO OR THREE WEEKS!
WELL, YOU'LL HOLD THIS ONE I'VE LINED UP FOR YOU, FRED! BECAUSE BEFORE YOU EVEN APPLY FOR IT YOU'RE GOING TO SEE MY DENTIST ABOUT YOUR BREATH!
TESTS SHOW THAT MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM DECAYING FOOD DEPOSITS IN HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN TEETH THAT AREN'T CLEANED PROPERLY. I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS. AND THAT'S WHY...
AT THE NEXT CLASS REUNION -- THANKS TO COLGATE'S
HOW ABOUT A LITTLE SOMETHING FOR THE ALUMNI FUND, FRED?
YOU BET! SINCE THAT STEER OF YOURS, I'VE BEEN DOING ALL RIGHT, DICK! ANOTHER YEAR AND I'LL PROVE YOU BOYS WERE RIGHT ABOUT ME BEING "MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED"!
NO BAD BREATH BEHIND HIS SPARKLING SMILE!
...AND NO TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH AS BRIGHT AND CLEAN AS COLGATE'S!
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
LARGE SIZE 20¢
GIANT SIZE 35¢
OVER TWICE AS MUCH
Good Housekeeping Bureau

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM combats bad breath. Its special penetrating foam gets into the hidden crevices between your teeth that ordinary cleansing methods fail to reach... emulsifies and washes away the decaying food deposits that cause most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay. Besides, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans the enamel—makes your teeth sparkle!



Yes! HUSBANDS STAY LOVERS...
WHEN WIVES KNOW HOW TO GUARD AGAINST "MIDDLE-AGE" SKIN!
DON'T TELL ME YOU'VE BEEN MARRIED TEN YEARS? ANYONE WOULD THINK YOU WERE A BRIDE. THE FUSS TOM MAKES OVER YOU! NO WONDER, THOUGH, WITH THAT LOVELY COMPLEXION!
WISH I COULD FIND SOMETHING TO AGREE WITH MY COMPLEXION! IT'S GROWN SO DRY, LIFELESS AND COARSE-LOOKING... I HAVE REGULAR "MIDDLE-AGE" SKIN!
WHY DON'T YOU TRY PALMOLIVE SOAP? I NEVER USE ANYTHING ELSE!
YOU SEE, PALMOLIVE IS MADE WITH OLIVE OIL...A SPECIAL BLEND OF OLIVE AND PALM OILS, NATURE'S FINEST BEAUTY AIDS! THAT'S WHY IT'S SO GOOD FOR DRY, LIFELESS SKIN. IT SOFTENS AND REFINES SKIN TEXTURE! CLEANSES SO THOROUGHLY, TOO... LEAVES COMPLEXIONS RADIANT!
THANKS FOR YOUR BEAUTY SECRET. I'LL GET SOME PALMOLIVE RIGHT AWAY!
AND FOR "ALL-OVER" LOVELINESS, BE SURE TO USE IT FOR YOUR BATH, TOO!
IT'S MADE WITH OLIVE OIL! THAT'S WHY PALMOLIVE IS SO GOOD FOR KEEPING SKIN SOFT, SMOOTH, YOUNG!
